THE BLACK CAT is devoted to original, unusual, fascinating stories—every number is complete in itself. It publishes no serials, translations, borrowings, or stealings. It pays nothing for the name or reputation of a writer, but the highest price on record for Stories that are Stories, and it pays not according to length, but according to strength. To receive attention, manuscripts must be sent flat, fully prepaid, and accompanied by addressed and stamped envelope for return. All MSS. are received and returned at their writers' risk.

BY WALTER TALLMADGE ARNDT.

"DOES any one know where Professor Joy is going to spend his sabbatical year?" Mr. Sargent, one of the assistants in chemistry, asked Dr. Bain as they walked together across the college yard the last lecture day of the second semester.

"No—that's one of the unsolved mysteries of the year," returned Bain, "and as far as I can see it will remain so. It's past our understanding why dear old Joyful, who, as far as we know, has never kept a thing from either Professor Rogers or myself in ten years, should all of a sudden develop such clam-like characteristics. We've hinted and hinted—given him every sort of a chance to unburden himself—but he's appeared to be so set on not saying anything that we've given up for fear of hurting his feelings."

"You know he's going to England, don't you?"

"We don't know anything—we can only guess," answered Dr. Bain. "He has, or had, a twin brother living there—a chemist, too, I believe. He told Professor Rogers that much several years ago. Whether he has any other relatives or not we don't know."

They stopped for a moment at the Registrar's office, where one of the clerks handed Dr. Bain a long envelope.

"This just came this morning," he said. "If you are going to see Professor Joy you might take it to him."

"Why, certainly," replied Bain, "we're on our way to his lecture room now."

"There's certainly been a big change in him in the last six months," resumed Sargent as they proceeded. "You don't suppose he's going back to England to marry some old sweetheart of his, do you?"

"Marry! Professor Joy marry! Don't think that for a moment. There never lived a more confirmed bachelor. His symptoms aren't those of love-sickness, and besides he isn't the sort of man to nourish a romance for fourteen long years; he hasn't been back to England once in all that time you know."

"Then there's absolutely no clue — no explanation of his dropping off from all his old companionships — giving up his chess and golf and resigning from the Chemical Society?"

"None whatever — unless it's his new hobby."

"His new hobby!"

"Why yes — you know about his taking up pharmacy, don't you?"

"Well, I did think he smelled sort of druggy of late, but I didn't imagine it meant anything."

"It means just this, — that he's been spending all his spare time for six months past reading books on pharmacy and puttering with drugs and medicines in his bedroom till it smells like an apothecary's shop."

"But what on earth — !"

"There you've got me. What on earth is it for? Maybe we'll know when he comes back to college fourteen months from now."

. . . . . .

For five minutes after he had dismissed the class in Chemistry B from the last lecture of the year, Professor Joy sat motionless, staring blankly straight ahead of him. Then he leaned forward till his elbows rested on the desk, and his head slowly sank into his hands, his slender fingers furrowing his thin gray hair. The noise of feet tramping through the hallways and scraping along the brick walk outside his windows did not disturb him. Nor did the breeze that scattered and rustled the papers on his desk. It was not till Dr. Bain's cheery "Hello, Professor — sleeping at your post again!" rang out close to his ear, that he raised a rather tired and somewhat ashamed face.

"I — I was just thinking, doctor — that's all," he protested.

"Not of the good times you're going to have during your vacation surely — your face gives you away — I'm afraid you were worrying again. Professor Rogers, and Sargent here, and the rest of us, will all do our best for the department."

"Oh, it's not that, you know," replied Professor Joy, gathering up his papers — "only I'm rather tired — and the relief of having it all over has upset me."

As the three left the building Dr. Bain handed the long envelope to the professor.

"I'd almost forgotten this," he said, watching the elder man narrowly. "It's your passports, I suppose. I noticed the government trade-mark in the corner."

"Yes — yes, to be sure — thank you," returned Professor Joy, placing the envelope in his pocket with scarce a glance at it. But he quickened his pace perceptibly, and when they reached Mrs. Gordon's, where they all dined, he excused himself with the remark that he didn't feel like eating anything and hurried on to his room, two doors farther.

Once indoors he nervously tore open the long envelope and examined its contents. "Yes — yes — it's all right," he exclaimed under his breath, "Everything's here. Let's see!" he began to read from one of the documents. "To Captain A. Toploft, Warden Dornmouth Prison: Admit Professor Robert Joy, a naturalized American citizen, to see prisoner Number 7899 on any days during the month of—'. Um-m! Yes, that's apparently all right — countersigned by the Home Secretary." He stood looking at the pass until it was quite a blur before his eyes. "Thank God!" he ejaculated at length with a sigh. He then took from a cupboard a jar of crackers and a round Dutch cheese, and, settling himself in his big arm chair, was soon lost to all else in the perusal of the latest British Pharmacopoeia.

Captain Alexis Toploft, the Warden of Dornmouth Prison, was sitting in his office one morning in mid-July, beaming over a friendly letter he had just received from a successful wheat farmer in Assiniboia who had once spent five years under his care for inability to make his accounts balance, when the guard announced a visitor.

"Show him in," said the captain without looking up.

The visitor stood waiting patiently for some time, until he noticed that the Warden had begun to read the letter all over again. Then he coughed.

"Pardon me, sir, I'd forgotten that you — " As the warden's eyes rested on the slight, nattily dressed man before him, he broke off abruptly and uttered a smothered

"Good Lord!"

"I see you recognize me, sir," said the visitor, with a faint smile.

"Why, certainly, sir — that is, I mean — you must be Mr. Joy's American brother. In fact you couldn't be any one else — you are as like as two bullets — sit down, won't you?"

"Yes — you have guessed correctly," returned the professor as he seated himself. "I am Professor Robert Joy, and I have come here with a special permit from the Home Secretary to see my brother Richard."

"I'm very happy, sir — very happy to know you," returned the captain as he glanced over the permit, "for I don't mind telling you, sir, that I prize your brother's friendship greatly and I'm glad to be of any service to either of you. You see, sir," he went on, returning the permit and wheeling his chair around till he faced his visitor squarely. "Mr. Joy and I have a good deal in common. To begin with, we both came to Dornmouth on the same day, sixteen years ago. The only real difference was in respect to our terms of service — mine was to be during good behaviour or till incapacitated — his for life. Then our both being gentlemen sort of drew us together — for real gentlemen — thank God! — are scarce enough here, sir, either in or outside the bars, so that when they do meet they are naturally attracted. As your brother has often said to me, 'It's what we men of science, speaking of chemical properties, would call chemism.'"

"Exactly — exactly," assented the professor. Then he asked abruptly:

"When will it be possible for me to see him?"

"I was just coming to that," returned the warden. "The regular visitors' hours are from ten to twelve, but I wouldn't want to put either of you to the unpleasant necessity of meeting in the general reception room. A better plan has just occurred to me. Your brother is the prison apothecary, you know, and that keeps him busy with his prescriptions every afternoon. I myself often visit him while he's at work in the apothecary's room, and I should be glad to take you there this afternoon. Then, of course, you can come again to-morrow — in fact, as often as you like. It's a slight infraction of the rules, but I'll gladly assume the responsibility for your brother's sake. I only wish I could do more."

"I can't thank you sufficiently," exclaimed the professor. The two men rose and grasped hands, standing for a moment without a word.

Seated across the lunch table from one another in Captain Toploft's simple little dining-room, the conversation, after a few formalities, turned to the prisoner. The professor spoke first.

"Does my brother appear to be restless — or is he resigned?" he asked.

"Generally speaking, he is very quiet," replied the warden, "but I don't think he has ever entirely given up hope. Often he says to me, in his plaintive, pleading voice, 'Ah, Captain — if I could only see them again — if I could only finish my work.'"

The professor sipped his claret in silence, and after a moment the captain spoke again.

"I hope you won't think me presumptuous," he said, "if I ask you a few questions about — er — the unhappy circumstance that brought your brother here. I surely need not tell you that I do not speak as an official, but as one who, from sixteen years' close association, is glad to count your brother among his dearest friends and who believes, as truly as you yourself, that he is innocent of the crime of which he was convicted."

"Your assurance is unnecessary, Captain," the professor replied. "But of course you know the main facts of the case."

"Not very much beyond the bare fact that he was convicted of poisoning his boyhood friend, the Honorable Cecil Colburton, son of the old Earl of Epham. You see, it all happened in the early eighties, while I was down in South Africa. Then a beastly Boer bullet splintered my knee at Majuba Hill, and it was three months before I was out of the hospital. My appointment to the assistant wardenship at Dornmouth caught me as I was convalescing, and brought me back to England. The trial was over then, and he was waiting in Sudsworth Jail to be brought here."

"I will gladly enlighten you in any way I can," said the professor.

The dishes had been cleared away, and the captain, with his elbows on the table, began:—

"It's about the motive that I could never understand—of course I wouldn't ask him. Jealousy—they said it was—didn't they—but there was surely no justification. If there was, why is he still so devoted—and why does she write so faithfully—never missing a week in all these years?"

"No," replied the professor quietly, "I don't think there ever was justification. But as for Richard's jealousy—To be sure he did attack Cecil violently one evening when he met him walking across the meadow with Julianne. It simply showed, it seems to me, the extraordinarily overwrought state of mind which his devotion to his chemical investigations had brought on. And, scarcely a week before, he had attacked me with even greater fury, because I had inadvertently wandered into the grove in which he had erected the little laboratory where he was carrying on his experiments, and had driven me from him with cries of 'Spy! Thief! Traitor!' In the first case they said it showed insane jealousy of his wife's honor, but the second surely showed that his jealousy in guarding the secret of his work was as great, if not greater."

"There is one thing more," said the warden. "I refer to the character of the poison that killed Mr. Colburton. Have you ever reached any conclusion as to what it was?"

"No," was the reply, "that question has never been answered—I doubt if it ever will be. When Richard came to the rectory that night about nine o'clock and announced to Father and I that Cecil was dead in his laboratory I hurried back with him—only half believing it. But Cecil lay on his back near the door in a little pool of blood that was oozing from a wound in his head — quite dead. Richard's story of how Cecil came to his death, as related to me then, differed in no important particular from that which he afterwards told in court. Cecil had come to the laboratory in answer to a letter Richard had written him. The letter, which was afterwards found in Cecil's desk at Epham Castle, explained nothing. Richard's explanation of it was that he wanted to offer him a personal apology for a wrong he had done him, which he would not name, but which we all agreed referred to his accusations regarding Julianne. The prosecution, you remember, made much of this letter, which they held was the means of luring Cecil to his death. Richard's story ran about as follows: Cecil had arrived while he was still at work. He was heating some chemicals in a platinum crucible over a Bunsen burner. It was a critical point in a series of experiments which he hoped would produce important results, and he did not wish to be interrupted. Cecil remarked on the peculiar color of the vapor that rose from the basin, and also on its odor, which Richard himself had noticed without then identifying it. Richard warned him not to stand too near, as the fumes might be dangerous, for he realized that in experimenting with various compounds results are sometimes obtained which one does not look for. A few moments later, while he was searching on his shelves for a particular jar, he heard a little puff, and turned just in time to see Cecil, who had ignored the warning and had leaned over the crucible to watch the peculiar bluish bubbles, stagger back with a short gasp and fall heavily against an iron stand. At the same time a little cloud of vapor arose from the vessel. Surmising what had happened, Richard crammed a cloth to his mouth and nostrils and sprang to a window. As soon as he thought it safe he went to Cecil, believing that he had been only momentarily overcome, but he was already dead. That was the sum of Richard's narration. The cut, which he had not noticed till my arrival, was not sufficient in itself to have caused death. When asked more particularly about his investigations, and the chemicals he was using, he refused to tell anything, declaring that they had nothing to do with the question, and that any explanation he could make would not in the least alter the situation and might give other chemists a suggestion which would enable them to achieve the solution of the great chemical mystery to which he had determined to dedicate his life."

"Did the materials in the laboratory offer no solution of the problem?"

"None whatever. Before he came for me, Richard — so he acknowledged both to me and on the stand — had carefully cleared up every trace of his work. This action counted heavily against him, for it was held, of course with considerable show of reason, that he did it to cover up traces of his crime. To me it seems clear that he was merely attempting to prevent an investigation by experts from robbing him of years of labor and research. It was a foolish thing to do, but just what any one would have done who was as insanely suspicious of others as Richard. One government chemist declared that from combinations of chemicals in his stock fifty different sorts of poisonous gases might have been generated. The gas that killed Cecil left no distinguishing traces. I could name off-hand a dozen Richard might have procured which would have had the same result. In all this there was nothing that counted so much against Richard as his point blank refusal to give any information concerning his work. Without doubt this refusal was one of the determining factors with the jury."

"It is three o'clock," said Captain Toploft, consulting his watch as they rose, "we shall find him in the drug-room now."

When they entered the room Prisoner 7899 was at work, with his back toward the door. The warden went in first, the professor following tremulously.

"Mr. Joy," called Captain Toploft, "I have brought you a visitor." The prisoner turned slowly, and for an instant the brothers stood face to face. Then, with extended hands, they advanced toward one another, the professor with considerable more alacrity than his brother. As he looked on from the door the warden thought, again, as he had before when his eyes first rested on the professor, that he had never seen two people so like in every particular. Both were slender and erect in frame. Their silky hair was of exactly the same shade of gray, they possessed the same almost feminine fineness of complexion, the same clear gray eyes. One who watched them long enough might perhaps have detected an indefinite quality in the attitude or bearing of the professor that was lacking in the convict; perhaps, too, he would have noted in the latter a momentary drooping of the mouth and an almost imperceptible twitching at the corners of the eyes from which the professor was free.

Richard spoke first.

"Well, Robert — it's taken you some time to find me," he said. There was the bitterness of cynicism in his tone.

Captain Toploft, leaving, shut the door noisily behind him. They were alone.

"I am sorry, Richard."

"She hasn't been here either." The words fell from the lips of the prisoner harshly with a metallic tang.

"Her reason is better than mine."

"As her reason for coming should have been stronger." After a pause he added, "She is my wife."

Professor Joy had for six months thought almost constantly of this meeting. He had looked forward to it as something to be braved. Yet never had his imagination pictured a situation so fraught with pain, so weighted with gloom. The message he had meant to bring was one of light and gladness. Now he felt helpless, and he sought eagerly for an opportunity to begin anew. Perhaps in the bosom of Richard Joy, too, there had been a struggle of conflicting emotions. When he spoke again his voice was softer.

"Sit here, Robert," he said, "where we can talk while I work. Tell me — why have you come?"

"I have come from Villacourt," the reply ignored the question.

"From Villacourt!" Richard turned quickly, "Julianne's letters made no mention of it."

"We wanted it to be a surprise."

"Is Julianne coming too — and little Antoinette — at last?" The quaver in the speaker's voice could not hide the anxiety in the question.

"No — you are to go to them," returned the professor, speaking low, and so slowly that one might have heard a pin drop between each word.

"To them — I am to go to them — You have obtained — "

"Hush!" The professor raised his finger warningly to his lips.

"No — I haven't obtained a pardon — you are to go — I am to stay here in your place while you are gone."

"You! — the Home Secretary! — has he consented — does Captain Toploft know?"

Richard's hands worked convulsively. His emotion was great. Yet it was plain that he was groping — that he did not yet understand. The professor rose and laid his hand on his brother's shoulder.

"Sit down, Richard," he said tenderly. "Let us talk it over." In a few words he told simply how for ten years it had been the thought nearest his heart to be of some help to his brother. Providing for the simple wants of Julianne and her child had been a pleasure. His ceaseless efforts to secure a pardon, sometimes holding out a ray of hope, had in the end all come to nothing. It was on last Christmas Day that the idea had come to him like an inspiration. The ensuing college year was to be his sabbatical vacation. How could he spend it better than by taking his brother's place in Dornmouth and allow him to pass the year with his wife and child in France? The accomplishment seemed easy. In six months he had mastered the principles of pharmacy in order that he might take up his brother's duties satisfactorily. Thus far everything had gone well. Richard's wife and child awaited him at Villacourt. Richard had only to instruct him in the prison routine, and then in a few days — maybe to-morrow — the change could be safely made.

Richard sat with bowed head until he had finished, making no attempt to interrupt him. When he lifted his face to his brother's there were tears in his eyes.

"No, Robert — I cannot do it," he said simply.

"Ah — but, Richard, you have not yourself alone to consider! Think of Julianne and Antoinette."

"Julianne!" Richard's voice hardened. "She has never —" he broke off suddenly. "I have brooded so long over her refusal to come to me that I am not fair to her. In my heart I appreciate her horror at the thought of having Antoinette discover that her father is a convicted criminal. Yet — if I were wrongfully convicted, where would be the harm? If Julianne had the faith in me she should have she would tell our child and instil the same faith in her. Her neglect to do so almost makes me feel sometimes — awful as the thought is — that I would have been justified in killing Cecil Colburton. No, Robert — it isn't worth the sacrifice it would mean to you."

"Ah, Richard, you are unfair — no, you are unjust to her," returned the professor. "I left her only yesterday — I know how faithful she has been. Antoinette is sixteen — Julianne expected to tell her the whole story soon and bring her to you."

Richard rose.

"I cannot answer — I must think — think," he said. "Come to-morrow," and then catching his brother's hand he crushed it in his own. "Ah, God be praised that I have such a brother — that such a man is my brother."

"Poor Julianne!" murmured the professor as he walked back to his lodgings. "Poor Julianne! — poor Richard! I am willing for their sake — but I fear I must make my appeal to him on another score. Ah, Science! — science! — what crimes — what sacrifices — " Then he smiled brightly and added, "but the end achieved will be the same at any rate."

Richard was walking rapidly to and fro in the prison apothecary's room when his brother called the next afternoon. He wrung the professor's hand vigorously.

"No," he said abruptly, coming to the subject at once before the professor had time to speak. "The situation does not justify such a sacrifice on your part — but your proposal is no less magnificent for all that. The full greatness of it came over me only after you left me last night."

"You must not think of it that way," returned the professor. He spoke rapidly — intensely. "Last night I said you owed it to your wife and daughter to accept my proposal; to-day I emphasize that statement — and, further, I declare that you owe it to the world of science — to humanity at large. My appeal to you now is not as brother to brother, but as one man of science to another. I have had a laboratory built and equipped for you near the cottage at Villacourt. You can return here in a year — when your work is done."

Richard Joy stood with his hands tightly clasped, his head bent, his eyes downcast.

"I could accomplish it in less than a year — in six months maybe," he said. His voice was low and tense. The sentences fell from his lips disconnectedly. "I have tried to induce Captain Toploft to let me fix up a little laboratory here — in this place. He has been good — he has done everything except that — he could not do that. But if I could only finish my work — people would understand then — people would thank me then — the generations to come would call me blessed."

Suddenly he raised his eyes to his brother's.

"Go, Robert — go now," he said — "come again to-morrow — I will tell you then — you are very good — and they would bless you too."

When he left the apothecary's room Professor Joy was in high spirits. He saw the warden before he left the prison.

"I am coming again to-morrow, Captain," he said, gaily, "and then I am going to France, where I expect to spend the coming year, which is my sabbatical vacation, in conducting a series of investigations along lines suggested by my brother."

"Ah, he has awakened your interest in his experiment, then?" exclaimed the warden.

"And I have every reason to believe the experiment will be successful," the professor returned decidedly. There was a sparkle in his eye as of victory already won.

"I wish you every possible success," said Captain Toploft, as they shook hands. The professor returned to his lodgings, where he spent the evening packing his trunk and writing letters, one of which he addressed to Dr. Bain.

The next evening at the same hour Professor Robert Joy was examining with interest the interior of a little cell in Dornmouth Prison. At the same time Prisoner No. 7899, from the stern of a Channel boat, was watching the white cliffs of Dover disappear in the dusky distance.

The strangeness of his surroundings kept the professor for the first fortnight from feeling the dull monotony of prison life. The simple effort of trying to prevent his acts from betraying him gave him occupation enough at first. The prison surgeon reprimanded him for his unaccustomed slowness in compounding the prescriptions. His unfamiliarity with prison etiquette brought a protest from the prison chef and some other trusties, who had always looked upon the prison apothecary as altogether too privileged anyway for a life convict. His first interview with the warden, which he had most dreaded, came off beautifully, because of the warden's insistence in spending a straight hour in pouring forth the praises of "your brother, the professor." The letters from Julianne, which had not for years been subjected to the ordinary inspection required by the prison rules, brought him every week, with the same regularity that they had brought his brother, an account of the occupants of the little cottage on the outskirts of the village of Villacourt. They told him much that another reading them could not have seen. They spoke of the joy of having "brother Robert" with them. They told of the devotion of the chemist — "notre frere Americain" — to his work in the little laboratory."

So the days passed — and the weeks — and the months. Robert Joy's adaptability, his quick wit, his ingenuity, were put to the test often during the first months to avert discovery. There was much to interest him in the life that went on about him. He was glad of the opportunity it gave him to study an unknown side of human nature. A life devoted to nitrates and sulphates had made him hitherto rather careless of hearts and souls. With the coming of the spring days, however, came other thoughts. He stood long at the grated window of the apothecary's room and looked away over the roofs of the prison buildings to a little grove that grew daily greener. There was freedom, he sighed, and the thought made his heart beat faster. Back at the University they were preparing for the end of the year. He could hear Professor Rogers say, "This course will be conducted by Professor Joy next semester." Julianne's letters were awaited more eagerly — more eagerly searched for the news that he found at last. "Your brother thinks he will have his work done by July first," it read.

It was the afternoon of the 27th of June. Professor Joy remembered that it was Commencement Day at home. Till now he had never realized how much he loved the University. He use to patronize it just a bit — for it wasn't Oxford. And he had actually thought it was his work only that he loved — now he felt that his love was deeper, more comprehensive. The year at Dornmouth had changed him that much. He hummed the college song as he worked. How many times in the days gone by he had frowned when the night air brought the strains of that same song from afar.

The warden entered.

"I have just a moment, Mr. Joy," he began. At once the professor noted something strange in his manner. "I only dropped in to bring you this copy of The Times. There's an account of a new scientific discovery in it. Good-bye."

The professor, opening the paper, searched in vain for anything about a scientific discovery. But under the Paris Correspondence the name "Villacourt" caught his eye, and he read:

> The correspondence of Le Courrieur reports a curious tragedy at Villacourt. An American college professor, Robert Joy by name, was found dead last night in a little laboratory which he had erected near the cottage of a Madame Joy, believed to be a near relative. Investigation shows that he probably met his death by inhalation of cyanogen, which had been unintentionally generated in the course of an experiment. The Central Police remember that a decade or more ago a chemist named Joy was convicted in England of poisoning by means of some unknown gas a prominent young English politician by the name of Colburton. The coincidence of names and the agent of death in the two cases is interesting, but is not known to be of any importance.

The paper dropped limply from nerveless hands, the reader sank into a chair, and his white fingers met and twined convulsively together in the thin gray locks above the sunken temples. Prisoner No. 7899 sat motionless, pondering vaguely the vanished future of Professor Joy.

The Pond That Went to Sleep.*

BY MARIE BELDEN JAMES.

THE Superintendent stood with the President's telegram in his hand, looking down at the smooth, dark surface of the pond that was in the way. He dropped a little pebble into the water, just to assure himself that it was not a floor of hard dark wood, and he was relieved to see little ripples start, though the curved shapes they took reminded him of the graining on a heavy oaken door. Then he read the yellow message through slowly once more: "Train must be run from Friedland to Essex over prescribed route before 8 tomorrow morning or franchise is forfeited. KNOX."

"What a fool I was," reflected the Superintendent morosely. "Why didn't I go on and bridge over the place instead of writing to Knox that the franchise ought to be changed so we could go around it? Now here I am with all material for a bridge fifty miles off, and the franchise lost if I don't run a train over here in the morning."

He looked at the shining rails that were laid right up to the water's edge on each side, and at the dull, empty surface which divided them. "And the damned pond in the way!" he said out loud.

"Easy on the pond, Boss. It's not so bad after you know it." An old man with wrinkled, smileless face stood at the Superintendent's elbow and watched him with a curious glint in a pair of narrow dark eyes. "We folks are mostly very respectful to this pond," he added. There was a note of cool seriousness in his voice that interested the Superintendent in spite of his trouble.

"Indeed?" he said, "Why?"

"It's haunted," replied the man calmly.

The Superintendent turned away scornfully. "It's a warm night," he said, looking at the hot, red sunset sky, "I think I'll be getting home." Then he felt the man looking at him and he turned back impatiently. "Well, how is it haunted?" he asked, annoyed and puzzled with himself for asking.

"We call it, The Pond that Goes to Sleep," said the man, "because they say that in summer — even in weather as hot as this — it sometimes freezes solid. You know it's only three feet deep."

The Superintendent laughed, an unpleasant enough laugh. "Good lie!" he said harshly. "What a pity that it couldn't freeze over tonight. We could lay rails along on the ice in half an hour — and one train over would keep us the franchise."

Again he turned to go, but this time the other stopped him alertly. "Then there is danger of your losing it?" he asked.

"It's lost already," replied the Superintendent, scarcely caring what he said, as he realized his trouble, "If a train isn't run across this pond by eight o'clock to-morrow morning, it's all up."

"Oh, that's what they did then!" the man stood looking steadily into nothing for a moment. Then he spoke with a decision that surprised the Superintendent.

"Why don't you drain out the water — it isn't much?" he said, "and lay rails on the bottom?"

"I had thought of that," the railroad man answered, "but it wouldn't do. The water would go right down this hill and flood the back yard of Wilmer, your mayor, and then there'd be the devil to pay. He's been opposed to the railroad all along, and he'd take hold of anything — "

"So he would, — you're right," broke in the man, "Well, I'm not opposed to it. My name is Doyle. I live over there." He pointed to the only house on the hill, a hundred rods distant. "And if I can do anything — "

"You can't, thanks," returned the Superintendent gloomily, "Unless the pond should freeze tonight," he added, with a spark of humor? "In that case you might let me know. My name's Revell. I'm boarding at Aus Smith's."

"I'll watch it close," agreed Doyle, solemnly. "And say, if it does freeze, after you've run your train through, will you let me have the ice? That's my ice-house — that big thing up there, and I didn't get it as full as I'd have liked last winter!"

"Oh, sure, sure," said the railroad man abstractedly, and he walked slowly off down the hill, his hands in his pockets and the yellow telegram crumpled in one of them.

When he reached his economical boarding place he found Aus Smith, fatter and consequently hotter than other people, sitting fanning himself on the steps. Revell, drawn by a desire to escape from his own thoughts, spoke to him.

"What do they call that pond up there by the railroad?" he asked idly, resting one foot on the lowest step."

"Why — they do call it the pond that goes to sleep," replied Aus and stopped overheating himself with the violent exertion attendant upon moving a palm leaf fan, "though that ain't its real name. They call it that because there's a story that it'll freeze any time, winter or summer, and some fool said that it only got tired and went to sleep. But nobody believes it," he ended, and began fanning again, convinced that he had given his boarder enough conversation for the price he paid.

That night was even hotter than the hot sunlit day had been. Revell tossed in bed, and then the broad stripes on the wall paper came to look too much like endless parallel rails, and he got up and sat by the window. It was bad enough there. The moonlight seemed to lie in straight, shiny lines along the path, and though no breeze moved, the shadows of the trees wavered on the moon-white earth and grew, moment by moment, like rows of men bending over with pickaxes, laying ties, spiking rails.

Presently one of them stepped out and stood under the Superintendent's window. It was Doyle.

"Say, boss," he remarked in the quiet tone Revell had first heard him use, "It's your chance. The pond has gone to sleep."

At first Revell thought the man must be sun-struck or moon-struck, or just ordinarily crazy, but he put on his clothes and went out with him, because it seemed just as well to do that as to sit there in the heat thinking until he was crazy himself. When he came down Doyle made him hurry in spite of the heat, and showed him a short cut through the woods.

From a distance, as they came out of the trees at the top of the hill the pond looked just as usual to Revell, black and glassy, and he felt a sudden sickening feeling come over him, for he had hoped without knowing. Then as they drew nearer, the water began to look white and queer, and presently Revell began to run.

In the white moonlight, under the shadow of half a dozen trees, Revell knelt between the shiny rails at the edge of the pond and laid his hand on — cold, white, solid ice. When Doyle came up the Superintendent was standing on it, stamping his feet exultantly. It did not crack under him.

They went racing like boys down to the workmen's boarding house at the foot of the hill and roused the men. They brought the tools and spikes from the locked tool-house. With their own hands they carried the rails to the top of the hill. And they helped make up the train of their only engine and two work cars. An hour later they did the best of the cheering as the little train struggled across the extemporaneous, melting bridge, and puffed comfortably away down the long track on the other side.

But in the cheering the men with the picks and spikes were not far behind. Though most of them had been born in the village and had believed the superstition of the pond all their days, it had astonished them to see the ice actually frozen with the thermometer at 85 degrees, but when they saw the railroad they had worked on so long saved by it, they postponed their surprise and gave the best of their energy to rejoicing.

It must have been their voices that waked the mayor in his house below the hill. For, as the last white puff of smoke came back from the vanishing train, he was among them, anger in his eye and mouth. Several other citizens had come too, and they listened to him. Doyle listened. And Revell listened a little. The mayor was not a mild man.

"All the water," he declared angrily, "out of your damned old pond has leaked down and flooded my back yard — flooded it. I'll — What in hell's this?" For, suddenly, he saw the melting ice, the new line of track and traces of the departed train.

"We've just been saving our franchise, Mr. Mayor," said Revell quietly and exultantly.

"Saving blue blazes!" shouted the mayor, "You've drawn off all the water and flooded my house. I'll fix your franchise. I'll — What's that? Ice?"

"Yes, sir, ice," Doyle suddenly stepped to the front, and the look he gave the mayor told the story of a hate better than the author of the four-hundred-page novel by that name ever dreamed of doing. "The pond, you see," his voice grew very low and gentle, and quite unexpectedly his smileless face smiled, "The pond, sir, went to sleep."

Day was just beginning to break. The mayor's glance met Doyle's straight. Then he quieted and looked around him,—perceived the tired, white, happy faces of the men, the hot, heavy air, at his feet the melting ice, and before him Doyle, standing, smiling gently.

"Well, I'm damned!" said the mayor, and turning, walked down the hill.

He meant that he was beaten and Doyle knew it. Whether anyone else did or not was no matter.

After the men were all gone, Doyle and the Superintendent still stood by the pond that had gone to sleep.

"Well," said Revell, laughing, "You'd better get your machine and go to cutting the ice, Doyle. You know I said you could have it for your ice-house. Though the Lord only knows how it got here, I can't believe it really froze," he ended.

Doyle took up a pick, stepped down on the ice, scraped away the slush, and showed the railroad man some deep, rectangular cracks:

"I think I will get my wagon and cart it back to my ice-house. I brought it last night, after I'd drawn the water off the pond and drowned out our respected mayor."

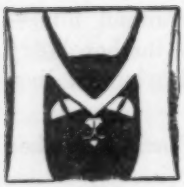
He stood looking at the Superintendent and the Superintendent stood looking at him.

"The mayor was opposed to the railroad," said Doyle, quietly, "I wasn't."

They both smiled. Then they shook hands. And a little later Revell walked down to the station and telegraphed to the president: "Train crossed line at 4 this A. M. Franchise saved. REVELL."

The Little Tin Box.*

BY JAMES FRANCIS DWYER.



ORGAN, foreman of the Hudson-Gerard Construction Company, swinging on a narrow plank four hundred feet above the sidewalk, whistled a lively tune as he glanced around at the unclothed ribs of the giant sky-scraper he was throwing heavenwards. Far below, human ants looked up through the clear air at the gaunt skeleton, their white, upturned faces, round and featureless, reminding the foreman of full-blown flowers on bulky stalks.

The watchers attracted Morgan. Sitting down on the plank, with legs dangling in space, he stared into the stone-walled canyon up and down which the human current flowed unceasing. The peculiar, weird expectancy which seemed to chain the little groups watching the aerial workers interested him. He had never looked at the crowds before, but some absurd analytical kink had just manifested itself in his mind, and he gratified it. He tried to understand the fascination which held men motionless hour after hour till their aching necks rebelled at the torture. Unconsciously, a hate of the crowd welled up within the foreman. He felt that they were waiting for something to happen. The motionless groups were uncanny. He noted those who stopped only for a moment, hurrying away with quick, upward glances, as if fearful lest the disaster pictured by their imagination might take place before they could shut out the nerve-tingling scene. Others stopped, backed carefully out of the current, and, shouldering the wall, settled down for prolonged spells of keen watching.

The foreman started to reason quietly to himself. "There's no fascination in seeing men work," he murmured, "so it's the fascination of seeing men in danger. Increase the danger, and you increase the spine-tickles that keep those loafers peeping upwards.

Where does it end? I honestly believe that a percentage of those dough-faced galoots stand for hours on the chance of seeing one of us do a toboggan slide through the ether. That's all they're waiting for, damn 'em."

In some peculiar manner the expressed conclusion pulled into his conscious mind the image of Johnson, who was known on the job as "Gerard's Pet." Morgan sat wondering a moment, then laughed queerly. From the pocket of his jacket he took a small, tin box about two inches square, and sniffed at its contents.

"If Johnson has been chewing this stuff long I guess he'll give those sun-gapers a sensation one of these days," he muttered. "Old Gerard's Pet, eh? Nerves on the blink! Carries his little box of nerve dope round with him! The foxy Johnson! What the hell does he want up in the clouds?"

Again he stared down into the tremendous abyss as if he expected an answer to his question to drift up with the faint, ghostly sounds of the heavy traffic. He noticed that the little groups were increasing, and he looked for a reason. There was nothing unusual happening, but the mesh of iron and steel seemed to attract pedestrians.

Presently Morgan laughed uneasily. "Damn 'em," he cried, "I believe they're watching me. They are, sure. I'm in it! 'Gerard's Pet' watching me on top and the crowd watching me below!"

He shook his fist at the spectators, stood up on the plank and climbed cautiously along it.

"Watching me," he muttered, "the damn buzzards! They're hungry for a tragedy. If they watch Johnson — Johnson minus his little, tin box — they might get a run. At any rate I'm going to watch him now. He must have lost that at lunch time, and if he's been chewing it regular I guess the loss of it will begin to upset his grit before the day is out."

Crawling carefully along the narrow bridge, he climbed into the cobweb of steel beams and looked back at the crowd from a position of comparative safety.

"The dough-faced loafers," he murmured, "it's funny I never thought till to-day what kept 'em watching and watching."

Wondering how he had overlooked this powerful incentive to the morbid minded, he stepped cautiously along the brink of shadowy abysses that lay between the tremendous girders, and as he walked he muttered continually:

"'Gerard's Pet', eh? Put up to watch me, and has to chew a morsel of opium to keep his nerve up. Guess he's craving a pick-me-up now."

At the southern end of the gigantic frame, which towered, black and ugly, over the surrounding buildings, he stopped and peered around. Johnson was standing upon a great triangle of steel, directing half a dozen men who were climbing along the iron threads where the wind, after lulling them with occasional moments of calm, attacked them with fierce, strong gusts in their moments of unpreparedness.

Morgan stepped out on the triangle and stood near "The Pet," but Johnson gave no indication that he was aware of his presence. The foreman's animus was ill-concealed and the other was a hyper-sensitive person. The hammers clanged ceaselessly and the skeleton thrilled under the blows. Away out on the bay the robes of the goddess were embroidered with gold as the sun sank lower. The puffing steamers appeared to be sailing immediately beneath, and Morgan's eyes passed over Johnson and studied the scene. The foreman was in a meditative mood, and it was mainly because these moods were increasing lately that "The Pet" had been put on the job.

Johnson was a slight, nervous man, with shifty eyes. Morgan's contemptuous silence irritated him. Standing with his back turned, he felt the gaze of the foreman playing over him like a searchlight. He felt it on his head, on the back of his neck, even on his hands. Suddenly he turned quickly to find Morgan looking over towards Europe.

Johnson moistened his lips and stammered violently as he moved the men along. "The Pet's" left hand strayed upwards, but when it had reached his pocket it was suddenly jerked back to his side. Three times the hand tried to forage in the pocket, and three times it was jerked away. Johnson's mind was certain that the tin box was lost, but Johnson's nerves, tautened by the presence of the silent foreman, urged the twitching fingers to continue the search.

Presently Morgan laughed and Johnson looked at him inquiringly.

"I was just thinking of those infernal watchers down there on the sidewalk," explained the foreman. "I never knew till to-day what keeps 'em there."

"And what does keep them there?" asked Johnson.

"Why, they're waiting to see one of us flop," replied the discoverer, "just hanging 'round thinking one of us will lose his nerve and take a header."

Johnson wrinkled his face into a sickly smile and again moistened his dry lips. Morgan had timed his visit well.

"I don't think that is the reason," he stammered, "they're interested in the work."

The foreman laughed contemptuously. "I know 'em," he cried, "I've been studying them to-day."

Again the foraging hand crept upward, and again it was jerked swiftly back. Its owner made an attempt to change the subject.

"Farley sent down a note about that iron," he spluttered, "he wants you — "

"Look," interrupted Morgan, "just look how they're lining up down there. What for, I would like to know? There's nothing particular doing — what are they staring at?"

Johnson didn't look. He stared out across the bay.

"Not there," snapped the foreman. "Right beneath you, man. Down under your feet. They're cursed ghouls."

"The Pet" moved back a few inches from the extreme apex of the triangle. He turned his face to Morgan and the gray eyes of the student of crowds noted his livid cheeks.

"Move along," muttered Johnson, "I'm going in."

Morgan didn't move. "Crowd unnerve you?" he sneered.

"No," snapped "The Pet."

"What's up, then?"

"Nothing."

"I thought your nerves were going back on you," grinned the foreman.

Johnson's left hand was foraging blindly in his jacket pocket.

"You think too much," he stammered. "Move a little."

"Just oblige me by going 'round the other way," murmured

Morgan. "I've got my eye on a batch of hungry buzzards down there and I don't want to lose sight of them."

Johnson turned towards the apex and moved a few paces cautiously.

"I knew a man," remarked the foreman, critically eyeing the other, "whose nerves went on the blink at this game. He took to drugs."

"Yes," muttered Johnson, half turning to look at the speaker.

"Yes," repeated Morgan, "he took to opium, or some stuff like it, and the crowd got a sensation one day. He forgot his box or lost it or something—"

"The Pet" wheeled swiftly. "You hound," he snarled. "You —you took it."

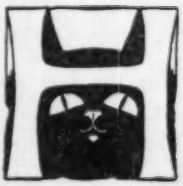
The foreman grinned. "Don't upset yourself," he murmured, "Your nerves are rocky, sure."

"Give it up," shrieked Johnson. "Give it up!"

Morgan took the little tin box from his pocket and tossed it towards the other. They were but a few feet apart, but at that moment a sudden gust of wind whirled up from the bay and the box was swept to the left of the narrow bridge. Johnson tried to keep his arm at his side, but the effort was beyond him. It leapt out after the bit of tin, which flashed in the sunlight, and losing his balance, he sprawled forward along the girder. Morgan tried to backstep quickly, but Johnson's right arm swung like a band of iron around his ankles and, locked together, they followed the little tin box.

The Failure of the Bell Exchange.*

BY A. D. McMILLAN.



E drifted into camp one evening about sunset, and if you could go anything on croppings, he seemed to be about the saddest outfit in the hills. His dog was too low-spirited to chase a jack-rabbit, while the lone burro that acted in the capacity of transportation department, might have posed as "Hope Deferred." We had been watching him for half an hour plowing along through the sand, and the Kid had summed up the lay-out as a Greaser outfit somewhat to the bad; and when they drew nearer, and a few gutteral Carambas came floating up the trail, we concluded that the surmise was correct.

"He's a Greaser all right," said the Kid, and when the expedition halted in front of the cabin, he dug up a little of his choicest Spanish and shot it at the stranger real hospitable.

But the stranger only shook his head. "Don't savvy the language, Mister. I've been living in an atmosphere of frijoles and tortillas for the last ten years, and all I could accumulate of their beautiful lingo was a half dozen cuss words, which I find very handy in communicating with burros. I picked up their other accomplishments — laziness, and a decided antipathy to soap and water — but their language — well, I just couldn't tongue it, that's all. And when it comes to punching burros you discover the true beauties of pure Castillian. English may be all right for automobiling, but to get the high speed limit out of a burro, you'll find that Spanish, with piquanti trimmings does the turn. Now you wouldn't think," continued the stranger, waving his hand toward the burro, "that Jennie Lind there knew the difference between Spanish and English, but she does. Give her English and she'll balk at a measure of barley; uno poquito de Castelláno and she'll skim the hills like a turkey buzzard."

That is the way Watkins introduced himself. In honor of the occasion the Kid opened up an extra can of tomatoes, tossed the dog a ham-bone, gave Jennie Lind some bacon-rind and sour flapjacks, and the angel of peace just folded her wings over our poor habitation as though she intended to take out naturalization papers and remain in the district. After supper we smoked cigarettes for awhile, and then Watkins got his can-opener to work on the following yarn:

"Been prospecting over in the Sunset Range for the last six months with a Peruvian named Enriques — object, a grub-stake to gopher after a treasure-trove in the Andes of Peru. Treasure-troves, pirate hoards and hidden mines are so numerous of late, that they refuse to thrill any longer, but somehow I believed Enriques. He showed me a map that had been handed down for several generations in his family — a legacy of disappointment, as it were — passed from father to son. Well, for years the Enriques family have been delving for the source of the Incas' wealth, and this member, my late partner, uncovered it. He took out a million or so, then corked it up and went into politics; so you see it is no myth of the hills, but a reality. Fortunately for me, Enriques, the only surviving member of his family, proved to be a prodigious failure in politics — the natural fate of an honest man — and was forced to leave the country. Two years ago he sneaked back just to see how things were looking and found his little mint covered up by a land-slide. He drifted back to the States, and we hit the hills for a grub-stake, and just as we had struck a rich little pocket, he died, leaving me the sole possessor of the great secret."

Watkins hobbled his yarn long enough to go over and interview his saddle-bags, then blazed away with the other barrel.

"Here is a map," he said, "and here is a thirty-pound sack of gold-dust to put the expedition through. Now I'm not stuck on the general run of humanity, unless it be of the feminine gender, but somehow you two hit me dead centre. The Kid speaks Spanish like a native, and you are both miners, so if you want to take a third interest each in an expedition where I pay all expenses and we share equally, all right; if not — "

The Kid looked at me wistfully and I nodded approval. "Yours truly," said Watkins. "In twelve months we will be buying 'Rocky-chaps' by the score and U. S. mints by the gross."

And the trouble started in Ariquipa. We had been traveling first-class from San Francisco — wine for dinner and a clean white shirt every morning. Watkins and I could handle the convivial part of the program all right — damn the waiters as though we had been accustomed to that sort of luxury all our lives — but when it came to evening dress and white shirts, we couldn't deceive a small child.

"When it comes to frills," remarked Watkins, "I'll cheerfully pass the deal, for the moment a linen collar gets to prodding me under the ears, I feel like a six-bit burro under a seventy-five-dollar saddle. I can eat pie with a fork as fast as the speediest of them, but when I find a pair of eyes focussed on my shirt front, I'm ashamed to look the waiter in the face. If I could only carry it off like the Kid there — say, he must have had a nurse girl or a butler in his family at some time, for he is as much at home with a napkin and cut-glass, as I am with a demijohn and tin plate."

And the Kid was surely having the time of his life. He mingled with the cabin passengers as though he owned the boat, and while Watkins and I got the marble heart, served on ice, the Kid harvested sunny smiles and tropical greetings. Unfortunately, we got acquainted with a pretty speedy lot of young Englishmen from Ariquipa, and when we landed in that burgh, nothing would do but we must meet a few of the best of their friends at the Club. Their sole idea of hospitality to invited guests seemed to be the game of poker, first, last and all the time, and the first night we were with them we played until morning, breaking about even.

"Might as well gather in a few of their loose thousands," suggested Watkins. So we started the gathering, and at the end of the week we had lost every cent of our grub-stake besides floating I. O. U.'s enough to paper their old club-room. We did some powerful rangy thinking for a day or two, but it didn't bother the Kid for a second. While Watkins and I were damning our luck in some secluded corner of the park, the Kid would be off to a dinner party.

"Talk about taking things philosophically," remarked Watkins; "why, it would take something as wet and as copious as the original flood to dampen that Kid's buoyancy."

We had about a week of this sort of thing — the Kid doing all the promenading while we hugged the shadows — then one day, a perfect stranger butted into the game. Watkins and I were, as usual, in the park, dodging those I. O. U.'s when Señor Don Alexandro Something-or-other introduced himself in Spanish. We shook our heads, and Señor Alexandro opened up in spavined English. He had a scheme on hand which required some very delicate manipulation — in fact, was a little too heavy for the ordinary native intellect — so he had come to ask the shrewd Americanos to furnish the brain sinews to carry out the deal.

No use talking, it sounded all right, although the Don hit old Mother English hard when she was flat on her back and positively refused to break fair in the clinches. No matter if a man does sand-bag your mother-tongue while lost in admiration of your intellectual bumps, it is still a pretty fair language. The Don's English was wild and picturesque in spots, but, like a lime light, it illuminated our dome pieces, so we forgave him and listened. We accompanied him to his apartments, and, over a quart bottle of brandy and a siphon of soda, he unfolded the plot.

It appeared that in early days one of the fathers of the church, being short of every metal but gold and silver, had run a lot of the precious into a great church bell, which for centuries had been wasting its sweet music in the wilds of the Andes, until our friend, Señor Alexandro, had borrowed a small chip from the bell and had it assayed. The bell weighed about 200 pounds and assayed 90 per cent. gold and 10 per cent. silver. The plot was to exchange bells when the natives were not looking. Señor Alexandro had the base metal all ready, and all we were expected to do was to execute the exchange.

It sounded very sweet and feasible, mixed with brandy and soda and the Don's vulcanized English, and when we let the Kid in on the plot it just tickled him to death to think that we had traveled some three thousand miles to shop-lift a church bell. Nobody said anything about compunctions of conscience in regard to the affair, so Watkins sat down and did a little figuring on the deal, and this is the way it looked on paper:

180 lbs. of gold at $200 per lb. .	$36,000
20 lbs of silver at $6 per lb. .	120
Total . .	$36,120

"Call it an even $36,000," said Watkins, "and we'll donate the silver to the conscience fund of the church. Half of that — $18,000 — belongs to us, so you see we'll be able to give the Incas' treasure-trove a good wrestle yet."

We shipped the spurious bell to Santa Rosa by rail, and from there it was mule-back to destination. We traveled by night and kept shady by day, for we wished to keep the affair as quiet as possible. One of our mules was loaded with provisions, so we lived well, and didn't have to stop at any of the towns en route. Señor Alexandro stayed right with us until we reached the village where the exchange was to take place. We camped about a mile from the town, and that night we heard the sweet tones of the famous bell for the first time. Speaking of music, that certainly was a symphony to us. It may have been our imaginations, but somehow the clear, sweet, 90-per-cent-gold tones that came floating into camp, brought with them every description of violet-scented reverie. Watkins' dreams did a hot-foot toward autos, wine suppers and white shirts, the Kid's thoughts ran to pink teas and other aristocratic pastimes, while Señor Alexandro and I sat in the gloaming and opened our hearts to each other on the beauties of stock ranges, coffee plantations and bank accounts.

Well, we spent a very pleasant evening, and about ten o'clock Señor Don left camp to reconnoiter while we remained behind and talked things over.

"I would like to hear that bell chiming in our own back yard," remarked the Kid, coming out of his trance, "for I wouldn't trust that Greaser with a plugged nickel. It is all very well telling us about the religious scruples of his countrymen, but he could get any number of them who would steal bell, steeple, church and church-yard, if he wanted them. I became suspicious of him when he wanted no one in the deal who could speak Spanish.

"Oh, that's all right," said Watkins, "he imagines if we can't speak Spanish we are not so apt to get communicative with the natives and give the plot away. He's a foxy Greaser, all right, but once we land the bell it will be a tropical joke on us if we don't get our half of the proceeds."

"If we don't," said the Kid, "I'll make it the objective point of my brief existence to hunt up Mr. Señor Don and see if his blood runs red or yellow. I'm not out here stealing church bells for my morals."

And, although the Kid looked and felt well in a dress suit, he had nerve to rent. I saw him piloting a pretty little Cherub through the intricacies of a cotillion — bowing and scraping — and to see him going through the willowy, billowy, one would never imagine that he had once run the Champion Gun-man out of the Sunset Range with a pick handle. The Kid might be a heliotrope-scented swell in the ball-room, but when it came to roughing it, he could throw his face into the kinks of a sand-storm and outpoint a cactus for toughness.

We waited somewhat impatiently while the Señor was foraging for information. At eleven we began to get a little uneasy, and at twelve we had about concluded to take a look at the church steeple by moonlight on our own account. Just then we heard quite a commotion in the direction of the village, but after a little things quieted down. After waiting some little time we heard footsteps coming down the trail.

"Here he comes now" said Watkins, taking his place at the smothered camp fire, "and I suppose the Bell Exchange will be open for the transaction of business in about an hour."

But the Bell Exchange never opened for business. Instead of Señor Don Alexandro's greasy profile looming into view, a hundred or so of the natives burst upon the scene, and we were promptly smothered under several tons of somewhat rancid-smelling humanity.

The Kid got a blow on the head from a machete, Watkins' nose was spread over his face most artistically, and if my features looked as they felt, I must have presented a horrible appearance. The little Priest and the Gobernador ranged us up and took a good look at us by the light of the camp fire, which one of the natives had coaxed into a blaze, and I must admit that the company known as the High Fore-headed Ensemblee of Yankee Bell Ringers seemed to be decidedly out of tune.

They brought our possessions out for inspection, and when they uncovered the bell they set up an anthem in mixed voices that must have loosened some of the snow-capped peaks in the immediate vicinity. Then the Gobernador handed down his opinion of the case. He called us villains, robbers, brigands, petty larceny scoundrels and grand larceny free-booters for a good half hour, and ended by calling upon the little Priest to excommunicate us on the spot, and if that little Father wasn't an orator in that line of goods, I never heard one.

"I've slept through a good many sermons," Watkins afterwards said to me, "but when that little expounder of divine injunctions informed the congregation that he thought us fully capable of stealing the Lord's supper along with consecrated church bells, he held my undivided attention to the very last word."

After the Priest the voice of the people was heard, solo and in chorus. They called us everything, from pigs to imported salt-pork and bacon, and the indignation of one little native overflowed to the extent of attempting to slap the Kid's face for laughing at him. Unfortunately for that native, they had neglected to bind the Kid's feet, and he promptly kicked the native into the blazing camp fire and jumped on him. In retaliation for this outrage they gave us another general mauling and then marched us to the village with music by the captured church bell. When we reached the town we had to run the gauntlet of the women and children, and in justice to the fair ones I will say that none of them stuttered perceptibly in their speeches of welcome to the illustrious strangers. The procession wound up at the calaboose, a very crude and uncomfortable habitation, even for South American architecture, but it seemed like Home, Sweet Home to me. After we had untangled ourselves we held a council of war, for if one could judge anything by general appearances things certainly looked like war.

"That damned Greaser has put a dent in my self-esteem that I'll never be able to smooth out;" remarked the Kid after we had inspected our new quarters and found ourselves hopelessly entrapped. "I thought all along that we were treasuring a gold-brick when he was regaling us with that Spanish bell chime, and now there isn't a burro in all this broad land of burros who couldn't match his intellect against ours with fair chances of winning out."

"I don't quite understand it yet," said Watkins, thoughtfully. "I know we have been buncoed, but I can't wool the particulars."

"Well," replied the Kid, "it is just this way: While we were waiting for the return of Señor Don, he and his partner stole the bell and got away with it; then his partner gave the alarm and put the natives on our trail. They discover us with the goods, and there you are. While we are languishing here in jail Señor Don Alexandro is probably engaged in moulding the bell into bricks for easy transportation, and smiling to himself—Oh, how he must smile to himself! We were brought along solely to entertain the natives while he got out of the country with the plunder."

Well, they rang that bell throughout the long night, and the next morning the Gobernador, Priest and villagers waited upon us en masse, and to make sure that we would understand all the good things they had in store for us, they brought along a young lady who spoke English, and who was to act as interpreter. The Gobernador promised us all kinds of hell in this world, while the little Priest assured us that he would see to it that the same treatment would be continued in the world to come. It was all very edifying, but when the little black-eyed interpreter started in to translate, it came near finishing us. She not only carved every word before releasing it, but also hand-painted a great many of them.

"Señores Americanos," she began, dispassionately, "you steal ze bell; Ah! ze church bell. Why for you steal ze bell? Zere is no so great sin as to steal ze church bell. Why for you no steal ze sheep, ze cow or ze burro? You can eat him, but ze church bell — Por Dios! you no can eat him — he is for ze music. Ze Gobernador, he send you to ze prison — ze calaboose — and when you die, ze good Padre, he send you to Inferno. Caramba! but ze Americanos — ze puercos who steal ze church bell, has ze hot time in ze old town — comprende?"

This was a little too much for Watkins. He broke into a great haw, haw! and slapped a dignified native in a dirty poncho, so violently on the back, that the native swallowed a cigarette which he happened to be smoking at the time. Of course this act on the part of Watkins started a small-sized riot, in the midst of which the Kid snatched a rifle from one of the guards and let go a shot through the roof. In ten seconds we had that jail to ourselves. The little Priest was the last to leave, and we thought he intended to remain as our spiritual advisor, but he merely held back to cover the retreat of his frightened flock. As he passed out he made an attempt to close the door, but the Kid thoughtfully inserted the butt end of the rifle in the jamb. Then the little divine put his back against the door and tried to keep us in by main strength, while shouting lustily for assistance. He had plenty of grit but was a trifle shy on avoirdupois, so when we pushed the door open and stepped out into the sunlight, the doughty little chap picked himself up and walked off disgusted, after passing us a few hot ones of the Hell-fire and brimstone brand.

The Kid was for making a break and trusting to luck to get away, but while we were deliberating we noticed the muzzles of several rifles protruding from different windows in the neighborhood, so we stepped back under cover. Ten minutes later who should come marching across the plaza but our little interpreter, flying a tiny white handkerchief as a flag of truce. Watkins grinned like an idiot in anticipation of another chapter of pied English, but the Kid seemed to be fascinated by the dauntless bit of femininity who walked with the dignity of a queen, and looked every inch an empress. She walked right up to the jail door with black eyes flashing, and head thrown well back on her shoulders, and opened the engagement at five paces.

"Ze Gobernador, he sends by me his compliments for ze Merry Christmas and ze Happy New Year, also would ze gentlemen who have steal ze church bell please for to capitulate."

"One moment;" said the Kid, bowing like a diplomat, "why were we molested last night, and imprisoned in this vile hole? We have injured none of your people, neither have we stolen your church bell. We came here with a countryman of yours who said he was going to present his native village with a bell—we brought the bell from Ariquipa, remember,—and if any one stole your bell, he did it. I'll admit that circumstances are against us,—but would the señorita believe that we would commit such a sin?"

The Kid bowed his best, and the señorita smiled, showing her pretty teeth, and blushing her rosy cheeks into a deeper shade of crimson. Then she shook her head sorrowfully, while her dark eyes flashed with the Simon-pure brand of feminine indignation.

"I believe ze Señor;" she said, impulsively, "and will tell ze Gobernador zat he is ze great insane, caramba! he is ze great brute to believe his eyes when he see zem. I would believe ze Señor—ze gentleman Americano—if I know he tell ze lie!"

Very daintily she gave her hand to the Kid, who kissed the little fingers like a courtier, then with a slight bow to each of us she retired. In half an hour she was back again with white linen bandages for the Kid's head and cigarettes and tortillas for all of us. She had spoken to the Gobernador, and if we would deliver the rifle and follow her she would conduct us to the Hall of Justice, where we could prove our innocence and regain our liberty.

The Kid passed the rifle to her without a moment's hesitation, and we all followed her to that celebrated Hall of Justice. The moment the Gobernador and his natives saw that we were unarmed they actually clubbed each other to get a whack at us. We fought, bit, kicked and gouged but all to no purpose, for they simply inundated us, and if it hadn't been for the little Priest they would have been kicking us yet. As it was, each of us had several ribs straightened out before the little chap could cuff his way to our rescue and read his countrymen a lecture on international courtesies governing the conduct of belligerents. Then they bound us hand and foot, chucked us in the calaboose and placed a double guard at the door.

"Well, I'll be damned!" remarked Watkins, coughing up a part of a 'dobe brick, which a native had crushed on his features; "if this isn't a country for your whiskers. My confidence in human nature has received a compound fracture, and if anybody ever mentions Greaser to me again — either male or female — I'll get skeptical some pronto. Now, who would have thought that pretty little angel would deliberately lead us into a mess like this?"

"If you insinuate," said the Kid, "that the Angel deliberately betrayed us, I'll ram my boot down your throat, for I think I can reach your face if I stretch a little. No, sir! the Angel is the only friend we have in this neck of the woods, although the little Priest did the magnificent, too, and if ever I have the opportunity of dropping a four-bit piece into his contribution box, I'll do it without a single regret. But say! the way those fellows bound us is a revelation to me. It's some kind of a burro hitch, and quite appropriate, so far as I can butt into the main channel of facts. Oh! but we are a constellation of bright ones, we are! Those Englishmen in Ariquipa skinned us to a finish and at the same time they were feeding us all that brain pap. 'Such deuced long-headed chaps, don't ye know' and all that. Why, blast me bloomin' blinkers, we haven't the sense nature allows geese. Then that Greaser — Oh, I say ! there must be considerable fiction about this brainy American business we have been circulating about ourselves — at least I could name several individual cusses who have been tried and found wanting."

Well, we growled and kicked and tugged at our cords all day, for things began to look serious, but the burro hitches held good. Just before dark the guards brought water, and examined our hands and feet to assure themselves that the cords had not slipped. Then they commended us to sweet dreams and left us. Sometime before midnight the door opened softly and — presto — we all felt the presence of a divinity. Sure enough it was the Angel and a Chiqua Indian servant. In two minutes we were all stretching free limbs, with Watkins chanting praises of the Angel under his breath. They had bound and gagged the guards, and as we passed out into the cool night air we gave each of them a couple of good ones as a parting souvenir. We would have put in a few more agreeable moments about them,—for we felt that we had a kick coming—but we were afraid of displacing the gags and raising a disturbance, so we left them and followed our deliverers to where our mules were staked out close to the trail.

And our little group made a very pretty picture out there in the crisp, clear moonlight above the timber line—a picture that impressed even Watkins—for if there is anything that brings the soul to the surface it is a touch of free, bold, unfettered mountain scenery after a short sojourn in a South American calaboose. And the Angel—well, she looked good even in the dark; but by moonlight she certainly stood alone. She watched the Kid and breathed deep, and when she passed us our arms her thin lips quivered.

"I have do my best," she said softly; "but it is so little—so small ze service I hesitate to mention him. My Indian here he vill show you ze trail so you cannot lose him. It is ze old Inca trail to Mollenda and little used. In Mollenda you may take ze big ship to your own country, and zere, perhaps you may zink in your generosity zat ze people of ze Latin race are not all vile, for zere is one who have turned from her people to give her hand, her little help, to ze stranger."

She passed the Kid a purse of money and we could see the tear-drops on her dark eyelashes as she turned to go back to the village. But for once the Kid was deaf to the golden tinkle and blind to the beauties of the yellow boys. He wasn't going to pass up that 120 pound nugget of Simon-pure so easily, so he took both of her little hands in his own and started the argument.

"You will come with us," said the Kid; "with me — and we will be married by the first priest we can draft into our service."

She shook her head, but the long sobs told the tale of love that nestled in her warm little heart.

"Listen," resumed the Kid, "if you return, I go back also, for it will be a hell upon earth to you, now that you have assisted us to escape. But, Heaven or Hell, I share it with you."

For a moment she gazed fixedly at the Kid and hesitated, then the Kid uncorked some of his perfumed Castelláno and anointed that small female therewith some copious. It must have been an edition de luxe tale of love he spun to her, for at the finish she just dropped into his arms and clung there like a fixture. When the expedition was ready to start the Kid helped the Angel to mount his own mule, tossed the provisions off the spare animal, and attempted to ride on the pack saddle.

"It's all right," whispered Watkins to me, "although it might seem odd to an outsider, but to tell the honest truth I wouldn't give a whoop in hell for a brand of love that would take the necessaries of life into consideration for a second."

But as Watkins and myself were not in love, we gathered up the provisions, and what we couldn't pack on the Indian we divided between us. The next morning at breakfast the infatuated ones ate with as much relish as though Cupid had personally superintended the bill of fare, which goes to prove that although love may be blind, it generally stands pat on appetite.

We reached Mollenda without serious mishap. Watkins and I bossed the Indian en route, the Kid bossed us, while the Angel bossed the whole camp. I don't remember ever having seen two young people so hopelessly, helplessly entangled in love's meshes as were the Angel and the Kid. Each would X-ray into the soul of the other for a half hour at a time — turn about, then gaze away off into space like a pair of Raphael's Cherubs for another half hour.

"Why for you call su compañero 'ze Kid,' asked the Angel, with many blushes. "Is it zat he has ze temperament of ze sheep, ze lamb or ze goat zat you call him ze kid?" Oh, no;" replied Watkins, promptly, "it's on account of his youth. He is so young, you know; so young and innocent."

"Ah! so innocent;" she murmured, "so young and innocent. I like him — ze name — very much — ze Kid — Kidito."

Then she went back with another search warrant into the innermost recesses of the Kid's soul, while Watkins got to the lee of a big boulder and chortled like an infant over a fresh bottle of milk.

At Mollenda the Kid lost no time in hunting up a priest and getting married. We had a quiet little wedding breakfast and Watkins and I drank to the health of the young couple so often and so copiously that we were sick for a week. And at this point the plot thickened; a big black cloud struck the horizon of our pilgrimage, and the barometer of our fortunes dove into the dregs.

We were too late to catch the coast steamer and were afraid to wait for the next one, so we bargained with the captain of a sailing vessel to land us at Panama. Panama was not a particularly healthy climate to be heading for just at that time, but with that confounded church-bell affair ding-donging from one end of the country to the other, we just had to get out of Peru. Electricity travels very slowly in that country, but quite frequently it has been known to overtake a crippled burro expedition.

When we embarked on the Gull-wing (her name should have been "Submarine" for she was under water half the time) it looked to us like a case of wet feet throughout the passage. Then when we got a glimpse of the crew the next morning we all came to the conclusion that the Gull-wing would have to go down some pronto if she sank before we had our throats cut. For the crew of the Gull-wing was a hard looking formation — in fact, one might have raked Davy Jones's locker from one end of the Spanish main to the other with little hope of being able to gather so choice an assortment of piratical-looking ruffians — while the captain just fluttered the blue ribbon in the face of the whole crew when it came to the pure buccaneer cut of feature. The fact that the captain was an American did not help matters, for when an American goes wrong he generally goes the limit in cussedness.

"I don't like them, grouped, or as individuals," said the Kid; "but if they cut our throats it will be for the pure love of the game and not for the money in it, for after the wedding festivities and the passage money, our exchequer is simply a hollow mockery."

But the financial situation didn't appear to disturb the Kid a particle, for "love soars on buoyant wing" and if he could but land the Angel and himself ashore somewhere — anywhere — he was perfectly satisfied.

The second day out the captain approached our little group and began to outline the situation.

"Now, I don't want to alarm you, gentlemen," he opened up as a preliminary; "but I hope you are all armed."

"Two pistols in each hand," replied the Kid promptly; "and if there is any slaughtering to be done just recommend us."

"Very good," said the captain; "for I expect a little trouble with those dogs forward before the voyage is ended. You see, it's a little trouble left over from the down trip. They mutinied and attempted to desert the ship in a body, and instead of putting them in irons, I put most of them into splints. The halo of divinity never did play very vividly around any of their saintly brows, but after I went through them with a belaying pin and a six-shooter, there wasn't the making of a respectable mug in the whole bunch. They may try to scuttle the ship, for I wouldn't trust one of them from the first officer to the cook. The cook is the ringleader, and he is just bilge-water mean—too poisonous for shark meat. At least the sharks have never tackled him, although I have kicked him overboard in every port from Panama to Valparaiso. He fed me rat-poison on the down trip until civilized seasoning doesn't seem to taste right, and I'm waiting now for his head to mend a bit, and when he shakes out a few of the reefs I took in his scalp, I'll put a good-sized dent in his intellect, if the stew pans hold out. And so, gentlemen, I am going to depend upon you in an emergency, and if one poor American isn't worth four of those lubbers, I'll drink bilge-water hereafter. There are four of us besides the little bell ringer in the after-cabin, who is too sick to count on, but if anything should happen I suppose we would have to take him."

"What do you mean by a bell ringer?" inquired the Kid, getting wise immediately.

"I don't know much about him," replied the captain, "only that he is taking a bell to Panama as a present to his native village. I guess he is a religious old duck, for he keeps the bell right with him in his state-room. And now, gentlemen, you understand the situation, so you must not be surprised if you are called at any hour of the day or night to take to the small boats."

"Oh, it's Señor Don Alexandro, all right;" said the Kid as soon as we were alone, "and if we don't get that bell yet, I'll join the captain on the bilge-water proposition."

We held a consultation and decided to stay with the captain. He was not a prepossessing specimen of humanity, but he was not quite so numerous as the crew, so we chose the lesser evil.

"It is no doubt a case of jobbing the underwriters," remarked the Kid, "and the captain fires or scuttles the vessel himself and blames it on the crew. They are a lot of psalm singers compared to the captain, so we go into the game with our eyes open and trust neither captain nor crew farther than we can see them."

At two o'clock the next morning we were all on deck waiting for the grand finale. The Angel was a little pale, but she nestled up close to the Kid and seemed to be as much at home as any of us. We were all a little nervous, I'll admit, for the Pacific Ocean is a big, wet affair to sink into — but Watkins opened up a can of his sage-brush philosophy and things began to look more cheerful.

"I've seen the time," said he, "when a situation of this kind would be just what you would ask Santa to bring you for your Christmas stocking. Take, for instance, a case where the sand of the desert is flying so thick that you have to take three pulls at the atmosphere to get a spoonful of air — all the water holes a long way beyond the horizon — your canteen empty since the day before yesterday, and your very soul shriveled up and parched with heat until you can almost hear it crack — why, the Pacific Ocean would seem a small affair when it came to a case of quenching your thirst. But just at present I would like a small dash of sand storm in mine, but if I can't get it, and it must be a case of an over-dose of moisture, I'll console myself with the thought that a watery grave saves a good many people from being hung."

Watkins' last remark was intended to be a fling at the captain, who was listening to him, but you couldn't jar that personage with any little personal innuendo.

"No immediate cause for alarm," said he, "and for the sake of the madam I hope you will all keep under cover. Those hounds scuttled the vessel, all right, and we are sinking, but she'll float for several hours yet. If you have any valuables — "

"I have all the valuables in the hollow of my arm at present," said the Kid, giving his new wife what Watkins called one of those delicate, almost imperceptible honeymoon hugs.

"Very good," said the captain, with a hyena grin, and a wink that would cause anything within pistol range to shudder; "you just stand pat and wait for me. I think I can handle any insubordination on the part of the crew, but I wish to make sure that I have the moral support of a couple of extra pistol flashes." Then he bowed, turned on his heel and left us.

The next minute the order "all hands on deck" rang from end to end of the vessel. And the captain certainly looked all right as he faced the mob of cut-throats that came tumbling up from the forecastle and surged around him. He looked to belong to the same litter as the hell hounds who had answered his call; but when he glared down into their turbulent throats and brought the yellow of abject fear to their faces, one realized that he had been tempered in a fiercer fire.

There was plenty of energy in that early morning marine view, potential energy mostly, but one could feel it, and we also felt the cold chills "doing a hot foot" along our spinal columns.

For a few seconds we could not tell how things would turn out, and in the excitement of the moment the Kid whispered to us to cut loose if they downed the captain, but just then the captain spoke and shattered the suspense.

"Listen," he said, quietly; "if I had one man in this crew that I could trust — one small cabin-boy whom I could depend upon — I would sail this old tub into Panama in spite of you all. You have succeeded in scuttling the ship and judging by the way she is making water, you did a very good job. All I hope is that you didn't start a fire in her hold, for let me tell you there are twenty tons of black powder and a million rounds of ammunition stowed under those hatches."

I have heard speeches — both Fourth of July and political — but they were not in it with the captain's little talk, when it came to a question of voltage. It might not have been quite so noticeable, but just about that time we began to smell the smoke as it oozed up through the cracks of the defective deck and hatches. We closed in around the Angel and the silence was so pronounced that I could plainly hear Watkins rattling a pocketful of cartridges. For a minute we stood like specters—a phantom crew—then the mob shook itself loose from the spell and with a roar and a growl made a wild rush for the boats. In the midst of the uproar Señor Don Alexandro came tumbling out of his state-room, and rushing up to the captain, frantically besought him to save the bell.

"Oh, damn your old bell," replied that functionary, impatiently; "no time for church music now. When that powder gets in its work you will have music that will raise you off your feet."

Watkins and I took the Don in hand and rushed him into the first boat lowered. In the excitement I doubt very much if he recognized us, although the way in which Watkins foot-balled him over the deck would have brought joy to the soul of a quarter-back. I think he must have sprained a toe when he attempted to kick a goal; at any rate I felt a great pity for the Don whenever I saw Watkins limp. After transferring the Don, we went to his state-room, lugged the bell up on deck, and hoisted it into the captain's boat.

"No hurry," said the captain, coming over to us, "you have plenty of time to stow away your valuables, for that little gunpowder talk of mine was all fiction. I thought it the quickest way to get rid of the brutes, for they looked ugly; — so we'll wait for a calm sea and then take to the small boat. But what is this?"

"Oh, that's Señor Don Alexandro's church bell," replied Watkins. "He stole it from us in the interior of Peru, no doubt thinking that it contained precious metal, but aside from its archeological value it is comparatively worthless."

"No use lumbering the boat with any such old trash," said the captain, "so toss it overboard as music for the mermaids."

"It goes with us," said Watkins, firmly, and we are going all right." The captain scowled, and hesitated a moment as though he intended to argue the point, but Watkins had a way of looking straight ahead when he called a bluff, so the captain let the matter drop.

We were picked up by the Lena, bell and all, and landed safely in San Francisco. The captain disappeared in the fog and that was the last we saw of him. Watkins and I talked the matter over and agreed to take the Angel in with us as an equal partner in the precious bell, giving her a fourth interest therein, but she shook her pretty head and said she would pray for us. I guess she had some sort of religious scruples in regard to that particular bell, and as the Kid had already picked up a few stray bits of matrimonial wisdom, he also refused to touch even a cent of the bell money.

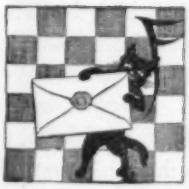
"Now I hope you'll have an attack of conscience also," said Watkins to me, "and refuse to touch that tainted church bell fund; then I'll take the whole wad and go back to South America and see the country by daylight. Caramba! for a slow lot they are certainly giving us a run for our money.

Well, to make assurance doubly sure, we chipped a small piece off the bell and had it assayed, and then Watkins deferred his trip to South America indefinitely, for what he had told the captain with regard to the bell was perfectly true — aside from its archeological value it wouldn't have brought any more than so much scrap-iron, so we turned it over to the Kid and the Angel and they presented it to one of the old missions. There was a very nice little article in the newspapers about it and that's about all we ever got out of the "Bell Exchange."

Watkins and I are still hunting "pockets" with Peru away off in the invisible distance. We may yet succeed in rounding up that Peruvian treasure-trove, but if we do we will have to eliminate all extraneous matter and adopt a more business-like method of procedure.

The Man Who Waited.*

BY JAMES DEE BALDWIN.



FOR the greater part of his life Ditmar Smoor had believed that he possessed the distinction of a name borne by no other mortal. He was naturally surprised when he saw his name in the title of a magazine story, and for days the Ditmar Smoor of flesh and blood was absorbed in the mystery. Where did the spurious Smoor originate?

At the table, at his desk, in church, on street, in the street cars — Smoor could be seen to rouse himself from a fit of abstraction only to become absorbed in the contemplation of a clipping.

His speculations were vague and unsatisfactory, but soon it dawned upon him that the author of the story about the other Smoor might possess the solution of the problem. Accordingly he addressed a letter to the author of "The Nemesis of Ditmar Smoor," in care of the publishers of the magazine, and in course of time, when he had almost given up hope, he received the following reply:

DEAR MR. SMOOR:

Your communication of some months since has followed me in my wanderings, and finally overtaken me, and I am glad to be able to furnish the information you request.

One Sunday afternoon, a little more than three years ago, I was sitting in the railroad station at Houston, Tex., waiting for a belated train, and occupying the tedium of waiting with a copy of the Sunday Post. On one of the local pages was a long list of advertised letters remaining uncalled for at the Houston post office, with a vague expectation of seeing my own name, or prompted by mere curiosity, I glanced down the names beginning with "S" and noticed the very unusual one — "Ditmar Smoor." It seemed to me so odd that I at once tore out the list, fortunately retaining the heading containing the date, and filed it among my notes and material for future stories.

About a year since I wrote the story that has attracted your attention, and used your unusual name, it has only recently been published.

I am glad that I still have the newspaper clipping among my notes, and herewith enclose it, hoping that it may prove to be of service to you. Very truly yours, BEVERLY STRANGE.

Smoor had no doubt that the advertised letter had been intended for him. It was evident from the fact of its being advertised that the envelope bore no return address. It would, therefore, go to the Dead Letter office at Washington, where it would be opened. If it contained the address as well as the name of the writer, it would be returned to her — Smoor felt sure it was She — or otherwise, after the expiration of a period of which he felt great doubt, be duly destroyed. He wrote to the Dead Letter office, fearing that there was but one chance in a thousand that anything would result.

As Smoor mailed his letter, his thoughts were of a girl, just budding into womanhood when he had last seen her. Was she still in existence? As he considered the possibility of her being lost to him forever, the despair in his eyes, the twitching of the mouth, the wistfulness of the patient face, all bore testimony to the depth of his regard for her from whom he had received no message in three long years. He had written the last letter in their correspondence. No reply had been received. He would not admit to himself that she had ignored his letter, though it contained something very vital to both. The letter that never came would some day reach him, he was convinced, and compensate for the weary years of waiting.

Three years previously, urgent business had called him out of town. He had telephoned to Bynsee, and she had promised to write to him during his absence, if it were possible. Each day of his absence he had inquired for mail, and day after day had assured himself that the letter would come to-morrow. Sick at heart, he returned home, and called at the girl's home for an explanation. There was no response to his ring, and the house seemed deserted. The girl and her mother, the neighbors said, had vanished in a night, making no farewells and leaving no clue to their destination. Further inquiry showed that their household effects had been sold to a local dealer, to whom the mother had stated that they were going to "break up housekeeping" and board with a friend. There the clues ended.

Smoor felt that he knew the cause of the mother's actions, and held the girl blameless. He believed that the daughter returned his love, though she had not confessed it. Of the elder woman's decided objection to his suit, entirely baseless, he was painfully aware. It was simply a case of mutual antipathy, which is rather more common than love at first sight.

But though one pair of eyes had frowned upon him, the younger smiled approval, and to Ditmar Smoor the letter that had not come was an actuality that would some day make clear the reasons for its long delay. Still, three years is a long time to wait for a letter, especially when the happiness of one's life depends upon it. Unless she were an actual prisoner, could she not have written at least a line? Perhaps —

Suddenly all speculations were set at rest for the time by a communication in Smoor's morning mail. The unstamped envelope bore the return card of the Dead Letter Office, and contained an unsigned, type-written sheet. In unmistakably feminine terms the writer stated that she was the clerk who, three years before, had handled a "dead" letter which the most casual reader must realize would be highly prized by its addressee. It had been mailed on a train, its envelope bore no return card, and its writer had given no address, signing only her first name.

The anonymous clerk then proceeded to say that, though it was her business to read thousands and thousands of miscarried letters every year, and she never paid any attention to unusual names, yet, in this instance, the peculiar name of Ditmar Smoor had dwelt in her memory in connection wth the language of the letter itself, which, she added, had impressed her as being the most tender and beautiful composition she had ever read. This odd communication concluded with these words:

"To have preserved the letter would have been a violation of the regulations governing this department — and a dutiful employee does not disregard an employer's rules."

The young man's heart sank as he reached the conclusion of the explanatory letter that did not explain, but in the manner of a man searching his pockets for something which he knows cannot be found, he again mechanically looked into the long "official" envelope, and drew out something which made his sinking heart bound with delirious joy. It was a letter, in Her well-known dainty hand, though written with a pencil stub on the back of his own letter — the one to which he had so long awaited an answer.

It said all that he had longed for — and more — and he blessed the sympathetic woman clerk upon whom the touching words had made so fortunate an impression. But while it set his heart at rest concerning the most important thing, another mystery remained for him to unravel, for Bynsee's affectionate letter gave him also grave cause for apprehension, for it told him that the girl so dear to him was probably immured beyond his reach, and that he must endeavor to come to her rescue.

"Mother will not divulge our destination, but I feel sure that I am to be placed in the Ursuline Academy at El Paso, and that means virtual imprisonment. Come to me as soon as you can."

He lost not a moment in taking a train for El Paso, cursing his own stupid absent-mindedness the while, as his own letter had revealed to him the cause of the whole unfortunate misunderstanding: — He had inadvertently given Bynsee the address of Houston, where he had been intending to stop, instead of Orange, which was his destination on that unlucky business trip!

The impatient lover's journey to El Paso, and his call at the convent were really more expeditious than they seemed to him, for he was intolerant of the slightest delay. Never had train or carriage seemed so slow. After a long and torturing interview with the Mother Superior, Ditmar Smoor's insistence finally prevailed, his card was taken, and, after an age of suspense, a sad-looking young woman in deepest black entered. Her face lighted, and never again became so sad, as she exclaimed: "Ditmar!"

"Bynsee!" cried the welcome visitor.

"Why didn't you answer my letter? I thought you cared for me!" faltered the girl.

That Ditmar cared he gave instant proof in a demonstration quite shocking to the Mother Superior, but eminently satisfactory to the Novice she was about to lose, as was also Smoor's explanation.

"You have not taken the veil?" was his first question.

"No, I put on black out of respect to Mother — but I was really mourning for the Man Who Waited."

Ladsby's Lost Link.*

BY DON MARK LEMON.

HE nerve of the foreigner!" cried Ladsby, glaring at the newspaper he had been eagerly scanning. "Of all the brass-riveted cheek, this is the limit! What, me go lose the other link! Me!"

"What is wrong, dear?" timidly questioned Ladsby's wife, alarmed by the expletive outburst of her husband.

Ladsby glared from the paper to his wife. "I told you I lost one of my diamond cuff-links last evening, on the way home from the office. I wouldn't have taken a run for assemblyman for it. Well, read that!" He thrust the paper at his wife, pointing to a notice among those of the lost-and-found column.

As hastily as she could, Mrs. Ladsby read the following cheerful advertisement:

> DIAMOND CUFF-LINK.—If the gentleman who lost a diamond cuff-link at the corner of H and 6th St. last evening will kindly lose the mate at the same corner, near the hydrant on the south side, between five and six o'clock this evening, the finder of the first link will esteem it a high personal favor.

"Well?" demanded Ladsby, fairly quivering with choler.

"Well!" timidly echoed his wife, who was so twisted by the unique advertisement that she could not quite collect her thoughts. "Well!"

"Is that all you have to say?" gasped Ladsby.

Mrs. Ladsby smiled meekly. "It's so singular, I really don't know what to say," she sighed.

But Ladsby did. At least he knew what he wished to say, and he said it noisily.

"I'll lay for the fellow! I'll lose the other link, and the foreigner who picks it up will be the Indian who put in this notice. And when I catch him — " Ladsby's fist came down on the table like a sack of meeting-houses.

" Don't get yourself arrested," plead the wife. " It just may be his way of appointing a place where he can return the other link."

" Not much ! " cried Ladsby. " And if it is, I won't be publicly trifled with ! " He glared at the cuckoo clock. " I wish it were five now ! Good-by ; you needn't look for me to-night till you see me, but when you do see me, there 'll be two cuff-links with me and a dead Indian in town ! " He hurried into the hallway for his hat, and left the house in anything but an agreeable mood.

Mrs. Ladsby drew a deep breath of relief, then one of dread, — relief that her husband had taken his huff to the office, and dread for the evening.

" If he would only meet the man quietly," she sighed, " he might get the lost link back, and not run any danger of offending him. I'm sure it's only the way the gentleman has of returning the link."

She began to gather up the breakfast things, when a sudden idea made her sit down quickly. Why should she not be at the corner of H and 6th streets at five o'clock and, if bad went to worse, prevent her husband from committing an outrage upon the person of the writer of the advertisement?

Her resolve made her contented the whole day, and at five o'clock she reached the corner where the denouement was to take place and, crossing to the north side, she found a little safety station between a street light and a telegraph pole, where she could seem to be watching for a car while she waited for her husband to connect with catastrophe.

At five minutes after the hour Ladsby turned the corner. He was walking briskly, and his anger made him step high. He crossed to the hydrant referred to in the advertisement, and openly removing the diamond link from his left cuff, dropped it upon the sidewalk at the foot of the hydrant.

A boy was seated astride the iron plug, engaged at swinging his legs and whistling shrilly. At least it seemed that a boy was seated on the hydrant, but as Ladsby dropped the valuable link the lithe, youthful form leapt from its perch, snatched up the treasure, and disappeared around the corner into a near-by cellar-way with such amazing suddenness that Ladsby for a moment stood motionless on the spot, believing the figure a fallacy of vision. Then, with a shout, he made after the disappearing point of boy. He took the cellar stairs at a leap, landed in a puddle at the bottom, gathered himself up with a panted oath, and rushed forward headlong into the walled vacancy before him.

Mrs. Ladsby hurried over and peered down the stairs, and watched and waited in great trepidation, but as a familiar form appeared below, she hastily mingled with the passers-by and returned home. A little later her husband arrived. His clothes were muddy, and bore every evidence to their wearer having lately crawled or attempted to crawl through a narrow exit barred with barbed wire. He had a cut over his right eye, and was cuffless.

Ladsby made for the bathroom, to efface the marks of his unsuccessful gymnastics. "I fell off a street car," he lucidly explained to his wife.

Mrs. Ladsby said nothing. She loved her husband and was sorry for him, though he had lied like an extra, but the next morning, when she picked up the paper that Ladsby had been reading at the breakfast table and discovered a corner torn away, she became curious and ran over and borrowed a neighbor's paper. The torn corner, among other lost-and-found notices, contained the following:

> DIAMOND CUFF-LINKS.—I wish to thank the gentleman for kindly losing the mate to the pair of diamond cuff-links. The link I found so pleased me that I could not be happy till I had got the mate. Now I have them both, and I would not part with them for two hundred dollars. Thanks.

Mrs. Ladsby thought it over.

A Love-Token's Oracle.*

BY J. S. WOODHOUSE.

NOT until almost noon had the sun climbed high enough to peep over the great skyscrapers and cast its warm light through a dirty window into a little attic room that betrayed the penury and solitude of the occupant.

An old white-haired man, poorly clad, sat by a crude wooden table that was strewn with the remnants of a meagre meal. His head lay upon the bare boards, and stretched before it were two emaciated hands whose outstanding vessels disclosed the sluggish course of life that flowed within.

The absence of any chair, save that upon which the sleeper sat, showed plainly enough the loneliness that, with the pleasures and pains of eighty years, had been forgotten in a brief respite of sleep. An old cupboard on the wall, a narrow bed in the corner, a few pegs on the door hung with a few old clothes, and a wash bowl and pitcher on a box were the only necessaries. The one apparent luxury was a single shelfworn book upon the cupboard.

Aroused by the warmth, the sleeper raised his head and, beholding the sun, said feebly, "Ah, old friend, you're back again." He tottered to the window and looked at the great hands of a tower clock and sighed, "But later than usual. A little later each day. Even you grow tired of charity to an old man."

Streets far below were teeming with life. Men, who looked like pigmies, hurried in every direction. Trams, wagons, and automobiles struggled for passage. The city seemed a seething caldron of commercial prosperity. Every day the old man looked upon that picture, and with new hopes went down. But he was jostled aside by ambitious young men. With difficulty did he escape death before the hurrying vehicles, and from the selfish mass he retreated with a sigh up the long stairs to this, his only home.

"Why, old world," he murmured, "am I denied a place along the fighting line? I paid my tuition with years of study in your universities, served my apprenticeship in your hard grind of daily routine, and receive as compensation only misery and hunger. Ah, your debt is unpaid. You owe me better. It's mine, and I shall have it."

The old man straightened his bent form, held up his trembling head, and took a single stride from the window, when there was a loud rapping at the door. His palsied hand went into his trousers pocket and turned it out empty. He relapsed and breathed softly until he heard the retreating footsteps of his landlord. He supported himself by the table while his eyes ran appealingly around the little room until they fell upon the lone book.

"Must you, too, go for bread?" he asked the inanimate object. "One by one they have gone — poetry, philosophy, religion, yes, even the Bible before you. I am loth to part with you — the link to the sweetest dream of my life, the symbol of love. Your leaves were turned by the fingers of the dearest woman in the world — her whom I loved, but did not win." And the old man sunk into a chair in a reminiscent mood.

"Mary and I hunted flowers as children, studied together in school as mates, clasped hands in youth, and parted at twenty-five. I loved her all the time, but she received my attentions with such frank expectancy I could never prod myself over the brotherly line.

"And you, old book, were the only gift I ever laid within her hands. We went through you page by page together.

"Then John came. He was my friend, and a noble man. He loved her too, and asked her to marry him. She came to me to know what to do, and I told her he was a prince among men. She accepted him. Then, old book, just the night before the wedding, she called me to her and gave you back to me. I didn't want you then, but she said it must be so. Years rolled by, and she died. I never have had courage to look within you since. But if we must part — " Tears choked the old man as he arose and lifted the dust-covered book down. Tenderly he laid it on the table, and devoutly seated himself before it. He turned but a few pages when there dropped out a faded lavender envelope, the seal of which was unbroken. He lifted it to the sun. There was a letter within. With trembling fingers he tore open the long belated message from his sweetheart. He nervously adjusted an old pair of glasses and, holding the writing in the sunlight, slowly read:

MY DEAR GEORGE—

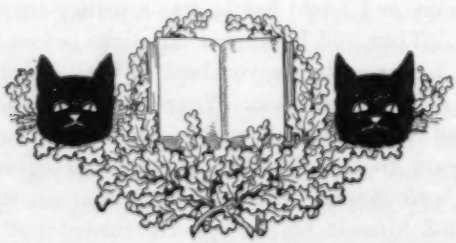
This is the parting of our ways. We have enjoyed many years of life together. I had hoped for many more such. Your feelings toward me have not been disguised. My soul has responded to your every feeling. It has not been my place to speak. Perhaps you have never believed I cared. Your one fault, one injustice to yourself and to me, has been that you never asked. Even had you spoken to-night I would have broken every other tie for you.

As I bow to my fate, dear friend, to go my way while you turn along another path, let me point to you your one seeming weakness in life. The world is full of richness that is yours for but the asking. Don't be content with what is thrust upon you. Knock loudly at the door of your opportunities. Crush some of your pride, for we have divine promise in the words "Ask and ye shall receive." Still your true friend I remain—

"Mary, Mary, you loved me?" The old man struggled to his feet. "Lost, lost, the sweetness of life for the want of asking. Ah, I see it all now." And he staggered to the window. "I never asked, and I am poor, miserably poor — without love, friends or food," and the old man surveyed himself pitiably.

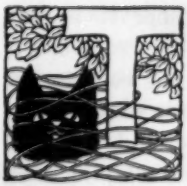
He started toward the door with determination written on his face, but paused half way. His countenance lighted up with an inspiring thought. He lifted his arms above his head, and turning his eyes upward, cried, "O God. I ask Thee — break these chains of poverty."

He listened attentively as he let himself down carefully into his chair. A smile twitched the corners of his mouth as his head slowly went down upon the table. The last rays of sunlight in the room flickered upon the white hair and then left the attic in gloom. There was a loud knocking at the door. It brought no response from within. The chains were broken.



The Phantom Headlight.*

BY J. E. SMITH.



THESE are days of big things. In Hamlet's time people were satisfied with a ghost that looked like a man — and had hollow eyes — and was clothed in white and flapped his transparent draperies, or stretched forth a stern and warning arm. In these days anything that looks like a human being makes no impression. A ghost must be frightful by reason of its proportions. It must be tremendous and dynamic.

Take a phantom train.

There is something swift-moving and irresistible about its flash of fire that stirs the imagination of the dullest — stands the hair on end and sends creepy goose-flesh sensations down the spine.

Of course there are stout-hearted railroaders who will pooh-pooh the idea of such apparitions, and who will insist that every mystery of the rail has a natural explanation.

But when three safe and sane engineers, within the space of less than one hour, see looming up before them with flashing headlight, a ghost engine that immediately melts into thin air, there is something so supernatural, so inexpressibly unreal about it, that we are forced to attribute it to the spirit world — at least until we are shown otherwise.

Take the three engineers I have named — "Pud" Butterbaugh, Jake Schneider, and Mat Wolfe. All of them stolid, unresponsive, and unimaginative Dutch.

A ghost, picking this trio for experimental effect or other purpose, shows a lack of knowledge of human nature; as nothing but the weirdest kind of hobgoblin flapdoodle would move any of them. It is the province of this narrative, however, to relate that they were moved, precipitously and unceremoniously moved, and without forethought or calculation — that all of them unloaded, and struck the grass line, and turned turtle into the ditch at exactly the same spot, all within the brief interval of about thirty minutes.

It happened at Hiner's Cut.

Hiner's Cut, in reality, is not much of a cut, ten feet at the deepest. It is at the top of the hill, and from there it is easy down grade for a few miles to the west side yard. The road enters the cut with a short but sharp curve, so that nothing can be seen beyond. At the highest point on the right-hand side of the right-of-way there is an old cemetery, long since deserted, and now overgrown with weeds and vines, and wherein a cluster of pine trees have kept long and faithful sentry.

The stones and markers are of flat marble and have fallen over, or are leaning at an awkward angle. It is a lonely and desolate place, and naturally a ghost would lurk, spring out or stalk forth from this particular spot.

On the night of the apparition there were three sections of No. 71, and running close together. Each had a full tonnage.

Pud Butterbaugh was pulling the first section and was not going to exceed twenty miles an hour up the grade to Hiner's Cut. The night was very dark and Pud was looking straight ahead. Suddenly, right before him, a headlight burst from the cut.

One convulsive tug at the lever, a shout of warning to the fireman, and Pud jumped.

He landed properly, somersaulted into the ditch, gathered himself with a mighty effort, and crawled and rolled to the right-of-way fence. Every second he expected the crash, and he had presence of mind enough to get himself as far away from the wreckage as possible. He brought up against the barb wire, and could go no farther. Then he raised his head and looked.

His engine was in the cut by this time and the train was slowing down. A moment later the head brakeman swung off and came running back.

Pud was now on his feet.

"Are you hurt, Pud?" cried the brakeman, holding up his lantern.

Pud groaned. "Did they hit?" he asked faintly.

"Hit! what are you talking about, Pud? There wasn't anything there."

"What!" cried Pud. "Didn't you see 'em right on to us? Eh, didn't you see 'em?"

"You didn't hear 'em hit, did you?" asked the brakeman. "There wasn't anything ahead. You must have been asleep, Pud, and dreamed it. Let me help you up there."

Pud was not much hurt. He was dirty enough from the roll and his left arm was sprained. Outside of that he had made a very satisfactory landing. He got back into the cab.

"Didn't you see anything?" he asked half sulkily of the fireman.

"I wasn't looking out just then," replied the fireman. "But when you halloed I gave a glance ahead but didn't see anything. And by the time you had unloaded I didn't see anything else to do but put on the air. You shut off all right, Pud, but you forgot to put on the air. Thirty days for that!"

There was no levity in Pud's face. He got into his place and looked straight ahead in moody silence. He struck the down grade and let the train drift into the yard.

"What was wrong with you, anyway, Pud?" asked the brakeman when they came to a stop.

"You had better see a doctor, Pud," ventured the fireman. "You may not be hurt in any way, but—" he tapped himself suggestively on the head.

Pud made no reply. He got off with a limp.

"Boys, I wish you wouldn't say anything about this," said he. "But I'll be dummed if I can understand it. I wasn't asleep and I wasn't dreaming, and I'm not off in my noodle. I saw a headlight right before me in the cut—that's a cinch!"

"Hello, Pud!" said the Yardmaster, holding up his lantern, "What's the matter? Been unloading? I see you lit on your shoulder."

"Did you have an engine up at Hiner's Cut just before we got there?" asked Pud.

"Not this night," said the Yardmaster. "There hasn't been an engine out of the yard since 82 left here three hours ago."

"We met 82 at Loree," said Pud reflectively, "it wasn't them."

Railroad secrets are like murder, they will out. Pud was forced to narrate his experience, and he was compelled to admit that it must have been a trick of the imagination.

"Not on your life," said the head brakeman, scoffing at such a simple explanation.

"It's a ghost out of that old grave-yard and it dived straight at Pud on account of his past life. Next trip it will get him if he don't mend his ways."

"Pud probably got a reflection off his own nose," volunteered the fireman. "I've known it was coming for some time."

While these light-headed observations were being exchanged, second 71 came into the yard and the engine brought up opposite.

"Hello, Bill!" cried out the fireman to the yardmaster, "Get the stretcher, Jake's got a bad leg — may be broken. He can't stand on it."

They got the stretchers and assisted Jake out of the cab on to them.

Between moans of pain he said:

"I don't know what it was. I can't explain it. We were coming up the hill to Hiner's Cut and a headlight flashed right in my face. I thought we were in for it, all right. I yelled to the boys and put on the air and jumped. I lit pretty hard on that foot. I can't bear my weight on it."

"Dummed if I understand it," supplemented the fireman, "Jake wasn't asleep. He must have imagined it. There wasn't anything ahead of us. When Jake let out a yell I looked out quick, but before I knew what was up he was down and off and put on the air."

"That's an improvement on Pud," said the first brakeman. "He only shut off."

"This is no time for foolishness," said Pud. "I saw it and Jake saw it, and there is something there." Pud spoke with growing confidence. "I thought maybe I had imagined it. But when Jake sees it at the same place, that shows there is no imagination about it."

"It is certainly puzzling that both of you should have had the same experience," said the Yardmaster.

The talk became more serious. Various theories were advanced to account for the strange affair. Railroad men are not given to silly superstitions, and any intimation of ghosts or mention of the uncanny burial place with the circumstance was vigorously ridiculed.

The crews awaited the arrival of third 71 with a lively curiosity to learn if they had seen anything.

In due time it came in. The fireman and brakeman were standing in the gang-way.

"Say," cried out the latter, "'phone for a policeman. We got a crazy man in the cab. He's just had a head-end, and instead of dying at his post, he rolled out into the ditch and ruined his overalls."

Mat Wolfe, the engineer, poked his head out with a sheepish grin.

"Tell 'em about the ghost, Mat."

"A headlight flashed on me just as I was coming to Hiner's Cut, and I got off before they hit. That's all there is to it. I landed easy and I can't tell you anything more about it."

"You will never hear of him wearing a Carnegie medal," continued the brakeman. "He didn't warn us, and he didn't even shut off. We stood by the old tub, the fireman and me, and let 'em hit, and went to our deaths like men, only there wasn't anything doing. The only thing I regret is that we didn't keep on a coming and let Mat walk in. We would if we had known it was a case of 'willies' and he wasn't hurt any."

Mat crawled down, a little dirty and torn, but none the worse otherwise.

"I saw it," said he, "there's no question about it. It flashed out of the cut right ahead. Of course I unloaded — who wouldn't! If any of you can tell me anything about it I wish you would. I can't understand it, and it makes me feel queer."

There seemed to be no satisfactory explanation of the mystery. There were flippant remarks and banterings, talks of phantom trains and the like, and much wild speculation. There are always these when men are congregated and are stirred by some unusual event.

After all opinions, guesses and theories, one fact remained: Three engineers had seen a headlight close upon them at Hiner's

Cut. What they did, or how they acted, was entirely incidental, and had no relation whatever to the vital fact that there must have been something real in it to have fooled all three of them.

The headlight was there. That point was settled beyond dispute. A collision was imminent — absolutely no doubt about it. With all this established, the fact remained, and was known to all, that there was no engine there at all and had not been.

It was thrashed over in the talk and boiled down to this point: That the engine had been seen, but did not exist — and hard by was the abode of the dead, and the night was dark.

In explanation of any phenomena we go to the supernatural very reluctantly. It cannot be denied in this case that, after every possible explanation offered was shown to have been impossible, the talk of ghosts and phantom trains was received with some credulity. But there are always scoffers in every group, who stick close to cause and effect, and who insist that every mystery is a mystery only because we do not know all the facts.

The Yardmaster was one of these. He was keen to investigate the affair. Just as soon as the yard work permitted they loaded up the crews and ran up to Hiner's Cut on a switch engine.

They went by and came back, approaching the cut with the headlight as the 71's did, but nothing appeared. They did it again and again, without result. They explored the right of way and the adjacent territory. They knocked about among the tombs under the deep and gruesome shadows of the pines — but no ghost broke the stillness with a sepulchral voice or flashed a wizard eye. They returned to the yard.

There was now a touch of dawn in the east, announcing the approach of the great light that dissolves all phantoms and reveals all things in their true proportions.

They took Jake home and Pud and Mat went with him. They extended one another mutual assurance, and all their animated conversation and final conclusions were epitomized in one short expression of Pud's — "Don't it beat hell!"

Hiner's Cut is part of Section 27. Patrick Flynn, one of Ireland's truest sons, is foreman. He lives in a little settlement near the cut and by him lived Dennis Boyle and Maurice Murphy, who had worked for Pat many years.

One day Maurice, casting a sidewise glimpse at the face of fortune, beheld, instead of the customary frown, an expansive grin.

A relative died and left his wife $500 in cash. Thereupon he chafed at the yoke, and with fine celtic independence resented Patrick's authority. He threw down the shovel and pick and with high head and disdain and majestic step marched off Section 27 a free man.

It is known to all in this beloved land of democracy that, in spite of the Declaration of Independence and the intent of the founders, society has its gradations, or, as a newly arrived Irishman aptly put it — "Here a man's as good as any other man an' a dommed sight betther."

So that Maurice Murphy, in the full of his opulence, rather overshadowed the others, including Patrick Flynn, whose previous pre-eminence depended solely on his title of "Boss of Section 27."

Patrick did not take his dethronement graciously, but took umbrage at the airs of Murphy. He made broad and audible hints that at the end of two months Murphy would come crawling — mind you now, crawling — to him and beg for his old job back.

Mutual friends at once conveyed this pessimistic conjecture to Murphy, who raised his fist somewhat dramatically and hazarded a rejoinder that Pat Flynn would be wanting to borrow ten dollars of him before the month was out.

In this way the social amenities of the settlement were disturbed and readjusted, with the Murphys as the central figures.

Mr. Murphy purchased a phonograph for the entertainment of his friends and the prestige of his home.

Mrs. Murphy appeared in satin materials, rich, but varied in colors. Maggie Murphy, aged eighteen, burst forth in an empire gown with crêpe de chine and embroidery, silk fringe and loops of ribbon, and with a fine green satin hat, encircled by shaded plumes.

Pat Flynn, out on the section, by stress of strong inward emotion broke two shovel handles.

Then Murphy gave a reception to celebrate some convenient anniversary.

"Air ye goin', Pat?" asked Dennis Boyle.

"I am not!" replied Pat, digging deep in the gravel.

"Are you?"

"I am," said Dennis. "I'm to run the phonograph. They's twinty records an' t'y goes through t'ree times."

There was the sound of grating teeth, or perhaps it was only the grinding of small stones on Pat's shovel.

"There'll be dancin' an' a roasted pig," Dennis continued. "An' whin the festivities is over, Mr. Murphy—"

"Gawd almighty," shrieked Pat in derision, "Mister—Mister Murphy—who the divil is he? I don't know any Mister Murphy."

"Murphy, thin," said Dennis, somewhat disconcerted. "He's going to presint his family with a presint—a look'n glass—five an' a haf feet long an' two an' a haf wide, so they can see theirselfs full lengt'. I help't uncrate it. We'v wrapped it in a blanket an' hid it in a fodder shock by the pig pen. Whin the time comes Mr.—I mean Murphy—will give me the wink an' I'm to bring it in the par— front room—an' remove the blanket, while Murphy expresses his sintiments."

The society function was a great success. The gaities and festivities extended deep into the night.

Grand Opera and ragtime, the ravings of John McCullough and the voice of Abraham Lincoln at Gettysburg came forth with equal intensity from the throat of the phonograph. When at last the felicitous moment for the climax of the evening arrived, Murphy passed Dennis a sapient wink. Dennis at once slid out of the back door, to reappear in a short time, lugging a package which, amid a boisterous and ill-restrained curiosity, he stood on end in the corner.

He then grasped the enshrouding blanket firmly and awaited the signal from Murphy to throw back the folds.

Mr. Murphy strode to the center of the room and beckoned his wife to his side. A momentary silence fell on the assembled guests.

Mr. Murphy scraped his throat and took his wife's hand more awkwardly than affectionately. The silence was somewhat heavy. He had memorized a panegyric of his wife, which now came to him confused and fragmentary.

"In this hour of pleasure an' sintimint," said he, shaking the tackle and seeing a clear field ahead, "an' with the gloom off th' faces iv all, I am presentin' my wife, Mrs. Murphy, a butiful presint, a remimbrance to her whinever she looks upon it of a good and pious woman — a lovin' mother — wan who's heart is kind and thru. (Dennis tipped the frame at the proper angle to her.) Wan the sight of whose face brings joy. Wan who is honored an' loved by us all, now an' foriver."

He passed the cue to Dennis, and then stepped nimbly aside, leaving Mrs. Murphy alone, facing the frame.

With a deft motion, Dennis flung aside the blanket. The pleasant and ingenious arrangement was that at the close of this gracious tribute, Mrs. Murphy would find herself gazing complacently upon her own features in the new mirror.

What she saw was a gilt frame, backed by a half car door, upon which was tacked a life-size picture of Queen Victoria, gazing directly into the eyes of Mr. Murphy, with an expression placid and unmoved by the glorifying words he had just uttered.

There followed a brief and deadly silence — an oppressive and foreboding pause portending the gathering of the intense human passions that make tragedy.

Then Murphy lit on Dennis Boyle and Tim Moriarity hit a Dutchman named Slagle, whom he didn't like anyway. There was an awful uproar.

This brings us to Patrick Flynn, foreman of section 27, absent but active.

It must be recorded of Pat that he looked with growing repugnance on the social elevation of the Murphys. And that his ill-will, being a human quality not at all rare, led him to the fodder shock near the pig pen, from which place he made off with the mirror. He then removed the glass, substituted a half grain door with Victoria's picture for good measure, and restored the altered piece to its hiding place.

The possession of the glass bothered him somewhat. He did not want to destroy it, nor for it to be found in his possession. He looked into it and saw a guilty and puzzled countenance. He decided to put it in the old cemetery at Hiner's Cut. He carried it there and placed it over and against the wire fence. It was at the point where the road curves sharply, and just about the height above the rail of a locomotive headlight. It was left in an exact position to reflect fairly and fully to a certain point along the track.

Pat went away. His intention had been to place it among the tombs — but where guilt hangs oppressively on the conscience, it is easier to flee than go forward. After a time three 71's passed the point as narrated, and Murphy's mirror flashed back the headlight of each.

Pat was not satisfied. After all, thought he, neither the mirror nor pieces should be found on his section, or near it. It was best there should be no evidence to support any suspicion that he had taken it. Besides, the interval had enabled him to develop a well-defined idea, wherein there was expressed a wider scope of contempt, and a mere subtle suggestion of disgust. He carried the glass back and placed it inside of Murphy's pig pen, so that in the morning Mr. Murphy, with his confused and banquet-bleared eyes, saw two Chester white pigs where there was but one the night before.

The officials of the road made an effort to solve the mystery of the phantom engine in Hiner's Cut, and Pat Flynn was pressed for explanation and theories, and was asked to exercise special surveillance.

"This is a very strange and puzzling affair," said the Superintendent to Pat, "and we shall feel relieved to find a satisfactory explanation."

"It is a grea-a-t mystery," said Pat with long breath. "It sure is." But when Pat had sufficiently figured it out that he himself had unwittingly been the cause of it, he heaped fresh curses upon the head of Murphy for buying such luxuriant furnishings as a five-foot mirror, and became a staunch supporter of the ghost theory as explaining the phantom headlight.

MORLEY PHONE

Dr. Edward Baum, No. 2017 Wilkins Ave., Baltimore, Md., says:

"I have used the Morley Phones, manufactured and sold by the Morley Company, No. 31 South Sixteenth Street, Philadelphia, for five years, and during this time I have applied them to hundreds of cases of deafness which would not yield to other treatment. I have never yet found any case of deafness that could not be benefited or entirely cured by the use of the Morley Phone."

Dr. Baum is an aurist and former assistant surgeon of Baltimore Medical College and resident physician of Maryland General Hospital.

There is no end of information about newspapers in the American Newspaper Annual published by N. W. Ayer & Son, Philadelphia ($5.00 net).

Catalogued in simple tabulated form are the facts one needs in dealing with newspapers, with particular attention to circulations, which are all given in plain figures.

There are supplementary lists of daily newspapers, magazines and class publications. A colored map of each State is bound in the book. It also contains for the first time the Advertisers' Telegraph Code, compiled especially for the use of the publishing interests and filling a long-felt want in this direction.

Real Parisian Life

Tales More Fascinating and Exciting than Balzac or French Court Memoirs

I have secured the sets of Paul de Kock which were awarded the Gold Medal at St. Louis. Rather than rebind them—they are slightly rubbed through handling—I will sell them at half price as long as they last, and upon small monthly payments.

Paul de Kock

The Merriest French Humorist

has written sparkling, witty, amusing, riveting novels—antidotes for melancholy. The stories, literally translated, race merrily along, nothing didactic or dull; as original as Boccaccio, as mirthful as Gil Blas, more fascinating than Sterne or Smollett.

SHORT FASCINATING STORIES

"Paul de Kock is a tonic in books instead of bottles."—Max O'Rell. "His charming characters seem to be under the influence of champagne."—Charles Lever. "He has kept France laughing for years—the Smollett of France."—Boston Herald. I dislike the superlative, but I believe this the best and richest book value ever offered. The set contains the most delicate and artistic French illustrations made especially for this work by Glackens, Sloan, Wenzell, Sterner, and many other famous artists.

ILLUSTRATED BOOKLET FREE

A New Range Idea

We have produced a range that we believe meets modern demands better than any heretofore made. We call it the

PALACE Crawford

The old End Hearth — so often in the way — is omitted. There is more area in the top of the range — an end shelf at the left being added. The ashes fall into a hod far below the grate, which makes their removal easier and more cleanly and makes the grate last longer. The coal hod is alongside the ash hod — out of the way.

All the other famous Crawford improvements are present: — Single Damper (pat'd), one movement regulates fire and oven; Patented Dock-Ash Grate, saves labor and fuel; Perfected Oven, surest, quickest, easiest controlled; Reliable Oven Indicator, can't get out of order; Removable Nickel Rails, etc., etc.

Crawford Heating Boilers

for dwellings are the latest and best in their class. More heat for same amount of fuel, less trouble, and less repair bills. We guarantee to heat any building in zero weather in which a Crawford Boiler is properly installed.

Short Stories of Men Who Have Won High Salaries

Nothing ever written contains such dramatic history of success as the stories of the men who, through the help of the International Correspondence Schools, have won higher places in the world.

The voluntary endorsement of these men proves beyond any question of doubt that training does pay—and that the I. C. S. does help poorly paid men succeed.

From Chainman to Civil Engineer, with an office of his own, is the happy experience of Mr. G. A. Collins, of Santa Fe, New Mexico. Mr. Collins says: "My earnings have been increased nearly 1,000 per cent. The I. C. S. is certainly a wonderful institution."

Another man, Mr. Joseph Cain, once a mine foreman at $90.00 a month, is now Mine Superintendent at Searles, Ala., earning a salary of $225.00 a month. I. C. S. training did it. Mr. Cain writes: "I know of no other method than the I. C. S. by which a man can advance so quickly and surely."

And so it goes. Yet this is not all. These men do not merely advance but a step or two. They go on, on, on, earning more all the time.

During July 351 students voluntarily reported increases in salary and position through the help of the I. C. S.

The I. C. S. helps you in your spare time. No need to leave home or your present position. Lack of capital need not hinder you. It is immaterial where you live or what you do—the I. C. S. can reach you if you want a better position, more money, promotion.

You can learn how it is done by sending the attached coupon to the I. C. S. No charge whatever for this information.

Be a Success. Mark the Coupon To-day.

Pabst Extract
The "Best" Tonic

For Old Age

In the evening of life, when age is full of beauty, precaution should be taken to keep the forces of life at their best. Without the vigor and active recuperative powers of youth, we must ward off those little ailments that with impaired age are often forerunners of serious sickness. Nature to an extent should be aided and the system fortified by a nourishment that will enrich the blood, strengthen the nerves and revitalize the entire body. These properties are all found in

Pabst Extract
The "Best" Tonic

Glowing and sparkling with vitality, it is the staunch vigor of barley malt and hops, rich in the tissue building qualities of the former and the splendid tonic properties of the latter. This highly nutritious liquid food, in its palatable and predigested form, is welcomed and retained by the weakest stomach, being easily assimilated by the blood, and carries in it those properties that revitalize and rebuild the muscles and nerve tissues.

Pabst Extract
The "Best" Tonic

strengthens the weak, builds up the run down, cheers the depressed. It will nourish your nerves, enrich your blood and invigorate your muscles. It gives sleep to the sleepless, relieves the dyspeptic and is a boon to nursing mothers.

Safe as a Savings Bank

Big Dividends Already Earned

Double Your Investment in a Few Years

DO you want to become the financial co-partner, financial co-operator with one of the most successful and wealthy financiers and publishers in New York City, and one of the best known and most successful jewelry manufacturing concerns in New England? If so, read every word of this announcement and act at once.

Cast over in your mind and pick out twenty of the wealthiest people you personally know and you will find in each case it is a fact that years ago each one of these persons, or their ancestors, learned how to make a little money do a whole lot of work, and that now they and their children reap the benefit in a golden harvest. You can do the same. Only you must make a beginning. Here is a Financial Opportunity. Take advantage of it now — not to-morrow, but right now, to-day. You are making money. Why not invest a little and later on reap the benefit? It is a wise thing to do, and the wise and thoughtful people who are doing it are the ones that live in ease.

Here is an investment that is AS SAFE AS A SAVINGS BANK, conducted by people who are vouched for by Government Officers, Grand Army of the Republic Members, Free Masons, and scores of well-known, shrewd and successful business men. They know that the heads of this concern are well qualified to make your money, to make my money, earn large and regular dividends. Start now.

You know perfectly well that if you have not already saved up money that you ought to begin to do so at once. I will help you. Fill out the coupon at the foot of this article with your name and address and I will at once write you a long personal letter explaining to you how you can start to save money and make an investment with THE CUMMINGS & KING COMPANY, which will pay you large and satisfactory dividends as they are earned.

The reason that people are poor and unhappy is because they leave their own financial matters to be taken care of to-morrow instead of now, to-day. If you will sit down at once and send me your name and address on the coupon at the foot of this announcement just so much sooner will you become happier than you are to-day.

It makes me happy to read the contents of this Magazine and I sincerely hope that it makes you happy to receive this Magazine and read its contents. Everything that I write you comes straight from my heart. I want you to learn that what I say is so, and when I say that I sincerely believe that if you make an investment with THE CUMMINGS & KING COMPANY your investment will be as safe as a savings bank, your dividends will be earned and sent to you every May and November, in fact you will possess an investment which will give you great satisfaction from the moment you receive your certificate of shares.

The next dividend will be paid November 1st, next month, and will be at the rate of Ten Per Cent (10%). It will be for your interest to write me at once.

I also know that you wish to learn who conceived, who planned the campaign, who pushed this magnificent, successful jewelry manufacturing concern to such a phenomenal success and made it such a successful paying piece of property, who after they have paid large and satisfactory dividends upon all the money invested still have the ambition to look further ahead and have in their mind's eyes a LARGER and BIGGER and BETTER business.

In my personal letter to you I will tell you all about these gentlemen who are at the head of THE CUMMINGS & KING COMPANY. I want you to know them. I want them to know you. I want you to co-operate with them. They want to co-operate with you.

EVERY READER OF THE BLACK CAT should read and answer this announcement. It is your duty. Here is an investment as safe as a savings bank. Regular dividends as earned at the rate of Ten Per Cent (10%) per year and perhaps more. If you have a few dollars here is a safe place to invest. Put your money where it will earn regular dividends. Put your money where you know the people who are at the head of the concern. Sit down and write me to-day. I will at once send you my booklet—"A COMPANY WITH A REPUTATION." I will also write you a long personal letter telling you many things you want to know. If you were sure every dollar you invested would permanently bring you a regular income you would be justified in sending me what money you have on hand and also in making arrangements for saving a little each and every month.

I can say in all sincerity that I feel sure that if you make an investment with THE CUMMINGS & KING COMPANY—"A COMPANY WITH A REPUTATION"—you will never lose a cent, but on the contrary will, every May and November, and every year hereafter, receive dividends as earned at the rate of Ten Per Cent (10%) and perhaps more. You can do a whole lot to help yourself in this manner, and you can rely on me to assist you and to arrange matters to your convenience. You are earning money now. On the other hand, when you may not be doing so, you will be so happy to know that you have a good and profitable investment in THE CUMMINGS & KING COMPANY, which is earning and paying you large and satisfactory dividends every six months.

MY OFFER TO YOU

I will sell a limited number of shares at their par value of Ten Dollars ($10.00) per share. I wish to have your co-operation. Perhaps I value this more than money. So you can use your own judgment as to how many shares you wish. I will be just about as well pleased if you subscribe for one share at first as if you sent for a hundred, for the reason I will know that if you subscribe for one share that you have made a start; that you have learned and begun to save to improve your condition. If you are going to invest money anywhere you have a right to thoroughly understand everything about the company in which you are going to invest. If there is anything that you do not understand or something further that you wish to know write me at once. On the other hand, if you feel that you are thoroughly acquainted with just what I am going to do and just why I feel that I need you as a Co-partner and Co-operator as a Shareholder you can enclose in your letter the amount of money you wish to subscribe for shares. Send to me to-day for, say, one or two shares, and see what Co-operation will accomplish. See how much happier you will feel for having in your possession a Certificate of shares representing your investment. See what Co-operation will accomplish in the way of getting the biggest dividends I believe you ever received on an investment. The price of these shares is Ten Dollars ($10.00) per share. Anyway, write me to-day and fill out the coupon below. I will answer personally by mail.

PRESIDENT CHARLES E. ELLIS, B. C. 4
603–609 West 43rd St., Block 9, New York City.

Please send me your booklet, "A Firm With a Reputation," and your personal letter by return mail. I promise to read both carefully.
Yours sincerely,

Mr. Charles E. Ellis is President of a large Magazine Corporation, besides being a large holder of real estate in both New York and New Jersey. Mr. Ellis is known among the Bankers of New York to be interested in several large and successful enterprises. President Ellis' wealth would easily foot up into a million or more if he should care to sell and withdraw from his valuable publishing business, and other enterprises, but President Ellis is not that kind of a man. He is a worker. He is a successful, hard-working business man, and fully believes in co-operation, and he is now fully convinced as President of this Company that he wants the co-operation of every subscriber and reader of this Magazine. He believes and knows that if you are his Co-partner in this enterprise as a Shareholder and Co-operator you and Cummings and King and himself together can produce one of the largest jewelry manufacturing concerns in the world.

Here you can become a Co-partner with Mr. Ellis, one of the most successful business men in New York, and in the United States for that matter. Act to-day. Write at once. Draw your dividends as earned forever from now on and watch the further successful developments of your and our factory. This is what co-operation means.

Mr. Ellis is President of The C. E. Ellis Company, valued conservatively at $250,000. Mr. Ellis has other investments in New York City real estate, bonds, stocks and mortgages to the amount of many hundreds of thousands of dollars. Any Bank or Mercantile Agency will tell you his guarantee is as good as gold.

This is the successful man who wants you for a Co-partner and Co-operator, as a Shareholder in THE CUMMINGS & KING COMPANY—"A COMPANY WITH A REPUTATION." Remember, you will do business directly with Mr. Ellis in this matter.

Hayner Bottled-in-Bond Whiskey is PURE WHISKEY

It's the ideal whiskey for the home—the finest whiskey you could buy for medicinal purposes—the purest, richest and most delicious whiskey we have ever produced in all our 42 years experience as distillers. We ship

Direct From DISTILLERY TO YOU

HAYNER WHISKEY is made in strict conformity with the United States Pure Food Law—and is GUARANTEED PURE as shown by our sworn affidavit filed with the Secretary of Agriculture at Washington—Serial No. 1401.

It is of the HIGHEST STANDARD OF PURITY to withstand the strictest analysis of the Pure Food Commissions of the various States in the Union.

Moreover—it is distilled, aged and BOTTLED-IN-BOND in our own distillery, under the direct supervision of the U. S. Government—and each bottle is sealed with the U.S. Government's official BOTTLED-IN-BOND stamp—positive assurance that it is pure, fully aged, full strength and full measure.

HAYNER WHISKEY is not only a pure whiskey—but has a richness and quality that has won for it over 750,000 staunch patrons in the United States alone. This distinctive quality is due to the carefully selected grain which is used—and to our improved and exclusive methods of distilling which are the result of our 42 years experience.

HENRI DE NOAILES, ESQ.,
Secretary, the St. Hubert Guild of Art Craftsmen,
Akron, Ohio.

Dear Sir:

The set of Voltaire's works illustrating the reproduction of many of the rare and beautifully bound books of the Courts of Europe, made by the St. Hubert Guild of Art Craftsmen, which has been presented to the National Museum in response to my request of December 20th, has arrived safely.

I beg to assure you that the Museum greatly appreciates this generous gift from the Guild and arrangements will at once be made to place the bindings on exhibition in the Division of Graphic Arts, where they will be available for inspection by all who are interested.

Very respectfully yours,
Signed, R. RATHBUN,
Assistant Secretary,
in charge of National Museum.

SPECIAL

We also want to acquaint you with our Rare and Artistic Book Plate Department. We will therefore send you absolutely FREE fifteen beautiful examples designed by M. HOEBROOM. These, we know, will both interest and delight you. Mail coupon today.

Atheism and Fanaticism are the two poles of a Universe of Confusion and Horror. The narrow zone of Virtue is between these two. March with a firm step in that path. Believe in GOD and do good.—Voltaire.

Between two servants of Humanity who appeared Eighteen Hundred Years apart, there is a mysterious Relation.

—Victor Hugo.

Voltaire will always be regarded as the greatest man in literature of modern times, and perhaps even of all times.

—Goethe.

Voltaire was the most virtuous man of his age. Voltaire was the best Christian of his time.—Edouard de Pompery, French Biographer of Voltaire.

Voltaire's Letters are wittier than any other Letters in the world. For lightness, swiftness, grace, spontaneity you can find no second to them at however long an interval.—Rt. Hon. John Morley.

Each volume is bound differently. Each binding is a history in itself, reproducing the most sumptuous designs of the Great Masters of the Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries. MERIT WINS

HAYNER Whiskies are achieving universal recognition for Quality and Purity

In these days of Pure Food agitation when so many distillers are compelled to retire from the field or change the labels and character of their product, it is interesting to note that one firm, The Hayner Distilling Company, are continuing on the even tenor of their way undisturbed by any State or National laws that may be passed—due, solely to the fact that their products are and always have been of the highest standard of quality and purity—complying with all the requirements of the Pure Food Laws now just as they have been for the past 42 years before the Pure Food Laws were enacted.

The Hayner policy of offering only the best and purest whiskey that can be produced is meeting with the success that it so richly deserves. This company now, on the completion of its 42d year, has over 750,000 staunch and loyal patrons in the United States alone,—and the company's efforts are now directed to make their customers' list a round one million.

Since the foundation of this vast business in 1866, Hayner Whiskey has been sold only by mail and goods shipped direct from distillery to the consumer—in this way saving their patrons all the profits of the dealers and the middlemen and assuring them that the whiskey would reach them in all its original purity and without the possibility of any adulteration or dilution.

The constant increase in their business has compelled the Hayner Distilling Company to greatly increase their facilities, and their Registered Distillery, No. 2, Tenth District, Troy, O., now covers three entire city blocks and is considered by experts to be one of the finest and best equipped distilleries in the United States. The capacity of the distillery is 2,000 bushels of grain per day, and the warehouses, where the whiskey is stored and aged, have a capacity of 5,000,000 gallons. The Hayner Distilling Company has a paid-up capital of $500,000, and they have always been recognized as one of the most reliable and responsible firms in this country.

The announcement of Hayner Private Stock Bottled-in-Bond Whiskey on another page is worthy of careful attention.

Steadies a Man

All of a man's real power comes from steady nerves and a keen, clear brain.

Grape-Nuts

contains just the food elements Nature has stored up in wheat and barley, including the Phosphate of Potash which combines, in the blood, with albumen to repair and build up the cells.

It is a concentrated, partially predigested food and is a wonderful sustainer of the active, progressive, successful man. It's food — not medicine.

How Shall We Cook?

This is the age of good food and plenty of it. Never in the world's history has food been relatively so cheap, so abundant, so varied or so good. Never has the subject of food held so high a place as to-day.

The importance of properly supplying the needs of the modern human stomach is understood as never before and of all the factors that go to accomplish this desired result there is probably none as important as cooking. Given the best of food products, a bad cook can spoil them and indirectly spoil the stomach and the vitality of the person who eats them. Good food, properly cooked and intelligently eaten, is the most important consideration, the very first of considerations in the plan of successful living. Duly impressed by this fact the modern housewife turns to the "cook book" for guidance in the preparation of that with which we shall nourish ourselves and be strong and able to do and do well our part in the world. And what does she find? Recipes impracticable, unhygienic, costly, wasteful, so vague as to be impossible to follow.

It is peculiarly befitting that a house that has an enviable record from the efforts and accomplishments of its founder and present head as a foremost worker for pure food legislation should bring out a cook book that teaches cooking as it should be taught, that presents recipes that work out successfully, so plain, clear and intelligible that the result is satisfaction and delight to those who prepare and those who partake.

The Walter M. Lowney Company, makers of the Lowney chocolates and cocoa, has published a cook book that is up to date and equalled by none. It was compiled by one of the most skilful of practical cooks, a woman who is one of the best known teachers and writers in the world of cookery, Maria Willett Howard, of Simmons College, Boston.

This cook book, while incidentally a magnificent advertisement for the Lowney goods, is in no sense devoted to exploiting them; of the 1308 recipes only 73 mention chocolate or cocoa.

There are 367 pages, the paper and printing are of the best, the book is bound in cloth and beautifully illustrated with colored plates.

There is much general information and instruction; how to buy in the market, how to serve dinners and other valuable helps. This book can be bought for sixty cents, and if the purchaser is not completely satisfied after receiving the book the purchase price will be refunded. The usual price for such a book is two dollars!

The book is entitled "Lowney's Complete Cook Book" and it can be purchased of booksellers generally, or will be sent, postage prepaid, by The Walter M. Lowney Company, Boston, Mass., on receipt of the price in stamps or money order, (no checks).

A New Range Idea

We have produced a range that we believe meets modern demands better than any heretofore made. We call it the

PALACE Crawford

The old End Hearth — so often in the way — is omitted. There is more area in the top of the range — an end shelf at the left being added. The ashes fall into a hod far below the grate, which makes their removal easier and more cleanly and makes the grate last longer. The coal hod is alongside the ash hod — out of the way.

All the other famous Crawford improvements are present: — Single Damper (pat'd), one movement regulates fire and oven; Patented Dock-Ash Grate, saves labor and fuel; Perfected Oven, surest, quickest, easiest controlled; Reliable Oven Indicator, can't get out of order; Removable Nickel Rails, etc., etc.

Crawford Heating Boilers

for dwellings are the latest and best in their class. More heat for same amount of fuel, less trouble, and less repair bills. We guarantee to heat any building in zero weather in which a Crawford Boiler is properly installed.

The Earning Power of Money Invested in Kornit

HERE is a Financial Opportunity to make an investment in an up-to-date, energetic, money-making, Industrial Manufacturing Company, which owns all the United States patents, processes and exclusive rights for producing Kornit, a product never before manufactured nor sold in this country. The demand for Kornit is great and the profit of manufacturing and selling is ENORMOUS. Read every word of this announcement and ACT AT ONCE.

Most Satisfactory Progress Being Made at Our New Factory

The Story of Kornit

By President Charles E. Ellis

KORNIT was invented by JOHANN GUSTAV BIERICH, a subject of the Czar of Russia, residing at Menkenhof, near Lievenhof, Russia, and is a homogeneous Horn or Hoof substance.

President Charles E. Ellis

Kornit is produced by grinding horn and hoof shavings and waste into a palpable powder and then pressing under heavy hydraulic pressure with heat into a homogeneous slab. This slab produces a substance which can be sawed or turned the same as ordinary wood. It is of a beautiful black consistency and IS EXTREMELY VALUABLE as a NON-CONDUCTOR FOR ELECTRICAL SUPPLIES. It is a matter of record that the electrical industry in this country AT THIS TIME DOES NOT HAVE a satisfactory material for heavy or high insulating purposes. A slab of Kornit one inch thick was tested in Trenton, New Jersey, by the Imperial Porcelain Works and was FOUND TO HAVE RESISTED 96,000 VOLTS OF ELECTRICITY. It may be interesting to note here that the heaviest voltage which is transmitted in this country is between Niagara, Buffalo and Lockport, New York. The voltage transmitted by this company is between 40,000 and 50,000 volts. Kornit is equally as good as a non-conductor for electrical purposes and supplies as is hard rubber.

The average price of hard vulcanized rubber for electrical purposes is to-day considerably over one dollar per pound—at the present writing something like $1.25 per pound.

KORNIT CAN BE SOLD AT TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER POUND, and AN ENORMOUS profit can be made at this price so that it CAN EASILY BE SEEN that where Kornit is EQUALLY AS GOOD and AS A MATTER OF FACT, in many instances, a BETTER non-conductor than hard rubber, it can compete in every case where it can be used with great success on account of its price. For electrical panel boards, switchboards, fuse boxes, cutouts, etc., there are other materials used, such as vulcanized paper fibre, slate, marble, etc. A piece f vulcanized paper fibre 3x4x1 inch in lots of 1,000 brings 20 cents per piece. A piece of KORNIT of the SAME DIMENSIONS could be sold with the ENORMOUS PROFIT OF OVER 100 PER CENT. at ten cents. The absorptive qualities of Kornit render it such that IT IS FAR PREFERABLE to that of vulcanized fibre. It will not maintain a flame. Of all the materials which are now in the electrical market for supplies and insulators there is, as we have stated above, none that are satisfactory. Kornit will fill this place. Its tensile strength per square inch averages from 1,358 pounds to 1,811 pounds which the reader can readily see IS MORE THAN SATISFACTORY. This test was made by a well-known electrical engineer, who is now acting in that capacity for the United States Government, with a Standard Reihle Bros. Testing Machine.

Waste horn and whole hoofs are being sold by the ton to-day principally only for fertilizing purposes. There is one town alone, Leominster, Mass., where they have an average of eight tons of horn shavings every day. These waste horn shavings are now only being sold for fertilizing material. These eight tons of horn shavings manufactured into Kornit and sold for electrical purposes would easily bring $3,000. At this price it would be selling for less than one-fifth of what hard rubber would cost, and about one-half what other competitive materials would sell for, even though they would not be as satisfactory as Kornit.

Kornit has been in use in Russia about four years. In Riga, Russia, which is the largest seaport town of Western Russia, the Electrical Unions there are using Kornit with the greatest satisfaction, finding it preferable to any other insulating material.

The expense of manufacturing Kornit from the horn shavings is not large, as the patentee, Mr. Bierich, has invented an economical and satisfactory process, which produces an article that in the near future will be used in the construction of almost every building in this country.

Besides electrical insulators, Kornit can be used for the manufacturing of furniture, buttons, door handles, umbrella, cane, knife and fork handles, brush and sword handles, revolver handles, mirror backs, picture frames, toilet accessories, such as fancy glove boxes, jewel cases, glove stretchers, shoe lifts, etc., office utensils such as paper knifes and pen holders, ink stands, pen racks, medical instruments, such as syringes, ear trumpets, etc., pieces for games, such as draughts, chessmen, dominoes, checkers, counters, chips, cribbage boards, etc.; telephone ear pieces, stands, etc., piano keys, typewriter keys, adding machine and cash register keys, tea trays, ash trays, scoops, mustard and other spoons, salad sets, cigar and cigarette cases, cigar and cigarette holders, match boxes, and hundreds of other useful and ornamental articles, all at a large and remunerative profit.

THE GREAT DEMAND FOR KORNIT IN THIS COUNTRY

THERE is one manufacturer ALONE here in New York that uses 60,000 square feet of insulating material for panel boards every year. He is now using slate and marble, but IT IS NOT SATISFACTORY, for the reason that in boring and transportation IT BREAKS SO EASILY. KORNIT WILL ANSWER THE PURPOSE OF MANUFACTURING PANEL BOARDS VERY MUCH MORE SATISFACTORILY. On 60,000 square feet of Kornit there would be a net profit of over $30,000, or 50 cents for every square foot used. THIS ONE EXAMPLE is cited to show you THE ENORMOUS PROFITS which can be made. There are a great many other panel and switchboard manufacturers in this country. You may be interested to know that a panel board is a small switchboard. There is one or more on every floor of all large buildings where electricity is used. They each have a number of switches mounted on them, so that those in charge can turn certain lights on or off, and by these panel boards all the electrical power in the building is controlled. They must be of a reliable non-conducting material. Kornit can be used for this purpose almost exclusively. The largest electrical manufacturing concerns in Riga, Russia, ARE USING KORNIT ONLY FOR THIS PURPOSE, after having tried all other so-called non-conducting compositions. The electrical trades alone can consume a great many tons of Kornit every day in the year. If only two tons of Kornit is manufactured and sold every working day in the year IT WILL ENABLE THE KORNIT MANUFACTURING COMPANY TO PAY 16 PER CENT. DIVIDENDS EVERY YEAR. Of course, if four tons a day are sold the dividends would be 32 per cent. per year. THIS IS NOT IMPROBABLE, AN EXPERT ELECTRICAL ENGINEER who holds one of the most responsible positions here in New York City made the statement, after thoroughly examining and testing Kornit for electrical purposes, that in his most conservative estimation there can be ten tons of manufactured Kornit sold every working day in the first year. This would mean that the Kornit Manufacturing Company would pay a dividend out of its earnings the first year of over seventy-five per cent. (75%). This is probably more than will be paid the first year, but there certainly seems to be a good prospect of paying a large dividend the first year.

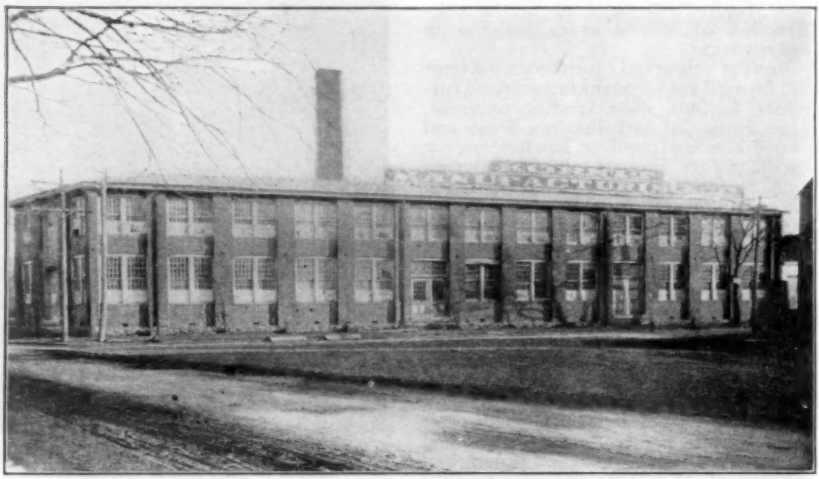
THERE WILL BE SUCH AN ENORMOUS DEMAND FOR KORNIT AFTER IT BECOMES INTRODUCED THAT FROM YEAR TO YEAR THE DIVIDENDS EARNED WILL BECOME LARGER AND LARGER. THIS IS THE BEST OPPORTUNITY TO MAKE AN INVESTMENT THAT YOU HAVE EVER HAD.

It is a well-known fact that THE MOST LEGITIMATE and PROFITABLE way to MAKE MONEY is by manufacturing some product that is "NECESSARY" and ONE THAT CAN BE FULLY CONTROLLED so that nobody else can manufacture the same article. Look at Sugar (which is protected by a high tariff); at Standard Oil, the Telephone, the Telegraph, and we might go on and enumerate many more monopolies. THEY ARE THE BIG MONEY MAKERS OF TO-DAY. KORNIT CANNOT BE MANUFACTURED BY ANYBODY IN THIS COUNTRY EXCEPT OURSELVES OR OUR AGENTS. We own all the patents issued by the UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT to the inventor, MR. JOHANN GUSTAV BIERICH, IN RUSSIA. These patents HAVE BEEN BOUGHT from Mr. Bierich, and ARE DULY TRANSFERRED TO THE KORNIT MANUFACTURING COMPANY and the same is DULY RECORDED IN THE PATENT OFFICE OF THE UNITED STATES.

WE ARE BUILDING A FINE FACTORY

ON March 1, 1907, our Factory, which had just been thoroughly equipped and completed, was burned to the ground!

Since that time we have purchased the Real Estate and are now building OUR OWN Factory. It is promised that it shall be finished and in working order during the present month. All our machinery is ordered and the greatest part is already completed ready to install as soon as our new Factory Building is ready.



Kornit Factory, Newark, N. J., (Belleville Station), entirely consumed by fire, March 1, 1907

A few shares obtained now may be the foundation for a fortune of the much-desired income for support in the unknown years that are to come. We leave it to you if it would not seem good judgment to take immediate advantage of this opportunity. Anyway, please write me at once and let me know just what you will do. If it is not possible for you to take shares now, write and tell me how many you would like and how soon it will be convenient for you to do so, provided I will reserve them for you. As soon as I receive your letter I will answer it WITH A PERSONAL LETTER AND WILL ARRANGE MATTERS AS YOU WISH TO THE BEST OF MY ABILITY.

REMEMBER, I HAVE A GREAT MANY THOUSAND DOLLARS INVESTED IN THE KORNIT MANUFACTURING COMPANY, and the minute you buy a share or more in this Company, we become CO-PARTNERS as CO-SHAREHOLDERS. It is for our mutual benefit to watch and guard each other's interests. I WILL BE GRATEFUL IF YOU WILL WRITE ME TO-DAY, so that I may know just what you will do.

I know you will agree with me that you have never had presented to your notice a better opportunity to make an investment where such large profits can be made because of the exclusiveness of control and the great demand and the low cost of the raw material, which is now almost practically thrown away. Join me in this investment, and I assure you that it is my sincere belief that in the near future you will say, "That is the day I made the most successful move in my whole life."

MY OFFER TO YOU TO-DAY

THE KORNIT MANUFACTURING COMPANY is incorporated under the laws of New Jersey, and is capitalized with 50,000 fully paid non-assessable shares at $10 each. It is my intention to sell a limited number only of these shares at the par value of $10 each. Ten dollars will buy one share. Twenty dollars will buy two shares. Fifty dollars will buy five shares. One hundred dollars will buy ten shares. One thousand dollars will buy one hundred shares, and so on. After you have bought one or more shares in the Kornit Manufacturing Company you may feel, as I do, that you have placed your savings where they will draw regular and satisfactorily large dividends.

I should not be a bit surprised if these shares paid dividends as high as one hundred per cent. in the not far distant future. Consequently a few dollars invested now in the shares of the Kornit Manufacturing Company will enable you in the future to draw a regular income from the large profits of the Company as they are earned. The dividends will be paid semi-annually, every six months, the first of May and November of each year. This is one of the best opportunities you will ever have presented to you in your whole lifetime. I have invested a great many thousand dollars in the Kornit Manufacturing Company, and I feel sure it is one of the best investments I have ever made. I can truthfully say to you that I fully believe that you will be more than pleased with your investment, and that you will never be sorry. Remember, that you have here an opportunity to become interested in a large industrial manufacturing concern manufacturing a product with an exclusive monopoly, which has never before been manufactured or sold in this country.

Remember, that it is by no means an experiment, as it has been successfully manufactured and sold for over four years in Russia at a large profit, and the manufacturer and inventor recently wrote that the demand is increasing every day beyond the capacity of their manufacturing facilities.

Now is the time for you to take advantage of this magnificent opportunity to make an investment in these shares. I EARNESTLY BELIEVE that in a few years THESE SHARES WILL BE WORTH FROM FIFTY DOLLARS TO ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS each on account of THE LARGE DIVIDENDS which the company will earn and regularly pay each and every six months. It is a well-known fact that shares that pay fifty (50) to one hundred (100) per cent. dividends will readily sell in the open market for $50 to $100. THE OUTLOOK FOR THE KORNIT MANUFACTURING COMPANY is such that it seems impossible for the earnings to fall far short of these figures. If the company only makes and sells two tons of Kornit a day for the first year and makes a profit of only $200 per ton it would mean a profit of over sixteen per cent. (16%) the first year. If this business were doubled the second year, of course the earning capacity would double and the dividends would be over thirty-two per cent. (32%). Prominent and well-known Electrical Engineers assure me that this product cannot help and is bound to make enormous profits. I would recommend that you send for as many as you wish at once. You, in my conservative opinion, can safely count on the large earning capacity of these shares. I will at once write you a personal letter with full information, and send you our illustrated book, "A Financial Opportunity," containing a score of photographs of the Kornit industry, taken in Russia. Please let me hear from you.

Yours very truly,

CHARLES E. ELLIS

PRESIDENT

607-609 West 43rd St., New York City

Mr. Ellis, besides being President of this company is also President of two other large and successful companies, owning shares therein valued conservatively at over $250,000. Mr. Ellis has other investments in New York City real estate, bonds, stocks and mortgages to the amount of many more hundreds of thousands of dollars. Any bank or mercantile agency will tell you his guarantee is as good as gold. This is a successful man who wishes you for a Co-partner as a Shareholder and Dividend Receiver in this company. Remember you will do business personally with Mr. Ellis in this matter.

"UNSEEN COMFORT"

A. O. Leonard INVENTOR LEONARD'S ANTISEPTIC EAR DRUM

I was deaf for thirty-five years

My Ear Drum (which I patented July 3d, 1906) and my method have restored my hearing. Since I put it on the market last February, it has restored the hearing of hundreds of others, many of whom had given up all hope of ever hearing again. It has also relieved many from distressing head noises. I have just gotten out a new Ear Drum that is a great improvement over my original drum. The megaphone principle and the flat sounding membrane make my Drum the most successful device on the market. It is "Unseen Comfort" My new method and antiseptic Ear Drum are endorsed by leading physicians. The price is very low. Why not have your hearing restored? Let me write you about it. I will give you facts only and will not exaggerate.

The Greatest GOLD Dredging Enterprise in the World

THE YUKON BASIN GOLD DREDGING COMPANY is an international company organized under the territorial laws of the United States, registered and sanctioned by the strict laws of the Dominion of Canada. Its properties are 105 miles river frontage, or more than 10,000 acres on the famous Stewart River, the richest gold bearing placer field in the world. Title absolute from the Canadian Government through William Ogilvie, former governor of Yukon Territory and now president and actual field manager of the Yukon Basin Gold Dredging Company.

THE GOLD DREDGE A WONDERFUL MODERN INVENTION Each dredge put in the field will do the work of 1,000 men, and we propose to install twelve as rapidly as it is possible to make the arrangements. The ground is fully tested and immensely valuable.

This is the biggest gold dredging proposition in America. Careful tests covering 30 miles of our leaseholds went as high as $11.00 and averaged more than $1.06 per yard. Fabulous fortunes are being made dredging in California on ground averaging only 15c per yard.

$10.00 FOR EVERY $1.00 INVESTED. We consider this stock intrinsically worth par, and in a reasonable length of time it will be paying large dividends on that amount. A limited amount of full paid, non-assessable stock will be sold for development purposes at 10 CENTS per share. Par value $1.00; soon to be advanced to 25 cents. Stock may be had on ten monthly installment payments.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Feb. 1, 1907.

HENRI DE NOAILES, ESQ.,
Secretary, the St. Hubert Guild of Art Craftsmen,
Akron, Ohio.

Dear Sir:

The set of Voltaire's works illustrating the reproduction of many of the rare and beautifully bound books of the Courts of Europe, made by the St. Hubert Guild of Art Craftsmen, which has been presented to the National Museum in response to my request of December 20th, has arrived safely.

I beg to assure you that the Museum greatly appreciates this generous gift from the Guild and arrangements will at once be made to place the bindings on exhibition in the Division of Graphic Arts, where they will be available for inspection by all who are interested.

Very respectfully yours,
Signed, R. RATHBUN,
Assistant Secretary,
in charge of National Museum.

SPECIAL

We also want to acquaint you with our Rare and Artistic Book Plate Department. We will therefore send you absolutely FREE fifteen beautiful examples designed by M. HOEBEKE. These, we know, will both interest and delight you. Mail coupon today.

Atheism and Fanaticism are the two poles of a Universe of Confusion and Horror. The narrow zone of Virtue is between these two. March with a firm step in that path. Believe in GOD and do good.—Voltaire.

Between two servants of Humanity who appeared Eighteen Hundred Years apart, there is a mysterious Relation.

—Victor Hugo.

Voltaire will always be regarded as the greatest man in literature of modern times, and perhaps even of all times.

—Goethe.

Voltaire was the most virtuous man of his age. Voltaire was the best Christian of his time.—Edouard de Pompery, French Biographer of Voltaire.

Voltaire's Letters are wittier than any other Letters in the world. For lightness, swiftness, grace, spontaneity you can find no second to them at however long an interval.—Rt. Hon. John Morley.

Each volume is bound differently. Each binding is a history in itself, reproducing the most sumptuous designs of the Great Masters of the Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries. This set of bindings is the most unique and extensive endeavor of modern times to adequately present this Fascinating Art. MERIT WINS

HAYNER Whiskies are achieving universal recognition for Quality and Purity

In these days of Pure Food agitation when so many distillers are compelled to retire from the field or change the labels and character of their product, it is interesting to note that one firm, The Hayner Distilling Company, are continuing on the even tenor of their way undisturbed by any State or National laws that may be passed—due, solely to the fact that their products are and always have been of the highest standard of quality and purity—complying with all the requirements of the Pure Food Laws now just as they have been for the past 42 years before the Pure Food Laws were enacted.

The Hayner policy of offering only the best and purest whiskey that can be produced is meeting with the success that it so richly deserves. This company now, on the completion of its 42d year, has over 750,000 staunch and loyal patrons in the United States alone,—and the company's efforts are now directed to make their customers' list a round one million.

Since the foundation of this vast business in 1866, Hayner Whiskey has been sold only by mail and goods shipped direct from distillery to the consumer—in this way saving their patrons all the profits of the dealers and the middlemen and assuring them that the whiskey would reach them in all its original purity and without the possibility of any adulteration or dilution.

The constant increase in their business has compelled the Hayner Distilling Company to greatly increase their facilities, and their Registered Distillery, No. 2, Tenth District, Troy, O., now covers three entire city blocks and is considered by experts to be one of the finest and best equipped distilleries in the United States. The capacity of the distillery is 2,000 bushels of grain per day, and the warehouses, where the whiskey is stored and aged, have a capacity of 5,000,000 gallons. The Hayner Distilling Company has a paid-up capital of $500,000, and they have always been recognized as one of the most reliable and responsible firms in this country.

This $20 Watch for $5.45

These figures tell exactly what we are doing—selling a $20.00 watch for $5.45. We don't claim that this is a $40.00 watch or a $50.00 watch, but it is a $20.00 watch. A leading watch manufacturer, being hard pressed for ready cash, recently sold us 100,000 watches—watches actually built to retail at $20.00. There is no doubt that we could wholesale these to dealers for $12.00 or $13.00, but this would involve a great amount of labor, time and expense. In the end our profit would be little more than it is at selling the watch direct to the consumer at $5.45. This Clarefax Watch, which we offer at $5.45 is a ruby jeweled, finely balanced and perfectly adjusted movement. It has specially selected jewels, dust band, patent regulator, enameled dial, jeweled compensation balance, double hunting case, genuine gold-laid and handsomely engraved. Each watch is thoroughly timed, tested and regulated before leaving the factory and both the case and movement are guaranteed for 20 years.

Send us your name, post-office address, and nearest express office and name of this paper. Tell us whether you want a ladies' or gents' watch and we will send the watch to your express office at once. If it satisfies you, after a careful examination, pay the express agent $5.45 and express charges and the watch is yours, but if it doesn't please you return it to us at our expense.

A 20-Year guarantee will be placed in the front case of the watch we send you and to the first 10,000 customers we will send a beautiful gold-laid watch chain, Free. We refer to the First National Bank of Chicago, Capital $10,000,000.

The Earning Power of Money Invested in Kornit

HERE is a Financial Opportunity to make an investment in an up-to-date, energetic, money-making, Industrial Manufacturing Company, which owns all the United States patents, processes and exclusive rights for producing Kornit, a product never before manufactured nor sold in this country. The demand for Kornit is great and the profit of manufacturing and selling is ENORMOUS. Read every word of this announcement and ACT AT ONCE.

Most Satisfactory Progress Being Made at Our New Factory

The Story of Kornit

By President Charles E. Ellis

KORNIT was invented by JOHANN GUSTAV BIERICH, a subject of the Czar of Russia, residing at Menkenhof, near Lievenhof, Russia, and is a homogeneous Horn or Hoof substance.

President Charles E. Ellis

Kornit is produced by grinding horn and hoof shavings and waste into a palpable powder and then pressing under heavy hydraulic pressure with heat into a homogeneous slab. This slab produces a substance which can be sawed or turned the same as ordinary wood. It is of a beautiful black consistency and IS EXTREMELY VALUABLE as a NON-CONDUCTOR FOR ELECTRICAL SUPPLIES. It is a matter of record that the electrical industry in this country AT THIS TIME DOES NOT HAVE a satisfactory material for heavy or high insulating purposes. A slab of Kornit one inch thick was tested in Trenton, New Jersey, by the Imperial Porcelain Works and was FOUND TO HAVE RESISTED 96,000 VOLTS OF ELECTRICITY. It may be interesting to note here that the heaviest voltage which is transmitted in this country is between Niagara, Buffalo and Lockport, New York. The voltage transmitted by this company is between 40,000 and 50,000 volts. Kornit is equally as good as a non-conductor for electrical purposes and supplies as is hard rubber.

The average price of hard vulcanized rubber for electrical purposes is to-day considerably over one dollar per pound—at the present writing something like $1.25 per pound.

KORNIT CAN BE SOLD AT TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER POUND, and AN ENORMOUS profit can be made at this price so that it CAN EASILY BE SEEN that where Kornit is EQUALLY AS GOOD and AS A MATTER OF FACT, in many instances, a BETTER non-conductor than hard rubber, it can compete in every case where it can be used with great success on account of its price. For electrical panel boards, switchboards, fuse boxes, cutouts, etc., there are other materials used, such as vulcanized paper fibre, slate, marble, etc. A piece f vulcanized paper fibre 3x4x1 inch in lots of 1,000 brings 20 cents per piece. A piece of KORNIT of the SAME DIMENSIONS could be sold with the ENORMOUS PROFIT OF OVER 100 PER CENT. at ten cents. The absorptive qualities of Kornit render it such that IT IS FAR PREFERABLE to that of vulcanized fibre. It will not maintain a flame. Of all the materials which are now in the electrical market for supplies and insulators there is, as we have stated above, none that are satisfactory. Kornit will fill this place. Its tensile strength per square inch averages from 1,358 pounds to 1,811 pounds which the reader can readily see IS MORE THAN SATISFACTORY. This test was made by a well-known electrical engineer, who is now acting in that capacity for the United States Government, with a Standard Reihle Bros. Testing Machine.

Waste horn and whole hoofs are being sold by the ton to-day principally only for fertilizing purposes. There is one town alone, Leominster, Mass., where they have an average of eight tons of horn shavings every day. These waste horn shavings are now only being sold for fertilizing material. These eight tons of horn shavings manufactured into Kornit and sold for electrical purposes would easily bring $3,000. At this price it would be selling for less than one-fifth of what hard rubber would cost, and about one-half what other competitive materials would sell for, even though they would not be as satisfactory as Kornit.

Kornit has been in use in Russia about four years. In Riga, Russia, which is the largest seaport town of Western Russia, the Electrical Unions there are using Kornit with the greatest satisfaction, finding it preferable to any other insulating material.

The expense of manufacturing Kornit from the horn shavings is not large, as the patentee, Mr. Bierich, has invented an economical and satisfactory process, which produces an article that in the near future will be used in the construction of almost every building in this country.

Besides electrical insulators, Kornit can be used for the manufacturing of furniture, buttons, door handles, umbrella, cane, knife and fork handles, brush and sword handles, revolver handles, mirror backs, picture frames, toilet accessories, such as fancy glove boxes, jewel cases, glove stretchers, shoe lifts, etc., office utensils such as paper knifes and pen holders, ink stands, pen racks, medical instruments, such as syringes, ear trumpets, etc., pieces for games, such as draughts, chessmen, dominoes, checkers, counters, chips, cribbage boards, etc.; telephone ear pieces, stands, etc., piano keys, typewriter keys, adding machine and cash register keys, tea trays, ash trays, scoops, mustard and other spoons, salad sets, cigar and cigarette cases, cigar and cigarette holders, match boxes, and hundreds of other useful and ornamental articles, all at a large and remunerative profit.

THE GREAT DEMAND FOR KORNIT IN THIS COUNTRY

THERE is one manufacturer ALONE here in New York that uses 60,000 square feet of insulating material for panel boards every year. He is now using slate and marble, but IT IS NOT SATISFACTORY, for the reason that in boring and transportation IT BREAKS SO EASILY. KORNIT WILL ANSWER THE PURPOSE OF MANUFACTURING PANEL BOARDS VERY MUCH MORE SATISFACTORILY. On 60,000 square feet of Kornit there would be a net profit of over $30,000, or 50 cents for every square foot used. THIS ONE EXAMPLE is cited to show you THE ENORMOUS PROFITS which can be made. There are a great many other panel and switchboard manufacturers in this country. You may be interested to know that a panel board is a small switchboard. There is one or more on every floor of all large buildings where electricity is used. They each have a number of switches mounted on them, so that those in charge can turn certain lights on or off, and by these panel boards all the electrical power in the building is controlled. They must be of a reliable non-conducting material. Kornit can be used for this purpose almost exclusively. The largest electrical manufacturing concerns in Riga, Russia, ARE USING KORNIT ONLY FOR THIS PURPOSE, after having tried all other so-called non-conducting compositions. The electrical trades alone can consume a great many tons of Kornit every day in the year. If only two tons of Kornit is manufactured and sold every working day in the year IT WILL ENABLE THE KORNIT MANUFACTURING COMPANY TO PAY 16 PER CENT. DIVIDENDS EVERY YEAR. Of course, if four tons a day are sold the dividends would be 32 per cent. per year. THIS IS NOT IMPROBABLE, AN EXPERT ELECTRICAL ENGINEER who holds one of the most responsible positions here in New York City made the statement, after thoroughly examining and testing Kornit for electrical purposes, that in his most conservative estimation there can be ten tons of manufactured Kornit sold every working day in the first year. This would mean that the Kornit Manufacturing Company would pay a dividend out of its earnings the first year of over seventy-five per cent. (75%). This is probably more than will be paid the first year, but there certainly seems to be a good prospect of paying a large dividend the first year.

Mr. Johann Gustav Bierich, the Inventor of Kornit, in his Summer Garden at Menkenhof, Russia

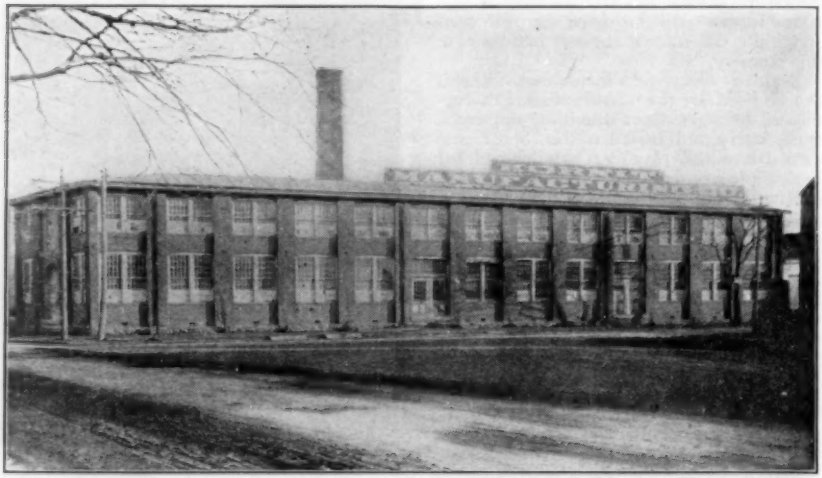
THERE WILL BE SUCH AN ENORMOUS DEMAND FOR KORNIT AFTER IT BECOMES INTRODUCED THAT FROM YEAR TO YEAR THE DIVIDENDS EARNED WILL BECOME LARGER AND LARGER. THIS IS THE BEST OPPORTUNITY TO MAKE AN INVESTMENT THAT YOU HAVE EVER HAD.

It is a well-known fact that THE MOST LEGITIMATE and PROFITABLE way to MAKE MONEY is by manufacturing some product that is "NECESSARY" and ONE THAT CAN BE FULLY CONTROLLED so that nobody else can manufacture the same article. Look at Sugar (which is protected by a high tariff); at Standard Oil, the Telephone, the Telegraph, and we might go on and enumerate many more monopolies. THEY ARE THE BIG MONEY MAKERS OF TO-DAY. KORNIT CANNOT BE MANUFACTURED BY ANYBODY IN THIS COUNTRY EXCEPT OURSELVES OR OUR AGENTS. We own all the patents issued by the UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT to the inventor, MR. JOHANN GUSTAV BIERICH, IN RUSSIA. These patents HAVE BEEN BOUGHT from Mr. Bierich, and ARE DULY TRANSFERRED TO THE KORNIT MANUFACTURING COMPANY and the same is DULY RECORDED IN THE PATENT OFFICE OF THE UNITED STATES.

WE ARE BUILDING A FINE FACTORY

ON March 1, 1907, our Factory, which had just been thoroughly equipped and completed, was burned to the ground!

Since that time we have purchased the Real Estate and are now building OUR OWN Factory. It was promised that it should be finished and in working order during last month, but owing to delays caused by the builders it will not be finished till this month. All our machinery is ordered and the greatest part is already completed ready to install as soon as our new Factory Building is ready.



Kornit Factory, Newark, N. J., (Belleville Station), entirely consumed by fire, March 1, 1907

A few shares obtained now may be the foundation for a fortune of the much-desired income for support in the unknown years that are to come. We leave it to you if it would not seem good judgment to take immediate advantage of this opportunity. Anyway, please write me at once and let me know just what you will do. If it is not possible for you to take shares now, write and tell me how many you would like and how soon it will be convenient for you to do so, provided I will reserve them for you. As soon as I receive your letter I will answer it WITH A PERSONAL LETTER AND WILL AR-

RANGE MATTERS AS YOU WISH TO THE BEST OF MY ABILITY.

REMEMBER, I HAVE A GREAT MANY THOUSAND DOLLARS INVESTED IN THE KORNIT MANUFACTURING COMPANY, and the minute you buy a share or more in this Company, we become CO-PARTNERS as CO-SHAREHOLDERS. It is for our mutual benefit to watch and guard each other's interests. I WILL BE GRATEFUL IF YOU WILL WRITE ME TO-DAY, so that I may know just what you will do.

I know you will agree with me that you have never had presented to your notice a better opportunity to make an investment where such large profits can be made because of the exclusiveness of control and the great demand and the low cost of the raw material, which is now almost practically thrown away. Join me in this investment, and I assure you that it is my sincere belief that in the near future you will say, "That is the day I made the most successful move in my whole life."

MY OFFER TO YOU TO-DAY

THE KORNIT MANUFACTURING COMPANY is incorporated under the laws of New Jersey, and is capitalized with 50,000 fully paid non-assessable shares at $10 each. It is my intention to sell a limited number only of these shares at the par value of $10 each. Ten dollars will buy one share. Twenty dollars will buy two shares. Fifty dollars will buy five shares. One hundred dollars will buy ten shares. One thousand dollars will buy one hundred shares, and so on. After you have bought one or more shares in the Kornit Manufacturing Company you may feel, as I do, that you have placed your savings where they will draw regular and satisfactorily large dividends.

I should not be a bit surprised if these shares paid dividends as high as one hundred per cent. in the not far distant future. Consequently a few dollars invested now in the shares of the Kornit Manufacturing Company will enable you in the future to draw a regular income from the large profits of the Company as they are earned. The dividends will be paid semi-annually, every six months, the first of May and November of each year. This is one of the best opportunities you will ever have presented to you in your whole lifetime. I have invested a great many thousand dollars in the Kornit Manufacturing Company, and I feel sure it is one of the best investments I have ever made. I can truthfully say to you that I fully believe that you will be more than pleased with your investment, and that you will never be sorry. Remember, that you have here an opportunity to become interested in a large industrial manufacturing concern manufacturing a product with an exclusive monopoly, which has never before been manufactured or sold in this country.

Remember, that it is by no means an experiment, as it has been successfully manufactured and sold for over four years in Russia at a large profit, and the manufacturer and inventor recently wrote that the demand is increasing every day beyond the capacity of their manufacturing facilities.

Now is the time for you to take advantage of this magnificent opportunity to make an investment in these shares. I EARNESTLY BELIEVE that in a few years THESE SHARES WILL BE WORTH FROM FIFTY DOLLARS TO ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS each on account of THE LARGE DIVIDENDS which the company will earn and regularly pay each and every six months. It is a well-known fact that shares that pay fifty (50) to one hundred (100) per cent. dividends will readily sell in the open market for $50 to $100. THE OUTLOOK FOR THE KORNIT MANUFACTURING COMPANY is such that it seems impossible for the earnings to fall far short of these figures. If the company only makes and sells two tons of Kornit a day for the first year and makes a profit of only $200 per ton it would mean a profit of over sixteen per cent. (16%) the first year. If this business were doubled the second year, of course the earning capacity would double and the dividends would be over thirty-two per cent. (32%). Prominent and well-known Electrical Engineers assure me that this product cannot help and is bound to make enormous profits. I would recommend that you send for as many as you wish at once. You, in my conservative opinion, can safely count on the large earning capacity of these shares. I will at once write you a personal letter with full information, and send you our illustrated book, "A Financial Opportunity," containing a score of photographs of the Kornit industry, taken in Russia. Please let me hear from you.

Yours very truly,

CHARLES E. ELLIS

Why The Prudential Changed Its Plan of Doing Business

"The Prudential Insurance Company of America has changed to a non-participating basis because it believes that the man who buys life insurance to-day wants a policy at the lowest possible cost, with the best protection that money will purchase."

Former United States Senator John F. Dryden, president of The Prudential, thus stated the reasons for the Prudential's change in its plan of doing business.

"The Company has taken this course believing that the general public now prefers low life insurance rates with liberal guarantees, rather than higher rates with estimated dividends.

"We believe our new non-participating policy meets these demands and that it will be found equal to if not better than any other policy now offered to the public. It is issued in amounts from $1,000 up, and contains the entire contract, everything in the policy being guaranteed. It is a great success.

"In The Prudential's office and field administration," President Dryden continued, "many important improvements have been introduced, the effect of which will be to further reduce the expense-rate and bring about economies in management in other directions. This is in strict conformity with the Company's established plan for many years, each succeeding year indicating progress and success, as measured by the most rigid standard of sound economy.

"During 1906 The Prudential's general expense-rate, exclusive of taxes, was the lowest in the Company's history, the reduction being nearly three per cent. of the premium income.

"The Prudential has the well-earned reputation of thorough familiarity with every detail of office and field administration, and its complex business, financial, actuarial, medical, and other experience now extends over more than three decades. Every precaution is employed to safeguard the interests of policyholders against the admission of inferior risks, and the question of quality alone determines the business policy of the Company.

"The Prudential has now over 7,000,000 policies in force, and its new low-cost non-participating policy is one of the best-selling policies The Prudential has ever issued. Prudential agents all over the country are handling the new policy with great success and reporting big business.

"In the table just published The Prudential compares its new low rates with the average rates of one hundred and two life insurance companies of the world. The comparison is exceedingly instructive, and graphically emphasizes the assertion that the new rates of The Prudential are the lowest, consistent with liberality and safety, offered to the public by any company of corresponding size, importance and responsibility in either the United States or Europe.

"A specimen of the new policy will be sent, free of cost, to any person sending age and occupation to The Prudential, Newark, N. J., and we believe that upon comparison it will be found there is no policy in the world equal to the new policy of The Prudential."

In the Scottish Highlands

"A friend and I were cycling through Scotland this Summer. We wheeled from Glasgow to the village of Luss, on Loch Lomond. It was raining copiously.

"Up a mountain road against the driving storm we pushed our wheels. Arrived at Stronachlachar we found the steamer we intended to take across Loch Katrine—was gone!

"We were compelled to go back 'overland' on our wheels, and on the road became hungry as bears. No shelter was near.

"Down we sat on a streaming rock and ate Grape-Nuts. Fortunately I had bought a package at Glasgow 'against a rainy day' and here it was! We ate two-thirds of it and in the strength of that meal, pushed our wheels over the humpty-bumpty road in the rain 17 miles to Aberfoyle, and at the end felt no sense of 'goneness' but were fresh as larks. I cannot imagine how we could have endured the journey without Here's the Opportunity Are YOU the Man?

If an employer should say, "I want a man for an important position," would you be the right man?

Opportunities like that are coming constantly to men trained by the International Correspondence Schools, an institution that qualifies men to take advantage of every opening; to command high salaries; to succeed in the best positions.

Employers prefer I. C. S. students because of their training, and are daily applying to the Students' Aid Department of the I. C. S. for men to fill positions of responsibility.

Why don't you get in line for a good position? No matter who you are, what you do, or how little you earn, the I. C. S. comes to you right where you are—at your present work, in your own home—and qualifies you for a better position.

During October 249 students voluntarily reported an increase in salary and position as the direct result of I. C. S. training.

The first step is to mark and mail the coupon. It costs nothing but a stamp, and will bring you information and help that will eventually be worth thousands of dollars.

A FIVE DOLLAR OPPORTUNITY FOR $1

THE REASONS: (1) We wish to advertise our High-grade Portraits. (2) A Prominent Connecticut Factory desires to introduce its goods of Curtains, Linoleum, Rugs, etc., in some good American homes, hence YOUR FIVE DOLLAR OPPORTUNITY FOR ONE DOLLAR.

THE RULES:—Send a good photograph (yours, or that of any member of your family) and we will enlarge it into a MAGNIFICENT HAND FINISHED LIFE-SIZE PORTRAIT (size 16x20 in.)

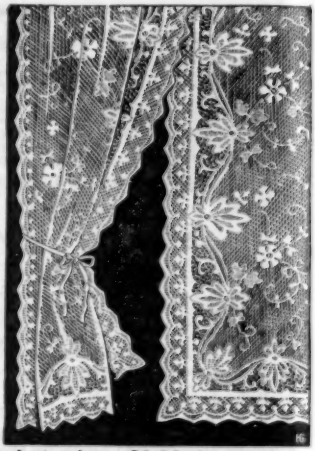
These portraits are finished in black and white; we also finish portraits in watercolors if you so desire, and can make changes from original if so ordered by you. Portraits like these are the pride and pleasure of many thousands of homes throughout the world.

Beautiful watercolor work, bringing out the features in life-like tints can be furnished at popular prices and changes made from original at a very moderate cost. Small photos sent for enlargement are returned unharmed together with the large portrait.

THE OPPORTUNITY.—A portrait such as described above is worth $3.00, at least that is the price any photographer or crayon artist will charge you for it, while the pair of Handsome Standard Size Lace Curtains with a Beautiful Tambour Effect, and vine center overlocked by stitched edge as pictured in the illustration would cost you $2.00 in many stores of the land.

Were you to buy these articles in the regular way, your bill would run like this:



1 Beautiful Life-size Portrait, (16 x 20 inches) value	$3.00	FOR ONE DOLLAR TO YOU!
1 Pair of Magnificent Lace Curtains, as illus., "	2.00
Total Value	$5.00

When you send a photo for enlargement under this offer, give us all necessary particulars about how you wish the portrait to be finished, giving color of eyes, hair, etc., if colors are wanted, also enclose postal order for $1.00 (One Dollar) to secure the shipment of a magnificent pair of Lace curtains and the Life-Size Portrait as per above rules.

P. S. The publisher of this paper would not accept this advertisement unless he were satisfied that the firm are fully capable of living up to any agreement they make. Send photographs and postal orders to

Pabst Extract Jewel Calendar for 1908

This latest creation by Kaber, by far the most exquisite art calendar of the season, is a beautifully colored panel of more than usual interest, portraying the birthstones and their significance for every month of the year. It is 7 x 36 inches in size, reproduced in seventeen rich colors, and being free from advertising, makes a most desirable decoration for home or office. This calendar is sent on request to every reader as a reminder that is exceptionally effective in maintaining perfect health for every member of the family and is a remarkable aid in regaining lost health. It is a liquid food in predigested form, containing all the bracing, soothing, toning effects of choicest hops, so combined with the vital, tissue building and digestive elements of pure, rich barley malt, as to form a preparation that nourishes the whole body, restores wasted tissues, invigorates the blood, refreshes the brain and aids digestion.

Pabst Extract
The Best Tonic

Young Man are You Quick at Figures?

This is one of the questions the prospective employer will ask you.

Haven't you heard in your own experience something like the following: "Give Mr. So and So a show—he's the best man in the office" or "send for Jones—he's good at figures."

What is such a reputation worth to you when a valuable vacancy occurs in the store, shop, or office? "BE THE MAN WHO CAN."

Our graduates make money because they "make good."

The average man says, "I'll get the answer in a few minutes." The Rapid Calculator says—"In a few seconds."

Don't put off another hour to write for our Free Book, "Rapid Calculation." Every day's start may mean dollars; you don't put off eating until you starve; don't put off writing until all the ambition and hope are starved out of you. This book has brought thousands good fortune.

The Greatest GOLD Dredging Enterprise in the World

THE YUKON BASIN GOLD DREDGING COMPANY is an international company organized under the territorial laws of the United States, registered and sanctioned by the strict laws of the Dominion of Canada. Its properties are 105 miles river frontage, or more than 10,000 acres on the famous Stewart River, the richest gold bearing placer field in the world. Title absolute from the Canadian Government through William Ogilvie, former governor of Yukon Territory and now president and actual field manager of the Yukon Basin Gold Dredging Company.

THE GOLD DREDGE A WONDERFUL MODERN INVENTION Each dredge put in the field will do the work of 1,000 men, and we propose to install twelve as rapidly as it is possible to make the arrangements. The ground is fully tested and immensely valuable.

This is the biggest gold dredging proposition in America. Careful tests covering 30 miles of our leaseholds went as high as $11.00 and averaged more than $1.06 per yard. Fabulous fortunes are being made dredging in California on ground averaging only 15c per yard.

$10.00 FOR EVERY $1.00 INVESTED. We consider this stock intrinsically worth par, and in a reasonable length of time it will be paying large dividends on that amount. A limited amount of full paid, non-assessable stock will be sold for development purposes at 10 CENTS per share. Par value $1.00; soon to be advanced to 25 cents. Stock may be had on ten monthly installment payments.

Write for prospectus containing minutest details. Write and ask questions. Address

The Story the Street-Car Tells

The Trained and the Untrained Man

Side by side they sit—one filling an important position in the world—the other poorly paid and discontented. One man is trained—an expert in his line of work, the other is not.

If you're the untrained man and want to advance, write to-day to the International Correspondence Schools and learn how you can better your position—how you can have your salary raised.

You'll be surprised when you learn how easy it all is. Tear out the coupon, mark it opposite the occupation you like best and mail it today. There's no charge for the information and advice that the coupon will bring.

Doesn't matter how old you are, where you live or what you do—so long as you can read and write the I. C. S. can help you without your having to lose a day's work or leave home.

Doesn't the fact that during November 265 students voluntarily reported better positions and higher salaries obtained as a direct result of I. C. S. training prove the ability of the I. C. S. to raise your salary? Mark the coupon NOW.

INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS

Be a Doctor of Mechano-Therapy

Make $3,000 to $5,000 a Year

THIS BOOK IS FREE

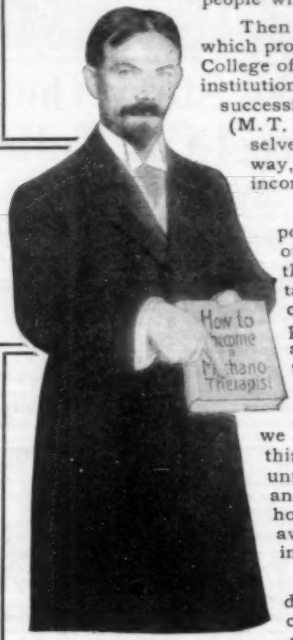
I Send This Book FREE

Have you ambition?

Do you seek a life position — one in which you can earn both a name and a fortune?

Would you like to be forevermore independent of position-hunting and employers?

Do you wish to advance yourself both financially and socially to an equality with the best professional class of people within the next six months?



Then write at once for the book I hold in my hand, which proves by documentary evidence that the American College of Mechano-Therapy, the largest and best equipped institution of its kind in the world, is turning out daily highly successful graduates — Doctors of Mechano-Therapy (M. T. D.) — men and women who have advanced themselves socially in a few months in a truly marvelous way, and who are now able to, and actually are, making incomes of from $3,000 to $5,000 a year.

Write at once for this book which proves beyond possibility of contradiction that any man or woman of ordinary common school education may come to this college in person and learn in class — or be taught with the greatest success at his or her convenience at home by mail — the principles and practice of Mechano-Therapy — an elevating, absorbing, and fascinating profession that has the unqualified endorsement, and the active support of the medical profession.

Write at once for this book, which shows how we guarantee our students success in the study of this absorbing calling, make them the possessors of unusual and exclusive ability, advance them socially and financially, and give them a highly paid, short-houred, and interesting calling, which any one of average attainments can master in his own home in a few months spare-time study.

This book, which describes the authorized diplomas granted our graduates, the reasonable cost of tuition, the convenient terms of payment, and the actual bona-fide realness of the new and unusual opportunity this college course opens up to all enterprising men and women is free, and, if you are ambitious, if you are looking for a life position in which you can make a name and fortune, if you would like forevermore to be independent of position-hunting and employers, and wish to advance yourself financially and socially within a few months time by home study — at small cost, and on convenient terms — then write for it at once — write now while the special terms of tuition are in force.

POSITIVELY such a good telescope, with Solar Eye-Piece for viewing the Sun, was never sold for this price before. These Telescopes are made by one of the largest manufacturers of Europe, measure closed 12 inches and open over 3½ feet in 5 sections. They are BRASS BOUND, BRASS SAFETY CAP on each end to exclude dust, etc. with POWERFUL LENSES, scientifically ground and adjusted. GUARANTEED BY THE MAKER. Heretofore Telescopes of this size have been sold from $5.00 to $8.00. Every sojourner in the country or at seaside resorts should certainly secure one of these instruments; and no farmer should be without one. Objects miles away are brought to view with astonishing clearness. Sent by express for $1 safely packed; if by mail $1.10. Our new catalogue of Watches, etc., sent with each order. This is a grand offer and you should not miss it. WE WARRANT each Telescope JUST AS REPRESENTED or money refunded. WHAT A TOURIST SAYS: New York, Nov. 4, 1905.

Messrs. Kirtland Bros. & Co. Gentlemen: I had with me on my recent European trip, one of your Excelsior Solar Telescopes, with which I had the pleasure of observing an Eclipse of the Sun. At the Austrian Tyrol it was almost 80 per cent. concealed. Your Solar eye-piece is a great thing. Its value to me on this occasion was many times greater than the entire outlay for the Telescope. Yours truly, L. S. HENRY.

Reasons Why You Should Ask Your Dealer for Shawknit Socks

COTTONS. Because we purchase the best of long staple cotton, and every pair is made of yarn combed and spun in our own mill; one reason why they never vary in quality and durability.

COMFORT AND STYLE. Because for comfort and style they have no equal, for they are free from seams to annoy the feet, are shaped in the knitting process instead of being shaped on wood forms, and our styles are always up to date.

GUARANTEE. Because we guarantee absolutely to replace every pair, or refund the money, where any imperfections are due to our fault.

Don't you think these are excellent reasons for your insisting on buying from your dealer our Shawknit Socks?

All genuine have Shawknit trade-mark stamped on the toe.

The following styles are in popular weight cotton:

Style 19s9—our famous Black.
" 3s8—very rich Navy blue.
" 5P1—Black and White, Dark mixture outside, pure white inside.

Made in plain colors, plaited effects, mixtures, stripes, embroideries, and natural undyed soles with black uppers.

Sizes 9 to 11½ inclusive

Price of these styles is 25c per pair, or a box containing 6 pairs assorted in a neat box for $1.50, transportation charges prepaid to any part of the U. S.

If you cannot procure Shawknit Socks from your dealer, we will fill your trial order.

When ordering direct, state size or sizes desired.

SHORTHAND IN 30 DAYS

We absolutely guarantee to teach shorthand complete in only thirty days. You can learn in spare time in your own home, no matter where you live. No need to spend months as with old systems. Boyd's Syllabic System is easy to learn—easy to write—easy to read. Simple. Practical. Speedy. Sure. No ruled lines—no positions—no shading as in other systems. No long list of word signs to confuse. Only nine characters to learn and you have the entire English language at your absolute command.

The best system for stenographers, private secretaries, newspaper reporters and railroad men. Lawyers, ministers, teachers, physicians, literary folk and business men and women may now learn shorthand for their own use. Does not take continual daily practice as with other systems. Our graduates hold high-grade positions everywhere. Send to-day for booklets, testimonials, etc.

INVESTORS--ATTENTION!

EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY

To the AMERICAN PEOPLE

LIMITED ISSUE OF STOCK

The Common Sense Gum Company of Boston, Massachusetts, offers you an exceptional opportunity in the purchase of a limited amount of stock to be sold from the treasury of the Company, at $70 per share, par value $100, for the benefit of the Company. Owing to our increased business and signed contracts for 1908, we are obliged to immediately enlarge our present facilities in order to take care of our rapidly growing business.

Facts That Count

There are millions of dollars to-day invested in the gum business, but there is less competition in the manufacture of gum than in any other large enterprise. The chewing-gum business is to-day in its infancy. The chewing-gum business is growing so fast that it is numbered among the largest and best investment propositions in the country. It is one of the few investments which has proven in the financial stringencies and extremely dull periods to be a safe investment.

Leslie's Weekly of December 19, 1907

says, "The American Chicle Common (The Chewing Gum Company) has been paying at the rate of 18 per cent. per annum. A few of these shares were recently offered at about $140, and the amount of the capital outstanding is small. There is no bonded indebtedness. I recommended this stock when it sold at half its present price and I still believe in it as among one of the best industrials."

Solid Facts About the Common Sense Gum Company

LISTERATED PEPSIN GUM, one of the Common Sense Gum Company's products, is probably one of the best money making investments to-day in the United States. It has been recognized by the people in a shorter length of time and gained the favor of a larger number of people than any other like product ever before placed on public sale. This gum forms only one of the valuable assets of the company. Their CATHARTIC and COUGH GUMS sell in most of the States of the Union on their merits, unaided by any large advertising.

Endorsed and Rewarded

The Common Sense Gum Company have no competitors in the line of medicated gums. Their package is conceded to be, by the wholesaler, the retailer and the public, the neatest, cleanest, prettiest and most convenient package in the gum market. We own and control some of the best and most valuable contracts in the gum world. Our gums have been endorsed by the baseball clubs, both the National and American Leagues, and automobilists. We have received from the newspapers the best endorsements ever given any product for years. We have received a reward of merit from the Worcester County Fair, 1907, first prize, Central Maine Fair, 1907, and special mention at the Boston Food Fair, Mechanics Building, 1907.

Its salesmen force consists of men thoroughly schooled in the gum field, who have left other companies to come with us of their own free will, knowing that the products of the Common Sense Gum Company are superior in merit and easier and quicker sellers.

The Common Sense Gum Company Control three gums known as LISTERATED PEPSIN GUM, COMMON SENSE CATHARTIC GUM, and COMMON SENSE COUGH GUM, which are not only chewing gums of a most delicious, pleasant and wholesome flavor, but are remedies for the most common diseases which flesh is heir to—gums with a purpose—besides having all the other merits of the ordinary chewing gum.

The Common Sense Gum Company have added to their assets and now own the copyrights, trade marks, formulas and stocks of their only competitor, the Cascara Pepsin Gum Company.

Strong Management

It has been well said that the Common Sense Gum Company has done more to make the gum business one of the country's best investments than any other gum company in the United States. The time to get into a large enterprise is at the beginning.

We say to you frankly that the officers of this Company, although they are thoroughly practical, reliable, financial men of excellent business standing and experience, have not a sufficient amount of immediate available funds to take the entire capital stock of this Company. They have invested money, and lots of it, and intend to invest many thousands more, and now that there is no question of the successful outcome of the enterprise, they offer you a limited amount of stock to be sold out of the treasury of the Company for the benefit of the Company, at $70 per share, par value $100, in a good dividend paying stock.

Do you not think it a good idea to invest money in a good, reliable, industrial stock company that has a management who are NOT system-made men, but who number among the greatest minds of the country?

The Common Sense Gum Company have been exceptionally fortunate in securing a board of management which we say, without fear of contradiction, is unexcelled to-day in any corporation of the United States. This board consists of Ira G. Rawn of Chicago, vice-president of the Illinois Central Railroad, without question to-day one of the most capable directors and best business minds in commercial life; William E. Spalding, for seventeen years City Treasurer of Nashua, N. H., for many years cashier of the First National Bank, treasurer of the Boston & Wilton Railroad, and recently promoted to the vice-presidency of the Second National Bank of Nashua, N. H.,—a man of unquestionable financial ability; Homer Albers, corporation lawyer, quoted as one of the most able legal minds in the United States; Joseph M. Reed, a man of long experience in the business world, a successful business man, and now a retired capitalist; Prescott Bigelow, Jr., a rising young real estate man connected with one of Boston's prominent real estate offices; Charles J. Bour of Chicago, advertising agent of the Illinois Central Railroad; Prescott Bigelow, banker and broker, for more than twenty years a member of the Boston Stock Exchange—a man of unquestionable business ability; Everett C. Tarr, originator of the gums now owned by the Common Sense Gum Company, whose management has helped to bring the Company to its present high standing in the business world.

In this management you have men thoroughly schooled in general business, occupying to-day some of the most important positions in the United States. This competent management, which includes the business man, the financial man, the lawyer, the real estate man and the man controlling the privileges of selling and advertising through 6,000 miles of railroad—this alone should make the success of the Company. Among our stockholders of national reputation is H. D. Umbstaetter, founder and owner of THE BLACK CAT.

Settle the question in your mind and decide whether you are to participate in this issue or not. Beeman, of gum fame, in a short term of years, made millions of dollars—Adams, of Tutti Frutti fame, in a short number of years, has amassed millions. In fact there is not a gum company to-day, whose management are intelligent and honest men, who are not amassing a fortune from the gum business.

American Chicle Company

We wish to make special mention and call to your attention the fact that in spite of the extremely hard times in the money market and in the general commercial world, the American Chicle Company has not only paid its regular dividends, but issued extra ones, which only goes to show that an investment in a 5 and 10 cent article, provided that article is of national consumption, is never affected by the times. It is about time that you opened your eyes to the fact that an honest, legitimate, solid industrial proposition, where you can walk in and see the wheels turn and see the products manufactured, are the investments which have proven in the past to be the only safe investments through financial depressions and at all times.

To the Large Investor—To the Small Investor

Do not hesitate. Sit down to-day and write to the Common Sense Gum Company, and buy all the stock you can. Take possession of your certificate, put it among your own papers and have your money safely invested in an industrial proposition—safe as the Bank of England—and if experience and figures count (and they do), the stock of the Common Sense Gum Company should earn a larger dividend than the one just mentioned as paid by the American Chicle Co. The total capital stock of this company is $1,500,000. There are no bonds or preferred stock ahead of you.

For Growing Children

The intelligent mother of today looks carefully after the food of her growing children.

A natural appetite calls for wholesome food. The child who is taught early to like proper food, free from over-stimulating elements, is not likely to acquire the taste for strong drink later on. His appetite has been trained for that which is wholesome and truly invigorating.

Perhaps no food is so simple, wholesome and strengthening as

Grape-Nuts

It contains all the elements from wheat and barley, that build up tissues and store up natural, healthy energy in the body. It contains nothing injurious — is all food, and can be digested by young children who grow rosy and strong on it.

With cream or milk it is the best food for the growing child — and children quickly learn to love it.

He's an Expert on Cartilage

Do you know what cartilage is? Do you understand its functions and its uses in the human body? Do you realize that you can develop the cartilage in your system just like you develop the muscles of your arm? Do you know that the human vertebræ contains from eight to fourteen inches of cartilage?

Shorter people have less, longer people have more, but the cartilage in every man can be developed, and under proper direction this development adds wonderfully to the general health and to personal appearance.

K. Leo Minges, the inventor of the Cartilege system, is an expert on cartilage. He knows more about cartilage than any other man in the world. He has studied it since his college days. He has increased the height of thousands of people and he can increase yours by a process that will broaden your shoulders and develop your entire physical being.

Corn whiskey possesses great tissue-building properties. It stimulates and strengthens.

For forty years the R. M. Rose Co. have made a specialty of distilling pure corn whiskey for medicinal use, and to-day their Warehouses contain more genuine "Primitive Method" Corn Whiskey than the total amount owned by all other dealers and distillers combined.

The "Primitive Method" is the honest way to preserve the nutrition and food value of the grain. Rose's Forefather Corn is properly aged in sanitary warehouses and will be found rich and satisfying in flavor and of an exquisite delicate bouquet.

THE GREATEST GOLD DREDGING ENTERPRISE IN THE WORLD

THE YUKON BASIN GOLD DREDGING COMPANY is an international company organized under the territorial laws of the United States, registered and sanctioned by the strict laws of the Dominion of Canada. Its properties are 105 miles river frontage, or more than 10,000 acres on the famous Stewart River, the richest gold bearing placer field in the world. Title absolute from the Canadian Government through William Ogilvie, former governor of Yukon Territory and now president and actual field manager of the Yukon Basin Gold Dredging Company.

THE GOLD DREDGE A WONDERFUL MODERN INVENTION

Each dredge put in the field will do the work of 1,000 men, and we propose to install twelve as rapidly as it is possible to make the arrangements. Our first mammoth dredge is now being built by Risdon Iron Works Co., San Francisco. The ground is fully tested and immensely valuable. This is the biggest gold dredging proposition in America. Careful tests covering 30 miles of our leaseholds went as high as $11.00 and averaged more than $1.06 per yard. Fabulous fortunes are being made dredging in California on ground averaging only 15c per yard.

PRICE OF STOCK NOW 15 CENTS

We consider this stock intrinsically worth par, and in a reasonable length of time it will be paying large dividends on that amount. A limited amount of full paid, non-assessable stock will be sold for development purposes at 15 cents per share. Soon to be advanced to 25 cents. Par value $1. Stock may be had on ten monthly installment payments. Write for prospectus containing minutest details. Write and ask questions. Address

Do You Realize?

In the Poison Cupboard of the Drug Store, "Caffeine" (the alkaloid from coffee and tea) is alongside of Cocaine, Morphine, Strychnine, etc.

This drug, put in coffee by Nature, may be all right as a medicine when skilfully handled by a physician, but was never intended to be used as a beverage.

In many persons this constant drugging sets up disease — such as nervousness, indigestion, weak eyes, palpitation, liver and kidney troubles, etc. You may be sure a day of reckoning will come, when ailments become chronic.

If there are signs of trouble in you, and if you care to feel again the old-time "go" of physical and mental poise — the luxury of being perfectly well — try a 10 days' change from coffee to

A New Range Idea

We have produced a range that we believe meets modern demands better than any heretofore made. We call it the

PALACE Crawford

The old End Hearth — so often in the way — is omitted. There is more area in the top of the range — an end shelf at the left being added. The ashes fall into a hod far below the grate, which makes their removal easier and more cleanly and makes the grate last longer. The coal hod is alongside the ash hod — out of the way.

All the other famous Crawford improvements are present: — Single Damper (pat'd), one movement regulates fire and oven; Patented Dock-Ash Grate, saves labor and fuel; Perfected Oven, surest, quickest, easiest controlled; Reliable Oven Indicator, can't get out of order; Removable Nickel Rails, etc., etc.

Crawford Heating Boilers

for dwellings are the latest and best in their class. More heat for same amount of fuel, less trouble, and less repair bills. We guarantee to heat any building in zero weather in which a Crawford Boiler is properly installed.

Heart to Heart

Thirteen years ago, when THE BLACK CAT was founded, it was possible to issue it at five cents a copy. To-day it is impossible. The cost of production has increased over 50%.

Beginning with the May number the price will be ten cents a copy, one dollar a year, and THE BLACK CAT will be Bigger and Better — more fascinating inwardly and more attractive outwardly. Instead of five stories as heretofore each number will contain from seven to ten. Every reader of the May issue will be convinced that the increased pleasure more than makes up for the increased price and will rejoice that THE BLACK CAT has finally been forced to do what other leading periodicals have already done — raised the price. In announcing this step THE BLACK CAT makes the following offer to its army of friends who year after year have praised and encouraged it.

For sixty days we will accept a two-year subscription at the price of one, that is, for one dollar the magazine will be sent, postage paid, to any address in the United States, Mexico, Cuba, and American Possessions for two years. After sixty days the price will be one dollar a year in advance, two dollars for two years. Those who are already subscribers may have their subscriptions extended for two years upon the payment of one dollar within the sixty days.

To any one who avails himself of this offer and who, after reading the May, June, and July issues, regrets having done so we will cheerfully refund in cash the amount we received for the unexpired term and cancel the subscription.

THE GREATEST GOLD DREDGING ENTERPRISE IN THE WORLD

THE YUKON BASIN GOLD DREDGING COMPANY is an international company organized under the territorial laws of the United States, registered and sanctioned by the strict laws of the Dominion of Canada. Its properties are 105 miles river frontage, or more than 10,000 acres on the famous Stewart River, the richest gold bearing placer field in the world. Title absolute from the Canadian Government through William Ogilvie, former governor of Yukon Territory and now president and actual field manager of the Yukon Basin Gold Dredging Company.

THE GOLD DREDGE A WONDERFUL MODERN INVENTION

Each dredge put in the field will do the work of 1,000 men, and we propose to install twelve as rapidly as it is possible to make the arrangements. Our first mammoth dredge is now being built by Risdon Iron Works Co., San Francisco. The ground is fully tested and immensely valuable. This is the biggest gold dredging proposition in America. Careful tests covering 30 miles of our leaseholds went as high as $11.00 and averaged more than $1.06 per yard. Fabulous fortunes are being made dredging in California on ground averaging only 15c per yard.

PRICE OF STOCK NOW 15 CENTS

We consider this stock intrinsically worth par, and in a reasonable length of time it will be paying large dividends on that amount. A limited amount of full paid, non-assessable stock will be sold for development purposes at 15 cents per share. Soon to be advanced to 25 cents. Par value $1. Stock may be had on ten monthly installment payments. Write for prospectus containing minutest details. Write and ask questions. Address

INVESTORS--ATTENTION!

EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY

To the AMERICAN PEOPLE

LIMITED ISSUE OF STOCK

The Common Sense Gum Company of Boston, Massachusetts, offers you an exceptional opportunity in the purchase of a limited amount of stock to be sold from the treasury of the Company, at $70 per share, par value $100, for the benefit of the Company. Owing to our increased business and signed contracts for 1908, we are obliged to immediately enlarge our present facilities in order to take care of our rapidly growing business.

Facts That Count

There are millions of dollars to-day invested in the gum business, but there is less competition in the manufacture of gum than in any other large enterprise. The chewing-gum business is to-day in its infancy. The chewing-gum business is growing so fast that it is numbered among the largest and best investment propositions in the country. It is one of the few investments which has proven in the financial stringencies and extremely dull periods to be a safe investment.

Leslie's Weekly of December 19, 1907

says, "The American Chicle Common (The Chewing Gum Company) has been paying at the rate of 18 per cent. per annum. A few of these shares were recently offered at about $140, and the amount of the capital outstanding is small. There is no bonded indebtedness. I recommended this stock when it sold at half its present price and I still believe in it as among one of the best industrials."

Solid Facts About the Common Sense Gum Company

LISTERATED PEPSIN GUM, one of the Common Sense Gum Company's products, is probably one of the best money making investments to-day in the United States. It has been recognized by the people in a shorter length of time and gained the favor of a larger number of people than any other like product ever before placed on public sale. This gum forms only one of the valuable assets of the company. Their CATHARTIC and COUGH GUMS sell in most of the States of the Union on their merits, unaided by any large advertising.

Endorsed and Rewarded

The Common Sense Gum Company have no competitors in the line of medicated gums. Their package is conceded to be, by the wholesaler, the retailer and the public, the neatest, cleanest, prettiest and most convenient package in the gum market. We own and control some of the best and most valuable contracts in the gum world. Our gums have been endorsed by the baseball clubs, both the National and American Leagues, and automobilists. We have received from the newspapers the best endorsements ever given any product for years. We have received a reward of merit from the Worcester County Fair, 1907, first prize, Central Maine Fair, 1907, and special mention at the Boston Food Fair, Mechanics Building, 1907.

Its salesmen force consists of men thoroughly schooled in the gum field, who have left other companies to come with us of their own free will, knowing that the products of the Common Sense Gum Company are superior in merit and easier and quicker sellers.

The Common Sense Gum Company Control three gums known as LISTERATED PEPSIN GUM, COMMON SENSE CATHARTIC GUM, and COMMON SENSE COUGH GUM, which are not only chewing gums of a most delicious, pleasant and wholesome flavor, but are remedies for the most common diseases which flesh is heir to—gums with a purpose—besides having all the other merits of the ordinary chewing gum.

The Common Sense Gum Company have added to their assets and now own the copyrights, trade marks, formulas and stocks of their only competitor, the Cascara Pepsin Gum Company.

Strong Management

It has been well said that the Common Sense Gum Company has done more to make the gum business one of the country's best investments than any other gum company in the United States. The time to get into a large enterprise is at the beginning.

We say to you frankly that the officers of this Company, although they are thoroughly practical, reliable, financial men of excellent business standing and experience, have not a sufficient amount of immediate available funds to take the entire capital stock of this Company. They have invested money, and lots of it, and intend to invest many thousands more, and now that there is no question of the successful outcome of the enterprise, they offer you a limited amount of stock to be sold out of the treasury of the Company for the benefit of the Company, at $70 per share, par value $100, in a good dividend paying stock.

Do you not think it a good idea to invest money in a good, reliable, industrial stock company that has a management who are NOT system-made men, but who number among the greatest minds of the country?

The Common Sense Gum Company have been exceptionally fortunate in securing a board of management which we say, without fear of contradiction, is unexcelled to-day in any corporation of the United States. This board consists of Ira G. Rawn of Chicago, vice-president of the Illinois Central Railroad, without question to-day one of the most capable directors and best business minds in commercial life; William E. Spalding, for seventeen years City Treasurer of Nashua, N. H., for many years cashier of the First National Bank, treasurer of the Boston & Wilton Railroad, and recently promoted to the vice-presidency of the Second National Bank of Nashua, N. H.,—a man of unquestionable financial ability; Homer Albers, corporation lawyer, quoted as one of the most able legal minds in the United States; Joseph M. Reed, a man of long experience in the business world, a successful business man, and now a retired capitalist; Prescott Bigelow, Jr., a rising young real estate man connected with one of Boston's prominent real estate offices; Charles J. Bour of Chicago, advertising agent of the Illinois Central Railroad; Prescott Bigelow, banker and broker, for more than twenty years a member of the Boston Stock Exchange—a man of unquestionable business ability; Everett C. Tarr, originator of the gums now owned by the Common Sense Gum Company, whose management has helped to bring the Company to its present high standing in the business world.

In this management you have men thoroughly schooled in general business, occupying to-day some of the most important positions in the United States. This competent management, which includes the business man, the financial man, the lawyer, the real estate man and the man controlling the privileges of selling and advertising through 6,000 miles of railroad—this alone should make the success of the Company. Among our stockholders of national reputation is H. D. Umbstaetter, founder and owner of THE BLACK CAT.

Settle the question in your mind and decide whether you are to participate in this issue or not. Beeman, of gum fame, in a short term of years, made millions of dollars—Adams, of Tutti Frutti fame, in a short number of years, has amassed millions. In fact there is not a gum company to-day, whose management are intelligent and honest men, who are not amassing a fortune from the gum business.

American Chicle Company

We wish to make special mention and call to your attention the fact that in spite of the extremely hard times in the money market and in the general commercial world, the American Chicle Company has not only paid its regular dividends, but issued extra ones, which only goes to show that an investment in a 5 and 10 cent article, provided that article is of national consumption, is never affected by the times. It is about time that you opened your eyes to the fact that an honest, legitimate, solid industrial proposition, where you can walk in and see the wheels turn and see the products manufactured, are the investments which have proven in the past to be the only safe investments through financial depressions and at all times.

To the Large Investor—To the Small Investor

Do not hesitate. Sit down to-day and write to the Common Sense Gum Company, and buy all the stock you can. Take possession of your certificate, put it among your own papers and have your money safely invested in an industrial proposition—safe as the Bank of England—and if experience and figures count (and they do), the stock of the Common Sense Gum Company should earn a larger dividend than the one just mentioned as paid by the American Chicle Co. The total capital stock of this company is $1,500,000. There are no bonds or preferred stock ahead of you.

The Sale of Shakespeare's Ghost

A most unique idea that "got away" with the money of a man who wants what he wants when he wants it. He got the ghost all right.

The Tax on Moustaches

One of the greatest short stories of Love, Mystery, Adventure, and Humor ever written. Reprinted from The Black Cat of ten years ago to meet the never-ending demand.

With the advent in May of the Bigger and Brighter Black Cat the new price of ten cents a copy will go into effect and the yearly subscription price will be one dollar instead of fifty cents.

For sixty days we will accept a two-year subscription at the price of one; that is, for one dollar the magazine will be sent, postage paid, to any address in the United States, Mexico, Cuba, and American Possessions, for two years.

After sixty days the price will be one dollar a year. Those who avail themselves of this offer will receive for one dollar the biggest two-dollar feast ever prepared for lovers of stories that are stories.

Those who are already subscribers may have their subscriptions extended for two years by paying one dollar within the sixty days.

To any one who avails himself of this offer and who, after reading the May, June, and July issues, regrets having done so, we will cheerfully refund in cash the amount we received for the unexpired term and cancel the subscription.

Rose's Forefather

Rare, Aged Corn Whiskey

CORN WHISKEY has often been made a jest of by the misinformed, or given but scant consideration by thousands who have unwittingly associated it with "Moonshiners" and other tales of mountaineer life in the South.

For half a century we have distilled our famous Forefather Corn Whiskey by plain, old, open-fire "Primitive Methods." It is the only manner in which the very life - - the vim and vigor — of the grain can be reduced, by proper distillation, to a perfectly pure and altogether wholesome whiskey.

Rose's Forefather Corn Whiskey contains all the qualities of an ideal tonic. It strengthens and stimulates, and is very acceptable to weak and delicate stomachs. On account of its tissue-building properties it is prescribed and recommended by many eminent specialists for those suffering from bronchial affections.

An Overloaded Ship

Makes slow headway against the heaving, rolling sea.

It's the same with the man who overloads his system with a mass of heavy, indigestible food.

It means a heavy, foggy brain and a tired, sleepy feeling when you ought to be making "things hum" — skimming along on the high tide to success.

Are you going to remain in the slow-going "Freighter" class, or would you prefer to be one of the "Ocean Greyhounds?"

We're Going to Raise Your Salary

Such scenes as this are actually taking place every day. Invariably the man who gets the raise is the trained man—the expert—while the untrained man plods along at the same old wage.

If you're poorly paid and have ambition you're too good a man to be kept down; and you wouldn't stay down if you only knew how easily you can acquire the training that will put you in the lead. It doesn't cost you anything to find out how you can accomplish this—how you can have your salary raised. The only requirement is the ability to read and write. Simply mark the attached coupon and mail it now to the International Correspondence Schools.

During February 676 students voluntarily reported salary increases and promotions received as a direct result of I. C. S. training.

SPECIAL 60 DAY OFFER TO INTRODUCE OUR LATEST, LARGE, POWERFUL ACHROMATIC TELESCOPE, WITH SOLAR EYE-PIECE NEEDED ON FARM, SEA OR RANCH.

POSITIVELY such a good telescope, with Solar Eye-Piece for viewing the Sun, was never sold for this price before. These Telescopes are made by one of the largest manufacturers of Europe, measure closed 12 inches and open over 3½ feet in 5 sections. They are BRASS BOUND, BRASS SAFETY CAP on each end to exclude dust, etc. with POWERFUL LENSES, scientifically ground and adjusted. GUARANTEED BY THE MAKER. Heretofore Telescopes of this size have been sold from $5.00 to $8.00. Every sojourner in the country or at seaside resorts should certainly secure one of these instruments; and no farmer should be without one. Objects miles away are brought to view with astonishing clearness. Sent by express for $1 safely packed; if by mail $1.10. Our new catalogue of Watches, etc., sent with each order. This is a grand offer and you should not miss it. WE WARRANT each Telescope JUST AS REPRESENTED or money refunded. WHAT A TOURIST SAYS: New York, Nov. 4, 1905.

Messrs. Kirtland Bros. & Co. Gentlemen: I had with me on my recent European trip, one of your Excelsior Solar Telescopes, with which I had the pleasure of observing an Eclipse of the Sun. At the Austrian Tyrol it was almost 80 per cent. concealed. Your Solar eye-piece is a great thing. Its value to me on this occasion was many times greater than the entire outlay for the Telescope. Yours truly, L. S. HENRY.

Send $1.10 by Registered Letter, Post Office Money Order, Express Money Order, or Bank Draft payable to our order.

Two for One

Here's $2.00 for $1.00. Beginning with the May issue the price of THE BLACK CAT will be 10 cents a copy, $1.00 a year. For sixty days we will accept a two-year subscription at the price of one; that is, for one dollar the magazine will be sent, postage paid, to any address in the United States, Mexico, Cuba, or American Possessions for two years. After sixty days the price will be one dollar a year in advance—two dollars for two years. Those who are already subscribers may have their subscriptions extended for two years upon the payment of one dollar within the sixty days.

NOTE.—To any one who avails himself of this offer and who, after reading the May, June and July issues, regrets having done so, we will cheerfully refund in cash the amount we received for the unexpired term, and cancel the subscription.

June Joys

Even the Blissful Bride will miss it if she fails to read THE BLACK CAT for June. Its seven stories of Adventure, Love, Mystery, and Humor will delight two kinds of people—those who are married, and those who are not. The opening story, "A Corner on Hades", is in reality a sort of guide to Paradise, and pleasingly demonstrates that human nature is prevalent the world over. The number will also contain the Second Bouquet of

"CATECHISMS"

Hand to Mouth Hints for those who thirst for the Milk of Human Kindness, and Heart to Heart Talks that will lead them from the Wrong Road into the Right Path

Copyright, 1908, by The Shortstory Publishing Company

For those who are low in the mind the kindly, practical sympathy dispensed under this head Beats the Band. As one enthusiast puts it: "In these days of Flub and Flamdoodle the 'Catechisms' stand out like a new spring bonnet on an Egyptian Mummy." Another delighted reader exclaims: "I have eleven children, have been married three times, shipwrecked once, and burned out twice. When my little Mary cried on the 22d of February because Washington died, I said to her: 'Never mind, Dearie, the "Catechisms" are alive. They will prove a tonic for all our tears.'" From a third, a young widow in far-off Dakota, come these words of cheer: "The 'Catechisms' are Gems and should be mounted and sold as Jewels of Thought to be worn on the heartstrings by all who yearn for the unyearnable". Now all those who are in accord, and particularly those who are not in accord with these sentiments are cordially invited to avail themselves of the above 60 days' opportunity of getting Two Dollars for One Dollar.

The Shortstory Publishing Company, 41 Pearl Street, Boston, Mass.

Rose's Forefather

Corn Whiskey

The method our conscientious forefathers used in making whiskey was to boil double in copper over open wood fires—a slow, expensive process, but it is the way to make honest whiskey and preserve the food value of the grain.

That is the way Rose's Forefather Corn Whiskey is made. We know every step of the process. We also know the proper way to age corn whiskey until it obtains a rich, amber color, a smooth, mellow taste, and a charming bouquet. That's why Rose's Forefather Corn Whiskey is the peer of all whiskies on the market. A trial will convince you it is the whiskey for your use.

"THE GREATEST GOLD DREDGING ENTERPRISE IN THE WORLD"

(SIGNED) EX-GOV. OGILVIE

THE YUKON BASIN GOLD DREDGING COMPANY is an international company organized under the territorial laws of the United States, registered and sanctioned by the strict laws of the Dominion of Canada. Its properties are 105 miles river frontage, or more than 10,000 acres on the famous Stewart River, the richest gold bearing placer field in the world. Title absolute from the Canadian Government through William Ogilvie, formerly governor of Yukon Territory and now president and actual field manager of the Yukon Basin Gold Dredging Company.

The Gold Dredge a Wonderful Modern Invention Each dredge put in the field will do the work of 2,000 men, and we propose to install twelve as rapidly as it is possible to make the arrangements. Our first mammoth dredge is now being built by Risdon Iron Works Co., San Francisco. The ground is fully tested and immensely valuable. This is the biggest gold dredging proposition in America. Careful tests covering 30 miles of our leaseholds went as high as $11.00 and averaged more than $1.06 per yard. Fabulous fortunes are being made dredging in California on ground averaging only 15c per yard.

Price of Stock Now 20 Cents We consider this stock intrinsically worth par and in a reasonable length of time it will be paying large dividends on that amount. A limited amount of full paid, non-assessable stock will be sold for development purposes at 20 CENTS per share. Soon to be advanced to 25 cents. Par value $1. Stock may be had on ten monthly installment payments.

MAKE YOUR OWN LIQUORS AND CORDIALS AT HOME !!

YOU CAN MAKE your favorite liquor or cordial in your own home in a few moments without distilling, brewing, or boiling, just as easily as you can mix two glasses of water, and it will cost you less than half the dealer's price.

OROSI RE-DISTILLED EXTRACTS

Are a concentrated form of the ingredients used by the biggest distillers in the production of liquors and cordials. They are absolutely pure, being guaranteed under the Pure Food and Drugs act. Serial No. 8462.

We have just introduced OROSI Re-distilled Extracts direct to the consumer in this country, although they have long been extensively used by the consumer in Europe and have been awarded gold and silver medals, and the highest honors at all international expositions.

Please have in mind that drinks made with OROSI Re-distilled Extracts are not substitutes or imitations, but the same in every respect as the very finest imported or domestic article. We guarantee this absolutely, and should you not find drinks made with OROSI Re-distilled Extracts perfect in quality and bouquet, and equal to any you have ever tried, we will cheerfully refund your money.

WHAT'S YOUR FAVORITE DRINK?

The following abbreviated list shows some of the drinks that can be made with "OROSI" Re-distilled Extracts: Rye, Bourbon and Scotch Whiskey, Gin, Cognac, Blackberry and Apricot Brandy, Rum, Creme de Menthe, Creme de Curacao, Benedictine, Chartreuse.

Send 25c., naming the drink you prefer above all others, and we will send, prepaid (under plain cover by mail), a sample bottle of "OROSI" Re-distilled Extracts that will enable you to make one quart of any liquor or cordial that you specify, and which we guarantee you will find equal in every respect to the best you can get from your dealer. Write to-day for our Free descriptive Booklet, giving a complete list of Liquors and Cordials that can be made at home with "OROSI" Re-distilled Extracts, giving complete information for making liquors at home.

Superfluous Hair Cured

A Lady Will Send Free to Any Sufferer the Secret Which Cured Her

From childhood I was distressed and humiliated by an unwelcome growth of hair on my face and arms. I tried all the depilatories, powders, liquids, creams and other rub-on preparations I ever heard of, only to make it worse. For weeks I suffered the electric needle without being rid of my blemish. I spent hundreds of dollars in vain, until a friend recommended a simple preparation which succeeded where all else failed, in giving me permanent relief from all trace of hair. I will send full particulars, free, to enable any other sufferer to achieve the same happy results privately at home. All I ask is a 2c stamp for reply. Address

INVESTORS--ATTENTION!

EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY

To the AMERICAN PEOPLE

LIMITED ISSUE OF STOCK

The Common Sense Gum Company of Boston, Massachusetts, offers you an exceptional opportunity in the purchase of a limited amount of stock to be sold from the treasury of the Company, at $70 per share, par value $100, for the benefit of the Company. Owing to our increased business and signed contracts for 1908, we are obliged to immediately enlarge our present facilities in order to take care of our rapidly growing business.

Facts That Count

There are millions of dollars to-day invested in the gum business, but there is less competition in the manufacture of gum than in any other large enterprise. The chewing-gum business is to-day in its infancy. The chewing-gum business is growing so fast that it is numbered among the largest and best investment propositions in the country. It is one of the few investments which has proven in the financial stringencies and extremely dull periods to be a safe investment.

Leslie's Weekly of December 19, 1907

says, "The American Chicle Common (The Chewing Gum Company) has been paying at the rate of 18 per cent. per annum. A few of these shares were recently offered at about $140, and the amount of the capital outstanding is small. There is no bonded indebtedness. I recommended this stock when it sold at half its present price and I still believe in it as among one of the best industrials."

Solid Facts About the Common Sense Gum Company

LISTERATED PEPSIN GUM, one of the Common Sense Gum Company's products, is probably one of the best money making investments to-day in the United States. It has been recognized by the people in a shorter length of time and gained the favor of a larger number of people than any other like product ever before placed on public sale. This gum forms only one of the valuable assets of the company. Their CATHARTIC and COUGH GUMS sell in most of the States of the Union on their merits, unaided by any large advertising.

Endorsed and Rewarded

The Common Sense Gum Company have no competitors in the line of medicated gums. Their package is conceded to be, by the wholesaler, the retailer and the public, the neatest, cleanest, prettiest and most convenient package in the gum market. We own and control some of the best and most valuable contracts in the gum world. Our gums have been endorsed by the baseball clubs, both the National and American Leagues, and automobilists. We have received from the newspapers the best endorsements ever given any product for years. We have received a reward of merit from the Worcester County Fair, 1907, first prize, Central Maine Fair, 1907, and special mention at the Boston Food Fair, Mechanics Building, 1907.

Its salesmen force consists of men thoroughly schooled in the gum field, who have left other companies to come with us of their own free will, knowing that the products of the Common Sense Gum Company are superior in merit and easier and quicker sellers.

The Common Sense Gum Company Control three gums known as LISTERATED PEPSIN GUM, COMMON SENSE CATHARTIC GUM, and COMMON SENSE COUGH GUM, which are not only chewing gums of a most delicious, pleasant and wholesome flavor, but are remedies for the most common diseases which flesh is heir to—gums with a purpose—besides having all the other merits of the ordinary chewing gum.

The Common Sense Gum Company have added to their assets and now own the copyrights, trade marks, formulas and stocks of their only competitor, the Cascara Pepsin Gum Company.

Strong Management

It has been well said that the Common Sense Gum Company has done more to make the gum business one of the country's best investments than any other gum company in the United States. The time to get into a large enterprise is at the beginning.

We say to you frankly that the officers of this Company, although they are thoroughly practical, reliable, financial men of excellent business standing and experience, have not a sufficient amount of immediate available funds to take the entire capital stock of this Company. They have invested money, and lots of it, and intend to invest many thousands more, and now that there is no question of the successful outcome of the enterprise, they offer you a limited amount of stock to be sold out of the treasury of the Company for the benefit of the Company, at $70 per share, par value $100, in a good dividend paying stock.

Do you not think it a good idea to invest money in a good, reliable, industrial stock company that has a management who are NOT system-made men, but who number among the greatest minds of the country?

The Common Sense Gum Company have been exceptionally fortunate in securing a board of management which we say, without fear of contradiction, is unexcelled to-day in any corporation of the United States. This board consists of Ira G. Rawn of Chicago, vice-president of the Illinois Central Railroad, without question to-day one of the most capable directors and best business minds in commercial life; William E. Spalding, for seventeen years City Treasurer of Nashua, N. H., for many years cashier of the First National Bank, treasurer of the Boston & Wilton Railroad, and recently promoted to the vice-presidency of the Second National Bank of Nashua, N. H.,—a man of unquestionable financial ability; Homer Albers, corporation lawyer, quoted as one of the most able legal minds in the United States; Joseph M. Reed, a man of long experience in the business world, a successful business man, and now a retired capitalist; Prescott Bigelow, Jr., a rising young real estate man connected with one of Boston's prominent real estate offices; Charles J. Bour of Chicago, advertising agent of the Illinois Central Railroad; Prescott Bigelow, banker and broker, for more than twenty years a member of the Boston Stock Exchange—a man of unquestionable business ability; Everett C. Tarr, originator of the gums now owned by the Common Sense Gum Company, whose management has helped to bring the Company to its present high standing in the business world.

In this management you have men thoroughly schooled in general business, occupying to-day some of the most important positions in the United States. This competent management, which includes the business man, the financial man, the lawyer, the real estate man and the man controlling the privileges of selling and advertising through 6,000 miles of railroad—this alone should make the success of the Company. Among our stockholders of national reputation is H. D. Umbstaetter, founder and owner of THE BLACK CAT.

Settle the question in your mind and decide whether you are to participate in this issue or not. Beeman, of gum fame, in a short term of years, made millions of dollars—Adams, of Tutti Frutti fame, in a short number of years, has amassed millions. In fact there is not a gum company to-day, whose management are intelligent and honest men, who are not amassing a fortune from the gum business.

American Chicle Company

We wish to make special mention and call to your attention the fact that in spite of the extremely hard times in the money market and in the general commercial world, the American Chicle Company has not only paid its regular dividends, but issued extra ones, which only goes to show that an investment in a 5 and 10 cent article, provided that article is of national consumption, is never affected by the times. It is about time that you opened your eyes to the fact that an honest, legitimate, solid industrial proposition, where you can walk in and see the wheels turn and see the products manufactured, are the investments which have proven in the past to be the only safe investments through financial depressions and at all times.

To the Large Investor—To the Small Investor

Do not hesitate. Sit down to-day and write to the Common Sense Gum Company, and buy all the stock you can. Take possession of your certificate, put it among your own papers and have your money safely invested in an industrial proposition—safe as the Bank of England—and if experience and figures count (and they do), the stock of the Common Sense Gum Company should earn a larger dividend than the one just mentioned as paid by the American Chicle Co. The total capital stock of this company is $1,500,000. There are no bonds or preferred stock ahead of you.

POSTUM—

What It Is Made of—

No. 1 No. 2 No. 3 No. 4

Clean Whole Wheat (No. 1) is separated into kernel and outer or bran-coat; the first containing carbohydrates and proteids (tissue material and energy storing elements); the second, phosphate of potash for rebuilding brain and nerve cells. The kernel is

Skilfully Roasted (No. 2) to a degree that develops in wheat an aroma similar to Java coffee (but without the use of coffee or any drug-like substance); hence the delicious flavour, when Postum is served hot with cream, which has led many to think they were drinking coffee. The roasted kernels are then

Cooled and Ground (No. 3) and set aside. The roasting has changed part of the starch into dextrin and dextrose, or grape-sugar, which form soluble carbohydrates, or energy-making material, and the proteids (tissue-forming elements) are also made soluble for prompt absorption. Next

The Bran-Coat (No. 4) is mixed with molasses, roasted and ground separately, then blended with the other part of the wheat to form the perfected product — Postum.

The relief from coffee ails when Postum is used instead, is a matter of history. Try it for your own self-proof.

"There's a Reason."

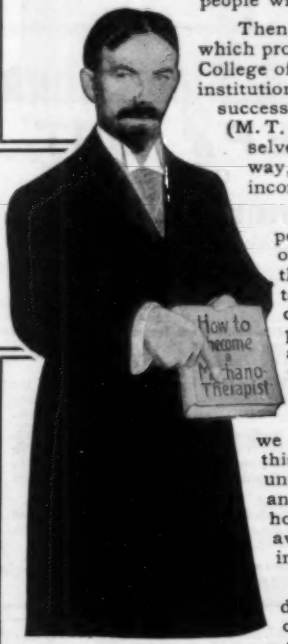
Be a Doctor of Mechano-Therapy

Make $3,000 to $5,000 a Year

THIS BOOK IS FREE

I Send This Book FREE



Have you ambition?

Do you seek a life position—one in which you can earn both a name and a fortune?

Would you like to be forevermore independent of position-hunting and employers?

Do you wish to advance yourself both financially and socially to an equality with the best professional class of people within the next six months?

Then write at once for the book I hold in my hand, which proves by documentary evidence that the American College of Mechano-Therapy, the largest and best equipped institution of its kind in the world, is turning out daily highly successful graduates—Doctors of Mechano-Therapy (M. T. D.)—men and women who have advanced themselves socially in a few months in a truly marvelous way, and who are now able to, and actually are, making incomes of from $3,000 to $5,000 a year.

Write at once for this book which proves beyond possibility of contradiction that any man or woman of ordinary common school education may come to this college in person and learn in class—or be taught with the greatest success at his or her convenience at home by mail—the principles and practice of Mechano-Therapy—an elevating, absorbing, and fascinating profession that has the unqualified endorsement, and the active support of the medical profession.

Write at once for this book, which shows how we guarantee our students success in the study of this absorbing calling, make them the possessors of unusual and exclusive ability, advance them socially and financially, and give them a highly paid, short-houred, and interesting calling, which any one of average attainments can master in his own home in a few months spare-time study.

This book, which describes the authorized diplomas granted our graduates, the reasonable cost of tuition, the convenient terms of payment, and the actual bona-fide realness of the new and unusual opportunity this college course opens up to all enterprising men and women is free, and, if you are ambitious, if you are looking for a life position in which you can make a name and fortune, if you would like forevermore to be independent of position-hunting and employers, and wish to advance yourself financially and socially within a few months time by home study—at small cost, and on convenient terms—then write for it at once—write now while the special terms of tuition are in force.

"THE GREATEST GOLD DREDGING ENTERPRISE IN THE WORLD"

(SIGNED) EX-GOV. OGILVIE

THE YUKON BASIN GOLD DREDGING COMPANY is an international company organized under the territorial laws of the United States, registered and sanctioned by the strict laws of the Dominion of Canada. Its properties are 105 miles river frontage, or more than 10,000 acres on the famous Stewart River, the richest in the world. Title absolute from the Canadian Government through William Ogilvie, formerly governor of Yukon Territory and now president and actual field manager of the Yukon Basin Gold Dredging Company.

The Gold Dredge a Wonderful Modern Invention Each dredge put in the field will do the work of 1,000 men, and we propose to install twenty as rapidly as it is possible to make the arrangements. Our first mammoth dredge is now being built by Risdon Iron Works Co., San Francisco. This is the biggest gold dredging proposition in America. Ground immensely valuable. Careful tests covering 30 miles of our leaseholds averaged $1.06.

Price of Stock Now 20 Cents We consider this stock intrinsically worth par and in a reasonable length of time it will be paying large dividends on that amount. A limited amount of full paid, non-assessable stock will be sold at 20 CENTS per share. Soon to be advanced to 25 cents. Par value $1. Stock may be had on ten monthly installment payments. The Time is Now! The Opportunity is Here!

Time spent in reading the following Facts is Time well spent:

THE COMMON SENSE GUM COMPANY is a corporation with a capital of $1,500,000, all common stock; no preferred shares, no bonds, mortgages, or liens of any description on the property. All profits are directly applied to the payment of dividends. The original intention was to keep this Company a close corporation. The foundation was laid with the greatest care and strength. The Board of Management is composed of men of honor, judgment, experience, and courage — men who have faith in each other and in whom the world has faith. These men were hopeful of the future and had faith in their product, yet they did not believe it would be possible for the volume of business to get ahead of them. Now with the Company incorporated a little more than a year, the management is surprised, amazed to find itself swamped with orders for chewing gum, orders in such volume that with present equipment they cannot be filled. Contracts have already been signed requiring immediate delivery of more chewing gum than the Common Sense Gum Company can produce. This present condition which confronts us is not surprising to other chewing gum companies which know the virtue of the gum we make.

Our equipment enables us to place upon the market a ton of gum a day, yet a bigger plant is demanded at once. During the last five months of 1907, 89,724 boxes of chewing gum were sold by us. During the first two months of 1908, 267,928 boxes were sold. Note the increase and marvel at the growth. With adequate facilities for making gum this Company can do a million dollars' worth of business every year, beginning May 1, 1908.

OUR OPPORTUNITY IS YOURS
WE WANT THAT BUSINESS
WE ARE GOING TO HAVE IT!

A Bigger Plant will Get It!

THE FIVE CHEWING GUMS THAT HAVE WON!

Listerated Pepsin Gum, Common Sense Cathartic Gum, Common Sense Cough Gum, Common Sense Headake Gum and Cascara Pepsin Gum.

LISTERATED PEPSIN GUM

is the most popular, the purest and most delicious chewing gum ever made. It is the only antiseptic chewing gum in the world. Those who buy it once, buy it always afterward.

HERE IS WHAT WE OFFER YOU!

For a LIMITED time a LIMITED amount of Treasury Stock in the Common Sense Gum Co. is offered to you for $7.50 per share (par value $10.00)

A POSTAL CARD WILL BRING OUR PROSPECTUS TO YOUR DOOR

This prospectus will show you in detail the past success and future prospects of this Company. It will prove to you that stock owned in a corporation making a popular 5-cent article in daily demand is a good investment. It will prove to you that chewing gum has made many millionaires. It will prove to you that stock in other chewing gum companies (not now for sale) has doubled in value and pays 18% dividends. It will give you a common-sense answer to the question, "If your stock is of unquestionable value, why do you offer it for sale?"

THIS PROSPECTUS WILL OPEN YOUR EYES TO THE POSSIBILITIES OF THE CHEWING GUM BUSINESS IN THIS COUNTRY TODAY

is a scientific instrument. When applied, there is no sensation of nervous shock, but the body immediately begins to attract quantities of oxygen through the lungs and the pores of the skin. The oxygen feeds the fires of life. It sets the heart in active motion, the pulse becomes stronger, and the red color of the blood is rapidly restored. It adds vitality, strength and energy, purifies the blood, produces appetite and the ability to digest food, restores the nerves to tranquillity and insures perfect sleep. It has restored to health sufferers from Sleeplessness, Nervousness, General Debility, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Malaria, Stomach Troubles and other serious ailments.

The Electropoise is positively indestructible. It lasts a lifetime. It saves the expense of medicine. The first expense is the only expense.

The Board of Management is composed of men of honor, judgment, experience, and courage — men who have faith in each other and in whom the world has faith. These men were hopeful of the future and had faith in their product, yet they did not believe it would be possible for the volume of business to get ahead of them. Now with the Company incorporated a little more than a year, the management is surprised, amazed to find itself swamped with orders for chewing gum, orders in such volume that with present equipment they cannot be filled. Contracts have already been signed requiring immediate delivery of more chewing gum than the Common Sense Gum Company can produce. This present condition which confronts us is not surprising to other chewing gum companies which know the virtue of the gum we make.

Our equipment enables us to place upon the market a ton of gum a day, yet a bigger plant is demanded at once. During the last five months of 1907, 89,724 boxes of chewing gum were sold by us. During the first two months of 1908, 267,928 boxes were sold. Note the increase and marvel at the growth. With adequate facilities for making gum this Company can do a million dollars' worth of business every year, beginning May 1, 1908.

OUR OPPORTUNITY IS YOURS
WE WANT THAT BUSINESS
WE ARE GOING TO HAVE IT!

Listerated Pepsin Gum, Common Sense Cathartic Gum, Common Sense Cough Gum, Common Sense Headake Gum and Cascara Pepsin Gum.

LISTERATED PEPSIN GUM

is the most popular, the purest and most delicious chewing gum ever made. It is the only antiseptic chewing gum in the world. Those who buy it once, buy it always afterward.

HERE IS WHAT WE OFFER YOU!

For a LIMITED time a LIMITED amount of Treasury Stock in the Common Sense Gum Co. is offered to you for $7.50 per share (par value $10.00)

A POSTAL CARD WILL BRING OUR PROSPECTUS TO YOUR DOOR

This prospectus will show you in detail the past success and future prospects of this Company. It will prove to you that stock owned in a corporation making a popular 5-cent article in daily demand is a good investment. It will prove to you that chewing gum has made many millionaires. It will prove to you that stock in other chewing gum companies (not now for sale) has doubled in value and pays 18% dividends. It will give you a common-sense answer to the question, "If your stock is of unquestionable value, why do you offer it for sale?"

THIS PROSPECTUS WILL OPEN YOUR EYES TO THE POSSIBILITIES OF THE CHEWING GUM BUSINESS IN THIS COUNTRY TODAY

Leaving the Bunch Behind

Nothing ever invented serves so admirably the triple purposes of utility, exercise and pleasure as does the bicycle. The best grade of wheels are now selling for less than one-third the prices of ten years ago, and at that the rider gets a better mount than was possible then. The Coaster Brake and Two Speed Gear features alone mark a big step forward in bicycle construction since the boom days.

Inquiry among jobbers and dealers discloses a demand for bicycles, not only from the small boy (who has always ridden) but also from his older brother and his father. The lady cyclist is also venturing timidly forth from the mysterious retreat wherein she has hibernated for a decade and she's not in bloomers either; thank the Lord for that.

"Leaving The Bunch Behind" is the attractive picture adorning the gold embossed, 1908 catalogue cover of the "oldest exclusive bicycle house in America." The catalogue is a work of art and is brimful of valuable and interesting matter for riders or those thinking of buying wheels. It is well worth getting and may be had by writing us. We also send a wheel for 10 days' free trial and will engage live agents.

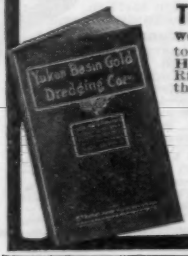
"THE GREATEST GOLD DREDGING ENTERPRISE IN THE WORLD"

(SIGNED) EX-GOV. OGILVIE

THE YUKON BASIN GOLD DREDGING COMPANY is an international company organized under the territorial laws of the United States, registered and sanctioned by the strict laws of the Dominion of Canada. Its properties are 105 miles river frontage, or more than 10,000 acres on the famous Stewart River, the richest in the world. Title absolute from the Canadian Government through William Ogilvie, formerly governor of Yukon Territory and now president and actual field manager of the Yukon Basin Gold Dredging Company.



The Gold Dredge a Wonderful Modern Invention Each dredge put in the field will do the work of 1,000 men, and we propose to install twenty as rapidly as it is possible to make the arrangements. Our first dredge is now being assembled at White Horse, Yukon Territory, and will be floated to our holdings on the Stewart River and will at once begin the recovery of gold for our stockholders. This is the biggest gold dredging proposition in America.

Price of Stock Now 25 Cents We consider this stock intrinsically worth par and in a reasonable length of time it will be paying large dividends on that amount. A limited amount of full paid, non-assessable treasury stock will be sold at 25 CENTS per share. Price will be advanced soon. Par value $1. Stock may be had on ten monthly installment payments. Write for prospectus containing minutest details. Write and ask questions. Address

The old End Hearth — so often in the way — is omitted. There is more area in the top of the range — an end shelf at the left being added. The ashes fall into a hod far below the grate, which makes their removal easier and more cleanly and makes the grate last longer. The coal hod is alongside the ash hod — out of the way.

All the other famous Crawford improvements are present: — Single Damper (pat'd), one movement regulates fire and oven; Patented Dock-Ash Grate, saves labor and fuel; Perfected Oven, surest, quickest, easiest controlled; Reliable Oven Indicator, can't get out of order; Removable Nickel Rails, etc., etc.

Crawford Heating Boilers

for dwellings are the latest and best in their class. More heat for same amount of fuel, less trouble, and less repair bills. We guarantee to heat any building in zero weather in which a Crawford Boiler is properly installed.

AS A LAD

Nearly Wrecked by Coffee.

"When I was 15 years of age," writes a Kans. man, "I was stout, healthy and robust, with a clear complexion and steady nerves.

"At that time I was put on my grandfather's farm. We ate breakfast by lamplight, and he had me take an extra cup of coffee, as it 'would be a long time till dinner'.

"I soon began to have an uneasy feeling in my stomach, and did not sleep well nights. Always proud that I had been able to outrun any boy in the neighborhood, I was now pained to find that I could not run half the usual distance without having to stop and gasp for breath.

"My cheerful disposition gone, I became cross, nervous, irritable. So bloated, I could not breathe well lying down. Unable to think clearly, I feared I was losing my mind. This continued for some time as I did not realize the cause. Finally, one doctor told me I must quit coffee, and he prescribed

"When I learned how to make it right (directions on pkgs.) it tasted delicious, and in a short time I noticed I could sleep better, think more clearly, and the bloating went down. Now I am a sound young man and look upon Postum as a capital support for nerves weakened by coffee."

Leaving the Bunch Behind

Nothing ever invented serves so admirably the triple purposes of utility, exercise and pleasure as does the bicycle. The best grade of wheels are now selling for less than one-third the prices of ten years ago, and at that the rider gets a better mount than was possible then. The Coaster Brake and Two Speed Gear features alone mark a big step forward in bicycle construction since the boom days.

Inquiry among jobbers and dealers discloses a demand for bicycles, not only from the small boy (who has always ridden) but also from his older brother and his father. The lady cyclist is also venturing timidly forth from the mysterious retreat wherein she has hibernated for a decade and she's not in bloomers either; thank the Lord for that.

"Leaving The Bunch Behind" is the attractive picture adorning the gold embossed, 1908 catalogue cover of the "oldest exclusive bicycle house in America." The catalogue is a work of art and is brimful of valuable and interesting matter for riders or those thinking of buying wheels. It is well worth getting and may be had by writing us. We also send a wheel for 10 days' free trial and will engage live agents.

SHORTHAND IN 30 DAYS

We absolutely guarantee to teach shorthand complete in only thirty days. You can learn in spare time in your own home, no matter where you live. No need to spend months as with old systems. Boyd's Syllabic System is easy to learn—easy to write—easy to read. Simple. Practical. Speedy. Sure. No ruled lines—no positions—no shading as in other systems. No long list of word signs to confuse. Only nine characters to learn and you have the entire English language at your absolute command.

The best system for stenographers, private secretaries, newspaper reporters and railroad men. Lawyers, ministers, teachers, physicians, literary folk and business men and women may now learn shorthand for their own use. Does not take continual daily practice as with other systems. Our graduates hold high-grade positions everywhere. Send to-day for booklets, testimonials, etc.

A Vacation Treat!

Here's something that will turn your Dreary Hours into Delightful Moments by Entertaining and Fascinating both you and your friends. In all the World there's no such Cure for the Blues as a Really Clever Story—a Well Told Tale full of Surprises, Mystery, Adventure, and Throbbing Life. We have paid as high as fifty cents a word for such stories and they are included in the following offer:

For 56 cents (stamps will do) we will deliver to you free of charges 80 of the most captivating short stories ever told. They are contained in 16 back numbers of The Black Cat which will be sent you all complete. The lot includes the great $2100 story, "A Few Bars in the Key of G," and many other capital prize tales like "The Farm That Forgot," "The Flagstaff of Ecstasy," "For Love of the Hills," etc. As there are only a few hundred sets of these stories, order at once if you wish to secure this

THE OUNCE OF PREVENTION

Folks nowadays are graduating from the Pillbox Stage. You and I and the other fellow do not dope ourselves as much as we used to. The good doctor of to-day gives us more advice and less medicine. As a result we are better off. In order to keep in health and vigor for the work the world has cut out for us, we are giving more attention to "prevention" than we are to "cure"—we know if we can head off disease we will not have to cure it.

THE COMMON SENSE GUM COMPANY, of Boston, contributed much to the art of keeping well, by placing on the market LISTERATED PEPSIN GUM, named in honor of Lister, the Father of Antiseptics. This is the only antiseptic chewing compound in the world. It is made under conditions which are absolutely sanitary, and is sold in five-cent packages, each containing seven milk-white pieces of a flavor so delicate and delicious that its sales throughout the country have been enormous.

LISTERATED PEPSIN GUM stands guard in the mouth against germs entering the system—instead of curing disease it prevents disease—it is not a medicine, yet it makes the taking of medicine unnecessary. LISTERATED PEPSIN GUM whitens the teeth, sweetens the breath, aids digestion, makes the mouth cavity antiseptic, and leaves "that clean, cool taste." Its use is as clean a habit as washing your face. Its tonic properties will keep your health in tune, and its deliciousness will be to you a joy. Millions who chew LISTERATED PEPSIN GUM know these to be facts, and thousands more are finding out every day.

Now, if you will send us five cents (stamps or coin), we will mail you, postage paid, a five-cent package of LISTERATED PEPSIN GUM.

We cannot tell you how good it is. You can only know by trying it. Keep well and you'll do well.

PRIZE WINNERS

IN

The Black Cat Story Contest

WHICH CLOSED MAY 15, 1908

The Following Prizes were Awarded and Paid:

① Humorous Stories

The $300 offered for the two best stories was increased to $600, as four of the stories submitted were deemed best and of equal merit. There was therefore paid to each of the following $150:

Dr. A. F. Bonney, Iowa, "The King's Physician"
Frederick C. Gladden, New York, "The Reduction of Singleton Worth"
Emmet F. Harte, Missouri, "In the Interest of Science"
John K. Turner, California, "The Farm of the Unseen Hands"

② Adventure Stories

A single story only of those received was deemed "best," and the same is so exceptionally fine that $200 instead of $150 was paid to

C. Stephen Bradd, Massachusetts, for "Nathan"

③ Other Stories

Ten stories, instead of five, were judged best and of equal merit. Instead of dividing $1,000, the sum was increased to $1,250, and $125 was paid for each of the following ten stories. All the writers assented to this decision.

Lieut. Edwin J. Bracken, Wisconsin, "Jacob Schultz, Recruit"
Jack Browning, Utah, "The Game on the Lonesome Road"
James Francis Dwyer, New York, "The Peculiar Affair of John Bloggin"
Mrs. Florence M. Eastland, Washington, "A Hired Gallant"
B. E. Fox, Massachusetts, "A Random Influence"
Clifford Howard, California, "A Light in the Desert"
Frederick F. Moore, California, "The Haunted Pesos."
Frederick F. Moore, California, "The Taming of 'Mister' McGraw"
Mrs. Rose Mills Powers, New York, "The Goddess of the Sea"
Albert W. Tolman, Maine, "The Quest of the Signet"

In addition to the above $2,050, the sum of $1,000 was awarded to the following writers whose twenty-two stories, while failing to win prizes, were found available for purchase: Dr. A. F. Bonney, Iowa; Edward Calnon, Michigan; William T. Eldridge, New York; Bradley Gilman, Massachusetts; R. Guthrie Kelly, Illinois; Greig Lapham, Michigan; Walter May, Illinois; Alfred D. Runyon, Colorado; George Saint-Amour, Texas; Robert Sloss, New York; Mrs. Anna H. Southworth, Massachusetts; Mabel Loder Stearns, Massachusetts; Frank H. Sweet, Virginia; Harry Van Demark, Texas; Mark F. Wilcox, Missouri; James Francis Dwyer, New York.

All unavailable manuscripts were returned within sixty days from the closing of the contest.

Leaving the Bunch Behind

Nothing ever invented serves so admirably the triple purposes of utility, exercise and pleasure as does the bicycle. The best grade of wheels are now selling for less than one-third the prices of ten years ago, and at that the rider gets a better mount than was possible then. The Coaster Brake and Two Speed Gear features alone mark a big step forward in bicycle construction since the boom days.

Inquiry among jobbers and dealers discloses a demand for bicycles, not only from the small boy (who has always ridden) but also from his older brother and his father. The lady cyclist is also venturing timidly forth from the mysterious retreat wherein she has hibernated for a decade and she's not in bloomers either; thank the Lord for that.

"Leaving The Bunch Behind" is the attractive picture adorning the gold embossed, 1908 catalogue cover of the "oldest exclusive bicycle house in America." The catalogue is a work of art and is brimful of valuable and interesting matter for riders or those thinking of buying wheels. It is well worth getting and may be had by writing us. We also send a wheel for 10 days' free trial and will engage live agents.

Forefather Corn Whiskey

IS DIFFERENT from other whiskies. It is made entirely from corn, by what is known as the "Primitive Method"—the slow, expensive, but thoroughly honest way to distil pure whiskey. This method is the only way to preserve the food value—the life of the grain in its most wholesome form. It undergoes three distinct filtrations, and is properly aged in lightly charred barrels in modern sanitary warehouses. Every possible precaution is taken to make Forefather Corn Whiskey altogether perfect, and this is the secret of the whiskey's great merit. For the man or woman with nerves shattered by the business strain or social demands of the day, Forefather Corn Whiskey is indeed a blessing. A small drink taken in water before retiring will calm the nerves, soothe the tired brain, and bring sound, restful sleep, without leaving one subject to a disordered stomach caused by whiskey produced by the modern methods.

It is endorsed by the medical profession as possessing food qualities of great nutritive value. Many eminent physicians prescribe and recommend it for those suffering from pulmonary troubles. Forefather Corn Whiskey is the ideal stimulant for the business man; it is the perfect refreshment to seek at the club in the hour of relaxation. As a mildly stimulating drink to serve when the unexpected guests call for an informal chat, it is unexcelled.
